HEBREW CHRESTOMATHY;

LESSONS

IN

READING AND WRITING HEBREW.

BY

WILLIAM HENRY GREEN,

PROFESSOR IN THE THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY AT PRINCETON, N. J.

JOHN WILEY, 535 BROADWAY.

ENTERED, according to Act of Congress, in the year 1863, by W. H. GREEN,
In the Clerk's Office of the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York.

JOHN F. TROW,
PRINTER, STEREOTYPED, AND ELECTROTYPED,
No. 50 Greene Street, New York.

P R E F A C E.

THE value of grammatical exercises and of selected courses of reading, carefully annotated to suit the wants of beginners, has long been recognized in the classic tongues. But the study of Hebrew, even in our best institutions, is prosecuted at comparative disadvantage for lack of such aids. The student plods laboriously through the Grammar, adding paradigm to paradigm and rules to rules, until his memory is overloaded with the confused and ill-digested mass. He is then set at translating, but is embarrassed in his use of the Lexicon by his imperfect familiarity with the letters, and especially by the difficulty of distinguishing the radical or primary forms of words in all the metamorphoses to which they are subjected from prefixes, suffixes and inflections; and what renders this process yet more vexatious and trying is, that words thus painfully sought for are forgotten almost as soon as they are learned, and must be looked for afresh perhaps in the very next sentence. He is next confronted by the idioms of the language in the arrangement of words, the structure of sentences, and the use of peculiar forms of expression. Unless these are pointed out, and the true key furnished for their explanation, the finer and more delicate sort will likely be unnoticed, while others will be passed over with a vague and imperfect understanding of their real nature.

Those methods may well be distrusted, which propose to impart knowledge without proportionate toil. No valuable result can ever be gained without effort. The acquisition of a language involves a familiar acquaintance with its grammatical forms, the meanings of its words, and the entire multitude of its idioms: and this cannot be secured without time and labour. The problem is not how these can be dispensed with, but how they can be expended in the most profitable manner and be made productive of the largest results. No doubt energy and pains may be successful in surmounting the obstructions which beset the most rugged path. But if the way were first carefully prepared, unnecessary obstacles removed, and a helping hand given in case of need, a wearisome toil might be converted into a pleasant occupation, and patient diligence would be crowned with an ampler reward.

The thorough mastery of the Hebrew, as of any other tongue, implies a facility both in translation and in composition. These are so distinct that exclusive occupation with one will not beget the other, and yet so related that neither can be perfect unless both are possessed. While, therefore, the former is the end principally aimed at, the latter may serve an important purpose as subsidiary to it. Accordingly the first part of this Chrestomathy is devoted to the work of analysis and translation; the second part to that of composition.

The first part begins with a series of exercises designed to accompany the original study of the Grammar. Those on page 1 are for the practice of the student in the orthographic rules contained in the sections there designated. Those on pages 2-8 illustrate the verbal paradigms. These are to be translated, and each form should at the same time be analyzed or divided into its significant elements, the meaning of each separately stated, and the law of their combination given. Thus, ye (masc.) have killed consists of קָטַל, the ground form of the Kal pret. § 82. 1 and הֵם abridged from 2 m. pl. pron. הֵמָּה § 85. 1. a (1), the former losing its pretonic Kamets in the combination § 85. 2. a (4). And they (masc.) will kill consists of י from 3 m. pron. הוּא § 85. 1. a (2), which before a vowelless letter becomes י § 85. 2. a (1), and קָטַל const. inf. § 84. 2, the basis of the future § 84. 3, which loses its vowel § 85. 2. a (2) before י abridged from the plur. ending וּ § 85. 1. a (2).

In order to save beginners the needless labor, discouragement, and loss of time incident to using a dictionary, before they have learned to trace the forms, with which they meet, to their roots or stem-words, a special vocabulary has been prepared for the first passage selected from the Old Testament, Gen. i.-iii., explaining every word in connection with the verse in which it first occurs. The student who masters, as he should, each verse as he proceeds, and is careful to remember what he has acquired, will, at the end of these three chapters, be acquainted with 250 words, most of which are of frequent occurrence. And if he steadfastly pursues this method to the end of the Chrestomathy, continuing to hold all the ground that he has gained and keeping in memory the words which he has learned, he will find himself in possession of a considerable proportion of the entire stock of words contained in the Hebrew Bible, and will be able to read in almost any part of it with tolerable ease.

The passages selected for reading have been chosen with a view to their intrinsic interest, their progressive difficulty, and the variety of their style and character. The notes are at the outset chiefly grammatical and of the most elementary kind, directing the attention of the student to those matters of form and of construction, which he is expected thenceforward to investigate for himself. The aid thus given both by the suggestion of principles and by references to the Grammar, is gradually withdrawn as the presumed progress of the student renders it superfluous; and questions of criticism and interpretation are admitted to greater prominence, the knowledge of the language being thus applied, as it is gained, to its most important end, the exposition of the Holy Scriptures.

This Chrestomathy is not designed to supply a complete course of Hebrew reading for theological students. Its aim is not to supplant the more general study of the Old Testament in the original, but to prepare the way for it. It has long been, and still is, a favourite wish of the author that a knowledge of Hebrew might be required in order to admission into our theological seminaries. If students entered upon their theological course with such a measure of forwardness in Hebrew as is required in Greek, the two great departments of Biblical learning could be brought nearer to a level. The time now spent upon mere grammatical routine and elementary linguistic training might then be devoted to the more serious work of the interpreter. In view of the growing importance of Old Testament studies, which bid fair to be yet more than they have been the battle-ground of Christianity and unbelief, and in view of the vastness and momentous character of subjects, which from the limited time afforded are now of necessity utterly neglected or but slightly touched, the suggestion is here earnestly made to my brethren in theological instruction and in ecclesiastical supervision, whether that cannot be done in this country which the last General Assembly of the Free Church of Scotland has recommended there. Cannot the study of Hebrew be begun and some satisfactory progress made in it in our colleges and academies?

It may be thought that this would be to crowd what belongs purely to a single profession into institutions of a broader basis and a more general character. But why might it not be introduced as an optional study, as it is in the Prussian gymnasia, and as the modern languages are in the most of our collegiate institutions? Much might be said to vindicate for the Hebrew another than a purely professional interest, and to challenge for it the attention of the liberally educated generally, both as the representative of a family of tongues strikingly different from that with which we are most familiar, and as containing a literature venerable from its antiquity and sacred as the gift of inspiration, with its products of exalted genius and its peculiarities as remarkable as those of the people amongst whom it had its origin.

If, however, this be aspiring to more than can be hoped for, and the theological curriculum must remain as it is, this volume is offered as a manual for the first year of Hebrew study. Its size has been graduated by the amount supposed possible for that term, and it has been prepared with the definite design throughout of fitting students to appreciate and profit by those lectures in criticism and interpretation which form the more advanced parts of their course. The text adopted is, with a few slight corrections from other sources, that of Hahn, except in the Psalms, where Baer's new and accurate edition has been followed. In the preparation of the notes the best critical commentators have been consulted; and though the pedantry of parading their names in so elementary a work has been avoided, this opportunity is taken of acknowledging in the general the aid which has been derived from these sources upon every page.

HEBREW CHRESTOMATHY.

PART FIRST.

ANALYSIS AND TRANSLATION.

SHIN AND HHOLEM § 12.

The sections referred to throughout these exercises are those of Green's Hebrew Grammar.

שְׁלֹשִׁים, רֶשֶׁב, יִשְׁבַּח, נָשָׂא, נָשָׂא, נָשָׂא, גָּשָׂה, יִקְשֹׁן, בָּאֵשׁ, עָשָׂה, עָשָׂה, קָשָׁט, שָׁאֵר, שָׁבַן.

THE VOWEL LETTERS § 13. ALEPH OMIANT § 16. 1.

בָּאֵר, לְאֵלֶיךָ, הַאֲסֵפְסֵף, הַלְכִינָה, אֲוִיל, אֲוִין, אֲוִיָּה, הַוָּה, הוּ, וַיִּשָּׂר, וַיִּשָּׂל, נִאֲמָה, שָׁן, שָׁן, לְאֵמֶר, שָׁלַח, תָּקַד, פָּגַר, זֶה, הוּי, אֲנִסְרִים,

KAMETS AND KAMETS HHOATUPH § 19. 2.

לָקַם, מְלָכִים, דְּבָקָה, דָּת, פָּרַשׁ, פָּקְדִי, נְהַרְוִי, שְׂבָלָה, שָׁמָה, וְבָוִים.

הַקָּדָשׁ, הַשְּׁלִיל, הַשְּׁמֹרֶה, שְׁפָנְתִי, מִשְׁלָחַ, תִּסְגֶּר, הַתְּקַדְּשִׁי, כִּבֵּשׁ, הַשְּׁבַתְנִי, סְגֹרֵה, הַסְּגֹרֶה, וְכַבֵּשׁ, יִתְקַדְּשִׁי, תִּשְׁכַּנְּכָה, שְׁבַתְהָה, וְקַדְּשׁ,
מִמְטִיחַ, הַבְּדִילֵה, נִבְדֵּל, הַשְּׁבַתְּם, וְקַדְּשׁ, אֲשַׁתְּמַר, הַמְּשַׁל, סְגֹרֵה, אֲקַדְּשׁ, שְׁלַל, נִשְׁבַּחְתִּי, וְשִׁפְּנִי, סְגֹרְתִי, שְׁמֹר.

7. FORMS MODIFIED BY THE ACCENTS, MAKKEPH AND EUPHONIC LETTERS.

1. The pause accents § 36. 2. a, lengthen short vowels, restore such as have been dropped in the course of inflection, convert simple Sh'va to Seghol, and compound Sh'va to the corresponding long vowel § 65.

2. The removal of the accent from a long mixed ultimate, whether by shifting it to the penult § 35. 1, or by Makkeph § 43, occasions the shortening of the vowel § 64. 1.

3. The original final Nun is sometimes retained in those verbal forms which end in n, viz., 2 and 3 m. pl. future § 88, and more rarely 3 pl. preterite § 86. b. Nun is also occasionally added to 2 f. s. future which ends in i § 88.

מְשַׁל, שָׁכַן: שְׁבַתְּהָ, דְּבַקְהוּ, נִשְׁמְרוּ, לְבַשְׁתֶּם: הַתְּקַדְּשִׁי, שְׁמַרְתִּי:
הַתְּקַדְּשִׁי, קַדְּשִׁי, מְשַׁלְּהוּ, וְשְׁמֹרְהוּ, תִּמְשַׁלְּהוּ, אֲשַׁכְּנֶה, יִקְדָּשׁ, יִתְדַבֵּק, תִּלְבָּשִׁי, יִדְבַקְוּ: וְשַׁבְּתִי: וְסָגְרֵה: וְכַבֵּשׁוּ: יִתְדַבְּקוּ, תִּשְׁמְרוּ, הַשְּׁמֹר.

8. PARAGOGIC AND APOCOPATED FUTURE AND IMPERATIVE, AND VAV CONVERSIVE.

The signification of the tenses when preceded by Vav Conversive is not absolute but relative, being dependent upon the time denoted by the antecedent verb or expression. In this and the following exercises the preterite with Vav Conversive should be translated as though conditioned by a previous future or imperative; and the future with Vav Conversive as though conditioned by a previous preterite.

וְשָׁרַץ, וְכַבֵּשׁוּ, וְהַבְּדִילְתֶּם, וְנִקְדַּשְׁתִּי, וְנִמְטַר, וְיִשְׁבַּח, וְיִקְדָּשׁוּ, יִדְבַק, תִּשְׁלַל, אֲשַׁכְּנֶה, נִסְגֹּרְהָ, וְאֲשַׁתְּמַרְהָ, שְׁמֹרְהָ.

9. PARADIGM OF קָטַל WITH SUFFIXES.

קָטַלְתִּי, קָטַלְהוּ, קָטַלְתֶּם, קָטַלְתִּי, קָטַלְתִּים (2), קָטַלְתֶּם, קָטַלְתִּי,
קָטַלְתִּים, קָטַלְתֶּם, קָטַלְתִּי, קָטַלְתֶּם, קָטַלְתִּי (2), יִקְטַלְתֶּם

וְקָטְלוּ, וְקָטְלוּ, וְקָטְלוּ (2), קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ,

 קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ,
 קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ, קָטְלוּ.

10. OTHER PERFECT VERBS WITH SUFFIXES.

1. Verbal forms ending in i or a often drop their final vowel letter before suffixes § 11. 1. a, § 104. l.

2. Kal Futures and Imperatives with a, retain it even before those suffixes which cause the rejection of a § 105. d, § 125. 1.

IMPERFECT VERBS.

11. PE GUTTURAL VERBS.

Verbs with h in the root are in these exercises classed with perfect verbs, unless h is the second radical and the verb used in the Piel species.

1. The guttural sometimes has simple instead of compound Sh'va § 112. 5.

2. In the Hiphil preterite (2 m. s. and 1 c. s.) becomes when Vav Conversive is prefixed § 112. 3.

וְעָבְדוּ, וְעָבְדוּ, וְעָבְדוּ, וְעָבְדוּ, וְעָבְדוּ, וְעָבְדוּ, וְעָבְדוּ, וְעָבְדוּ,

וְתֹאמְרוּ, נִשְׁמְרוּ, קִיַּם, וְאָמַר, תִּשְׁבְּחוּן, וְאֵבְרִין : עֲזָבָה, וְנִשְׁמְדָה, אֲנִימָדָה, תִּשְׁמַל, תְּהִמָּד.

12. PE GUTTURAL VERBS WITH SUFFIXES.

Vav Conversive prefixed to the preterite has the same variety of pointing with Vav Conjunctive § 100. 1, § 234.

עֲזָבִינוּ, וְאֵבְרִים, אֲהַמְלִיט, וְנִהַשְׁבַּחְנוּ, נִשְׁבַּדְדָה : עֲזָבָהּ, אֲמַרְכֶם, הַשְׁבַּדְתִּיהָ, נִאֲמַלְנוּ, וְאֵבְרִיךָ, וְעֲזָבִיךָ, תִּעֲבֹדֶם, וְהַשְׁמַדְתִּיהוּ, נִשְׁבַּעְתָּ, וְאֲשַׁמֵּעַה.

שְׁלַחְהוּ, שְׁמִיעוּהוּ, תִּשְׁמִיעֶיךָ, שְׁלַחְתִּו, וְהַשְׁמִיעֶתָה, שְׁמִיעֶיךָ, אֲשַׁמִּיעֶיךָ,
שְׁלַחְוּ, אֲשַׁלַּחְךָ, הַשְׁמִיעֶיךָ, הַשְׁמִיעֶיךָ.

15. PE NUN VERBS.

לָקַח to take resembles Pe Nun verbs in the rejection or assimilation of its first radical § 132. 2.

וְנִיפַח, אָתָּן, תִּפְלָקָה, תִּשְׁעִי, וְנִקַּח, וְנָעַד, תִּשָּׁן, תִּקַּח, נִגְשָׁתֶם, הָגִיד,
וְנִיפַח, וְתִקַּח, הַפְּתַחְתֶּם, נִגִּיד, מָגַשׁ, גָּשַׁת, קַח, תִּלֵּן, לָקַח, וְנִפַּח, וְהַנְפִיל, נָפַח, נָשַׁע, רָמַן.

וְהַחֲלִיטִי, הַחֲרִיקָה, נָשַׁעְתִּים, קָחְתִּי, וְשָׁלַחְתִּי, אֶתְּנֶה, נַעֲרִיעִי, וְהַטְּעֶה, וְקָחְתִּים, קָחְתִּי, תָּתִי, תָּלַם, נָתַתִּי, הַטְּלֶלְתִּים, נָתַשְׁתִּי, וְנָתַתִּיהוּ.

16. AYIN DOUBLED VERBS.

1. The addition of suffixes causes the insertion of Daghesh-forte in a final contracted consonant; and the consequent shifting of the accent occasions the rejection of pretonic Kamets or Tsere, and the shortening of a long vowel before the doubled letter § 141. 3, § 61. 5.

2. In the Kal and Hiphil futures of these verbs, as well as of Pe Yodh, and Ayin Vav or Ayin Yodh verbs, the accent is drawn back by Vav Conversive from a mixed ultimate to a simple penult, and the vowel of the ultimate shortened in consequence § 99. 3. a, § 140. 1 and 5.

חָי, גָּלִיתִי, וְסָבַלְתִּים, תָּחֵן, אָאָר, תִּקְבְּרֶנּוּ, וְנִקְחָה, אָחִיר, אֵל, הַחֵל,

17. PE YODH VERBS.

Construct infinitives of the form פָּעוּ drop the Seghol of the ultimate before suffixes, and either retain the preceding Seghol or change it to Hhirik or Pattalih; thus שָׁבַעְתִּי § 148. 2, § 221. 5.

וַלָּה, תִּשְׁבְּעִי, לָכֵת, וַיִּצֵר, הַחֲזַקְתָּ, הַשִּׁיבִי, וַיִּצֵר, נָשַׁב, תִּלְכְּכָה, וַיִּזְע, תִּזְלַח וְהַיִּשְׁבְּעָתִים, תִּשְׁעֵן, לָכֵת, וַיִּצֵר, אָשַׁב, הַחֲלִיקָה, תִּקְדְּלִי, תִּלָּח,

הַחֲלִיקְתִּים, וְהַיִּשְׁבְּעִיתִי, וְהַלָּחֵם, קָלַחְתִּי, וְהַיִּשְׁבְּעִיתִי, וְהַחֲלִיקָה, וְהַחֲלִיקִי, שָׁבַתְתִּים, לָכֵת.

18. AYIN VAV AND AYIN YODH VERBS.

Suffixes and paragogic letters occasion the rejection of pretonic Kamets and Tsere § 157. 3, § 158. 2, § 160. 2 and 3.

קָמִי, רִוְבִי, נָחַתִּי, שָׁבַח, שָׁמַתִּים, וְהַבְּרִיאוּ, הַבְּרִיחֵה, הַמְּרוּ, וְבִיאוּ,

VOCABULARY.

The words in Gen. i-iii., proper names excepted, are here arranged in the order of their first occurrence. An alphabetical index follows, by the aid of which the student can readily find the place of any word in the Vocabulary. The verbs in these chapters, together with a few added at the end of the list, are also employed in the preliminary exercises, pp. 3-8.

The abbreviations readily explain themselves, the capitals being the initials of the verbal species, and the small letters of the parts of speech, genders, or numbers.

GRAMMATICAL AND EXEGETICAL NOTES.

GENESIS, CHAPTER I.

Verse 1. בְּרֵאשִׁית composed of the inseparable preposition ב § 231. 1, with Daghesh lene § 21. 1, and the noun רֵאשִׁית of class IV, derived from ראש head by the addition of the vowel י § 194 and the feminine ending ת § 196, § 198. a (4), and denoting 'that which belongs to the head' i. e. the beginning. The accent is on the ultimate for a double reason § 32. 1 and 2. The expression is indefinite § 248, comp. ἐν ἀρχῇ John 1 : 1, and equivalent to the adverbial phrase at first. See Alexander on Acts 11 : 15. It does not of itself designate a fixed and determinate point of time, but simply the order of occurrence. The particular time intended must be inferred from the subject spoken of. The absence of the article is thus sufficiently accounted for, and there is no necessity of assuming that the noun is definite without the article, and hence is in the construct state § 246. 3, § 256, before the following words, which must then form a relative clause with the relative אֲשֶׁר omitted § 255. 2. This needlessly complicates the simple and obvious construction by making ver. 2 a continuation of the sentence begun in ver. 1, "in the beginning when God created the heavens and the earth, then (י after a statement of time § 287. 3) the earth was etc.," or by a construction still more forced and unnatural ver. 2 is regarded as a parenthesis and ver. 3 as a continuation of ver. 1, "in the beginning, when God created etc. (and the earth was etc.) then God said etc." These constructions have been advocated by those who would have Moses teach the eternal and independent existence of matter, or at least that it existed prior to God's act of creation. But this conclusion would not follow even if the strained renderings which they propose were adopted. The circlet over ב refers to the marginal note בְּרֵאשִׁית (fem. of the adjective רב with paragogic י. § 218) i. e. large Beth, the initial letter of the book see the 'Anglican' B.; comly, on

being above the ordinary size § 4. a. The Rabbins profess to see in this a mystic allusion to the magnitude of the work of creation, as well as to the twofold product of creative power, 'the heavens and the earth,' inasmuch as the numerical value of א is 2, § 2. See Buxtorf Comment. Masorethicus p. 154.

בָּרָא , בָּרָא verb § 162. 2, in the preterite, which here expresses past time absolutely § 262. 1; it agrees in sense though not in form with its subject in the singular § 275. 3. Dagghesh lene § 21. 1. The accent is on the ultimate § 32. 2. The verb precedes its subject, and this is followed by the object, which is the natural order in Hebrew § 270. a. Created: this verb does not necessarily or invariably denote production out of nothing, as is shown by its use ver. 27, comp. 2 : 7, to describe the formation of man from the dust of the ground, and Ps. 51 : 12 where an inward spiritual change is spoken of as the creation of a clean heart. It properly signifies the production of an effect, for which no natural antecedent existed before, and which can only be the result of immediate divine agency. It is hence used only of God in the Kal species, which is thus distinguished from the Piel, where it has the sense of cutting or forming § 78. 1. That the creation here described is ex nihilo is apparent, however, from the nature of the case. The original production of the heavens and the earth is attributed to the immediate and almighty agency of God. And as the earth, even in its rude, unformed and chaotic condition is still called 'the earth' ver. 2, the matter of which it is composed is thereby declared to owe its existence to his creative power. Creation is also described as a voluntary act, and as one which took place in time or at 'the beginning' of time; consequently matter can neither be eternal nor an emanation from the divine essence. The Mosaic account is, therefore, equally opposed to hylezoism and to pantheism; and the only alternative is creation ex nihilo. The word בָּרָא is further used in this chapter only in ver. 21 upon the creation of fishes and birds, which was the first introduction of the entirely new principle of animal life, and in ver. 27 where it is thrice repeated to emphasize the creation of man, who is a being not only of a higher grade but of a different order from those which had preceded, not merely another animal made of the same constituents in a more sublimated form or more curiously compounded, but a person possessing elements of intellectual and spiritual life not before communicated.

אֱלֹהִים a monosyllabic noun of class I. § 183, from the root אָלַף , which some have thought to be an equivalent of אָלַף to be strong, hence the Mighty One, but which is better explained from the corresponding Arabic root to fear, adore, hence the object of reverence, or adoration. It is in form a plural § 199, although only one Being is referred to, and hence the verb agrees with it in the singular; when it is used in a plural sense of false gods, words belonging to it are put in the plural § 275. 3. a. The singular is rarely used except in poetry, and particularly in the poetical chapters of the book of Job, where it occurs almost to the exclusion of the more ordinary plural. The current use of the plural form of this word is not, as some have fancied, a relic of polytheistic times, the term "gods" which then became the fixed designation of what was divine having been retained after the transition to monotheism, for if the faith was changed the words which described it would change also. Nor can it be an anticipation of the doctrine of the Trinity, as is shown by its application to heathen deities and occasionally even to creatures of exalted dignity. It is a plural of majesty, and expresses not numerical multiplicity, but rather the combination of many in one, the concentration of whatever is adorable § 201. 2. As a proper noun it is without the article § 246. 1, though when used as a common or appellative noun it may receive the article to designate the true God in distinction from those which are not really gods, Deut. 32 : 21, but only falsely called so § 246. 1. a. Accent on ultimate § 23, 1.

𐤀𐤍𐤅 the article § 229. 1, distinguishing the object before which it stands as the only one of its class § 245. 4; and a plural noun from the obsolete singular 𐤀𐤍𐤅 § 201. 1, class I. form 2, § 185. d, derived from 𐤀𐤍𐤅 to be high, and hence denoting the upper regions, i. e. heaven, the plural designating not distinct heavens of various elevation, but rather extent in all directions, and comprehending all the parts of the vast expanse above us. The accent on the penult is contrary to the analogy of ordinary plurals, and appears to be an assimilation to the dual ending § 203. c.

𐤀𐤍𐤅 the article § 229. 3, § 245. 4, and the segholate noun of class I. 𐤀𐤍𐤅 § 183, the first vowel being assimilated to that of the article § 229. 4. b, or changed to Kamets by the pause accent § 65. It is of common gender though mostly feminine § 197. b, plural 𐤀𐤍𐤅𐤅. Accent on the penult § 32. 3. Soph Pasuk § 36. 1.

The verse is divided by the accents into two clauses or branches. The first, embracing the verb and its subject, is limited by Athnahh under אֶת־הָאֲדָמָה ; and the second, containing the compound object, is limited by Silluk under the last word of the verse § 36. 1. Silluk is preceded by the conjunctive Merka under the closely related particle וְ , and the disjunctive Tiphhha under the other term of the compound object וְהָאֲרָצָה , the Tiphhha being preceded by the conjunctive Merka under the particle וְ § 38. 1. Athnahh is preceded by the conjunctive Munahh under וְהָאֲרָצָה , which is thus linked with its subject, and by the disjunctive Tiphhha under וְהָאֲרָצָה , which is not directly dependent on what follows, and not so closely related to it § 38. 2. The disjunctive accents indicate the pauses which a reader would naturally make or ought to make after the words to which they are affixed; these vary according to the strength or value of the accent, from such as are almost imperceptible to those of more considerable duration. Words marked with conjunctives admit no interval between themselves and those which succeed them.

Upon one view of this verse, it describes the initial act in the work of creation, viz. the original production of the matter composing the earth and the heavens, which it was the work of the six days either to organize or to reconstruct, according as the Mosaic narrative unfolds, directly from this point, or an interval is assumed between ver. 1 and 2 covering the geologic eras, the changes which took place upon this planet prior to its being fitted up for the habitation of man being then supposed to be passed over in silence, as not falling within the province of revelation to disclose. In favour of this it is urged that the next verse commences with and, implying that the narration does not begin there but is continued from the preceding. That the term 'earth' may denote the matter of the globe in a chaotic and unformed state, appears from ver. 2, where it is so employed. According to another view of ver. 1 it is a title or summary statement of the contents of the following section, 1 : 1—2 : 3, and connected with it by 'and,' as in Isa. 2 : 2, Hos. 1 : 2, Amos 1 : 2.

Upon either hypothesis the entire section is divided into seven parts by the seven days whose work or rest is recorded, viz. the first day vs. 1-5, the second day vs. 6-8, third vs. 9-13, fourth vs. 14-19, fifth vs. 20-23, sixth vs. 24-31, seventh 2 : 1-3.

2. וְהָאֲרָצָה conjunction § 234, article § 229. 3, and noun, which stands emphatically before the verb § 270. a. This inversion of the customary order is frequent in descriptive clauses or sentences, occurring at the beginning or in the course of a narrative, e. g. 2 : 12, 3 : 1, 37 : 3, both because the attention is there more strongly drawn to the subject to be described, and because this collocation admits of a preterite instead of a future with Vav conversive § 99. 1, § 265. The latter is proper only in statements which are a sequence from the preceding, and which directly continue a narrative previously begun. This form of the sentence is pressed by those who suppose that the inspired writer indicates by it that the state of things described in this verse was not the immediate sequence of the creative act, ver. 1.

וַיְהִי from הָיָה verb הָיָה § 169. 1, with Methegh § 45. 2, which here distinguishes Kamets from Kamets Hhatuph § 19. 2. It is here used as a copula, was, § 258. 3, or it may be itself part of the predicate existed, and that in the condition stated in the succeeding words.

וַיְהִי Segholate nouns from הָיָה roots § 184. b, without Daghesh lene § 21. 1, the first with two accents § 30. 1. Abstracts used rather than adjectives § 254. 6. a, to express the idea in a stronger and more absolute manner, wasteness and desolation; וַיְהִי occurs in but two other passages, Is. 34 : 11, Jer. 4 : 23, in both of which it is joined as here in assonance or paronomasia with וַיְהִי to add intensity to its meaning. Inasmuch as these words are used in other passages of the desolateness produced by devastation, some have supposed that they here contain the implication of a preceding catastrophe or convulsion by which the creation spoken of in ver. 1 was reduced to the chaotic waste here described.

חֹלֶם Hholem combined with the diacritical point § 12, Sh'va with final Kaph § 16. 1. Abstract nouns used in a general or universal sense, receive the article § 245. 5; but as חֹלֶם is not spoken of here in its totality, and does not mean all darkness but a certain portion or amount of it, the article is omitted. The subject is joined to its predicate without a copula § 258. 1.

עָלָה preposition over from the root עָלָה to ascend, which when contact is implied, as in this case, becomes upon § 237. 1, with Makkeph § 43.

פָּנָה plur. noun I. 2. § 185. d, from the obsolete singular § 201. 1, פָּנָה, הָיָה root פָּנָה to turn, the parts turned towards any one, i. e. the face or surface; in the construct § 214. 2, § 216. 1, here signifying possession § 254. 1, which does not admit the article § 246. 3, its definiteness being indicated sufficiently by that of the following noun.

מַגִּיחִים III. § 190. b, § 192. 2, מָגַח root מָגַח to agitate, hence an agitated, raging mass, elsewhere applied to the ocean, Gen. 7 : 11, Job 28 : 14, here to the vast expanse of water enveloping the earth prior to the formation or appearance of the dry land. Those who adopt the scientific hypothesis of La Place, suppose that the period here spoken of was prior to the separate existence of our planet, and that מַגִּיחִים denotes the agitated nebulous mass or ocean, in which all the matter of the solar system, our earth among the rest, was confusedly blended, although the inspired account speaks only of the earth as in this chaotic state because the formation of the earth is the principal thing to be described. The מֵהַמַּיִם is in the next clause spoken of as waters; but this, it is urged, may denote the attenuated ethereal fluid from which the terrestrial waters were subsequently condensed, as in ver. 7, 'the waters above the firmament,' and evidently not to be understood of water in its condensed and liquid state. This noun is used almost exclusively in poetry with the exception of this passage and twice in the account of the flood, Gen. 7 : 11, 8 : 2. In the singular it never receives the article, perhaps because it partakes somewhat of the character of a proper noun § 246. 1. It is of common gender § 197. b; plural מַיִם § 200. a.

רוּחַ monosyllabic noun of class I. from רָחַץ root § 186. c, of common gender, though mostly feminine § 197. b, plur. רוּחִים, meaning breath, hence wind, hence also spirit, which resembles breath as an invisible agent and connected with vitality. It cannot here signify 'wind,' whether by 'the wind of God' be understood a divine, i. e. a powerful wind upon the doubtful assumption that the name of God is used to make a mere superlative of greatness, or a wind divinely sent; it must signify spirit, since the action attributed to him could only be predicated of a living agent. It is definite without the article by being in the construct before a proper noun § 246. 3; this is here not the construct of apposition or designation merely § 254. 3, 'the spirit viz. God' or 'God who is a spirit,' but either that of possession § 254. 1, 'the spirit belonging to God' or of the source § 254. 7, 'the spirit proceeding from God.' That the spirit here spoken of is neither a periphrasis for God himself nor a mere influence issuing from him, but the third person of the Godhead, we learn from other passages of Scripture which ascribe the performance of divine works ad extra and particularly the work of creation to this sacred agent.

מְרַחֵם Piel participle of the רָחַץ guttural verb § 116. 4, § 121. 1, fem. § 205, without the article, since it is a predicate § 259. 2, which here follows its subject in a descriptive clause as in the preceding branches of this verse. It expresses continuous action § 266. 1, belonging to the time before spoken of § 266. 3; brooding or hovering, the word is applied Deut. 32 : 11 to the eagle cherishing its young.

מַיִם noun used only in the plural § 201. 1, § 203. c, Pattahh changed to Kamets by the pause accent § 65; the water viz. that of the deep or ocean previously spoken of § 245. 3.

The verse is divided by Athnabh under רוּחַ § 36. 1 into two clauses describing respectively the physical condition of the earth and the agency of the divine Spirit. The first is subdivided by Zakeph Katon over וְהָאֲרֶץ , and again by R'bhia over וְהָאֲרֶץ § 36. 2, the emphatically prefixed subject being thus erected into a minor subdivision, as though it stood absolutely and required a brief pause after it, 'as for the earth—it was, etc.' Zakeph Katon is preceded by the disjunctive Pashta on the other term of the compound predicate, and this by the conjunctive Merka on the closely related verb or copula § 38. 4, comp. § 38. 1. a. Athnabh is preceded by Munabh on the closely related construct, and by Tiphhha which marks the opposition of the subject to the predicate § 38. 2. The Silluk clause is subdivided by Zakeph Katon on וְהָאֲרֶץ § 36. 2, thus balancing the prefixed subject against the predicate. Zakeph Katon is preceded by Munabh on the closely related construct § 38. 4; and Silluk by Merka on the construct and Tiphhha on the participle whose relation to what follows is less intimate § 38. 1.

3. וַיֹּאמֶר Kal fut. of אָמַר verb אָמַר to say § 110. 3, with Vav conversive § 99, which draws back the accent to the penult § 33. 4, § 99. 3. a, and changes Pattahh of the ultimate to Seghol § 111. 2. a; this continues the narration begun by the preterite וַיִּבְרָא ver. 2. § 265. All the verbs of this verse precede their subjects § 270. a. Each creative act is preceded by the going forth of the divine word; some have found or fancied in this an obscure allusion to the second person of the Trinity, called in the New Testament 'the Word,' John 1 : 1, and to his agency in the work of creation. It may be remarked that the phrase 'and God said' occurs ten times in this chapter, once before each of the eight creative acts, a duplicate work being assigned to the third and sixth days respectively, and twice, vs. 28, 29, after the creation of man.

וַיְהִי Kal apoc. fut. § 97. 2 of הָיָה verb הָיָה § 171. 1, § 177. 1, with a jussive sense; here not a copula, but the predicate be, i. e. exist. וַיְהִי Daghesh-forte omitted after Vav Conv. § 25, § 99. 3, with Methegh § 45. 2.

The verse is divided at וַיֹּאמֶר § 36. 1 into a command and its result. Each verb is closely connected with its subject by the appropriate accents in the first clause § 38. 2 and by Makkeph in the second § 43.

4. וַיִּבְרָא Kal fut. of בָּרָא verb בָּרָא with Vav Conv. § 171. 1, § 172. 4; א otiant § 16. 1. Some read beheld the light, i. e. looked upon it with favour or approbation, because it was good. But this sense is forbidden, 1. by the parallel expressions in subsequent verses, particularly in ver. 31, where the form of statement is varied; and 2. by the fact that בָּרָא in this sense is followed not by the direct object but by the preposition ב , intimating that the sight was not only directed to the object but was fastened upon it or bound up in it. Saw the light that it was good asserts a vision of the object itself as well as of its quality, and thus there is a recognizable shade of difference between this and the phrase, which accords better with the English idiom, 'saw that the light was good,' which merely asserts the perception of the quality; this latter form of speech is used in Hebrew likewise, e. g. 3 : 6. רָאָה the article before an object previously mentioned § 245. 1. הָיָא the subject omitted, since it is sufficiently plain from the connection § 243. 1, predicate adjective without the article § 259. 2. הָיָא־וַיְהִי Hiph. fut. of הָיָא with Vav Conv. § 99. 3. וַיְהִי . . . וַיְהִי prep. § 237. 1, between the light and between the darkness for between the light and the darkness. This idiom is transferred to the Greek of the New Testament in Rev. 5 : 6, ἐν μέσῳ τοῦ θρόνου καὶ τῶν τεσσάρων ζώων, καὶ ἐν μέσῳ τῶν πρεσβυτέρων, i. e. between the throne etc., and the elders. Sometimes the second member is preceded by הָ as in ver. 6. Vav with Shurek § 234. : הָאֵשׁ . . . הָאֵשׁ the article either because they had been mentioned before § 245. 1, the light, the darkness, or possibly the words may be used in their universal sense, in which case the English does not admit the article § 245. 5, light, darkness.

5. הָיָא Kal future of הָאֵשׁ verb אָרָא to call § 162. 2. It governs the name directly, and the person or thing to whom the name is given by the preposition הָ; or the preposition may be omitted, when the person or thing named is in a very few instances also made a direct object, Num. 32 : 41, Isa. 60 : 18, but more frequently the word שֵׁם name is inserted, Gen. 3 : 20, 41 : 51, 52, God called (to) the light, day etc. i. e. he made them to be what these names denote; he gave them the fixed character and relations suggested by these terms. The majestic significance of this divine naming is heightened by its restriction to those grand objects in nature which were the work of the first three days, light and darkness—the firmament, ver. 8—land and sea, ver. 10, and to man the crown of the whole, 5 : 2. The inferior animals received their names not from God but from Adam, 2 : 20, who thus recognized and expressed the nature given them by their creator.

וַיְהִי שֵׁם הַיּוֹם הַשֵּׁנִי P'sik § 30. 1, § 38. 1. a. הָיָא prep. הָ with the vowel of the article § 231. 5. הַיּוֹם day, noun irregular in the plural הַיּוֹמִים § 207. 1. f. אָרָא, for the sake of varying the construction, הָיָא is placed before the verb, which necessitates a return to the preterite § 265; the conjunctive accent is thrown back upon the penult by reason of the following disjunctive § 35. 1. הַיּוֹם from הַיָּלַי night, a Segholate noun from an הָ root § 184. b, with He paragogic § 61. 6, § 219, which no doubt originally had the adverbial sense of at night, but in usage came to be equivalent to the simple noun, which it has almost supplanted, לַיְלָה only occurring once, Isa. 16 : 3 ; with a pause accent § 65 ; in the plural לַיְלָה § 208. 3. c. עֶרֶב I. 1. evening, from עָרַב to be dark, dual עֶרְבַיִם, plural עֶרְבֵיבַיִם ; עֶרְבֵיבַיִם is used in a different sense, § 200. d. בֹּקֶר I. 1. morning, from בָּקַר to break forth, plur. בִּקְרָיִם : אֶחָד numeral one § 223. 1, is placed after its noun, with which it agrees § 250. 1.

And it was evening and it was morning, one day. This is by many understood to mean that the evening followed by the morning constituted one day, the first of creation. This view has been thought to be recommended by its agreement with the usage prevalent among the Jews and several other nations of antiquity, of beginning the day with the evening, and also by Dan. 8 : 14, where בֹּקֶר עֶרֶב evening-morning occurs as an enigmatical equivalent of day. According to another and perhaps preferable opinion, the days of creation are to be reckoned from morning to morning. In favour of this it may be urged, 1. The statement is not that ‘the evening and the morning were the first day.’ This could not be so expressed in Hebrew. The separate verb before עֶרֶב and בֹּקֶר shows that we have here not a compound subject but a twofold statement, and הָיָה in the sense of become or constitute is commonly followed by לַיְלָה, see ver. 14, 15, so that if this were the meaning the proper phrase would be were to (or for) one day. 2. The evening of this as of the other days of creation is spoken of as coming on after the work of the day is over, the future with Vav conversive וַיְהִי implying a sequence, § 265. a. The day began when the light broke forth at God’s command; then followed the other acts of the day, the divine contemplation of the light, dividing the light from darkness, and giving names to each; finally when all was finished it was evening, and this was succeeded by morning. One day is now ended and another begins. 3. From evening to morning would be a night, but not a day, unless the terms are taken with a latitude of meaning which they do not properly possess and which they do not have elsewhere. עֶרֶב means simply evening, not the entire period of darkness, and בֹּקֶר morning, not the entire period of light. For these לַיְלָה night and יוֹם day had just been stated to be the proper words. Dan. 8 : 14 affords no justification of this extension of the evening and the morning over the whole day. The prophet merely says that there shall be so many evenings and mornings before the fulfilment of his prediction. He might have said with the same propriety the sun shall set and rise so many times. But it could not be inferred from this that sunset and sunrise covered the entire day. 4. If the first day began with the evening, this must have been the darkness which preceded the creation of light, but that darkness was eternal. So that the first day would upon this hypothesis consist of an evening of infinite duration followed by a finite morning, which involves an enormous disproportion not only in its own parts but between this and the succeeding days. 5. An additional confirmation may perhaps be found in the narrative of the deluge. It appears from a comparison of Gen. 7 : 11 and 8 : 3, 4 that time was then reckoned not by lunar but by solar months of thirty days each. When the beginning of the month was fixed by the appearance of the new moon, it was natural that the evening should be regarded as the commencement of the day, in order that it might be determined at the outset by the aspect of the moon to which month the ensuing day belonged. But if solar time is used in the account of the deluge, it seems not improbable that it is used in that of the creation likewise; and solar days are reckoned from sunrise to sunrise.

This view, if correct, is interesting from its incidentally proving how far the account of the creation is from containing anything distinctively Jewish. It has been said that the week of creation is modelled on the Jewish week: that its six days of work followed by a day of rest were invented to give sanctity to the Jewish Sabbath from the divine example. This suggestion is sufficiently confuted by the traces of a septenary division of time among other ancient nations, and by the coincidences in several remarkable particulars between the narrative of the creation and widespread traditions showing that Moses has given no invention of his own, but a trusty report of the primeval revelation. But apart from this, the calendar of creation is not Jewish at all, the very days, as it would appear, being reckoned by a different standard.

As to the duration of the days of creation, the first impression made upon the common reader doubtless is that they were days of ordinary length limited by the regular succession of light and darkness. It has unquestionably been so understood by the vast majority of students of the Scriptures from the beginning, and we are not prepared to affirm positively that this may not be the real meaning. The scientific difficulties which beset this hypothesis may be disposed of by two considerations. 1. Physical science has no knowledge of the origin of the world. It merely ascertains existing phenomena and existing laws, and from these concludes that if the laws and properties of matter have always been the same, the present condition of things might have been brought about in a particular way. But as to the mode in which these things actually did come into being, it can affirm nothing. If creation be miraculous, it transcends the limits of scientific inquiry. 2. If the specific purpose of Gen. 1 is not the complete history of this planet from the beginning, but the immediate preparation of it for the abode of man, how is science to demonstrate that after its geologic epochs were over, God did not in the exercise of his almighty power do in six natural days all that this chapter records?

And yet there are considerations deserving the attention of the careful student, which make it doubtful whether this was in fact the meaning of Moses, and still more so whether this was intended by the Spirit of God, whatever the meaning of Moses may have been.

(1) There is a measure of indefiniteness in the term 'day.' In this very verse it is used in two distinct senses. In the first clause it denotes the periods of light alternating with the darkness of the night, and exclusive of the latter. In the second clause, even on the strictest and most literal hypothesis, it denotes the entire diurnal period, embracing, along with the day proper, the night also. In 2 : 4 it has a wider meaning still, and is applied to the whole week of creation. And its frequent use throughout the Scriptures in the metaphorical sense of a period of indefinite duration shows what a latitude was allowed to it in the Hebrew idiom. Thus we read of the 'day of prosperity' and the 'day of adversity,' Eccl. 7 : 14, the 'day of trouble,' Ps. 20 : 1, the 'day of affliction,' Jer. 16 : 19, the 'day of evil,' Jer. 17 : 17, the 'day of vengeance,' Isa. 61 : 2, the 'day of salvation,' 2 Cor. 6 : 2, the 'day of temptation in the wilderness,' Ps. 95 : 10, which lasted for forty years, the day of human life succeeded by the night of death, John 9 : 4, the day of final glory which is to follow this night of darkness and sin, Rom. 13 : 12, that eternal day which no night shall limit, Rev. 21 : 25.

(2) The days of prophecy, it is universally acknowledged, denote not ordinary days of twenty-four hours, but periods of much longer duration, see Dan. 12 : 11, 12, Rev. 11 : 3, etc., etc. If this term may be used enigmatically in prophecy in order to conceal the absolute duration intended, at the same time that its proportions and relations are made known, the same might be the case here, if it was the design of God darkly to image forth more than was to be absolutely disclosed. If the Creator has indeed left traces of the progress of his work in the crust of the globe, which it was his design that man should in the course of time decipher, and if he has also given a written revelation of his creative work, not with the design of enabling men to anticipate these scientific discoveries or to decide in advance between rival scientific hypotheses, but such as should be in accurate accordance with the facts when they came to be known, and should impress all readers with the conviction that He inspired it who knew the end from the beginning, how could this be accomplished better than by such an enigmatical use of words as could hold a latent signification unsuspected until the time should arrive for it to be brought to light? This is what the analogy of Scripture would lead us to expect, since its predictions of the future are usually so veiled that they cannot be thoroughly understood until the event explains them, though they then become so plain, oftentimes, that they cannot be mistaken.

(3) The apostle Peter tells us, 2 Pet. 3 : 8, 'that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day.' Comp. Ps. 90 : 4. This might make us hesitate about a rigorous application of our puny measures of time to the eternal God. The day is, in the language of our Lord, John 9 : 4, the period of work as opposed to the night when no work is done. Now though the same word may be applied to things human and things divine, it does not follow that they are upon a level. A day is man's working-time ; God's working-time is also a day, but it may have an inconceivably grander scale of duration, as the work wrought in it is one to which human work bears no proportion.

(4) The divine Sabbath, with which the work of creation concludes, may naturally be supposed to have been of the same character with the days which preceded it. But if this Sabbath was a day of twenty-four hours, God rested no more on the seventh day than he did on the eighth or ninth. That the Sabbath of creation in the intention of the Scriptures was not an ordinary day, but a long period, which still continues, may be inferred (a) From the circumstance that while the regular formula of 'the evening and the morning' occurs at the end of each of the six preceding days, it is wanting in the seventh. This has had no evening, and no fresh morning has since dawned. (b) The apostle appears to teach the same thing in Heb. 4. The works of God were finished from the foundation of the world, ver. 3. Creation was then complete : and into the divine rest then inaugurated men are still invited to enter. The human week and the human Sabbath are modelled after those of God, but so reduced in dimensions as to be adapted to our short-lived insignificance. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are God's ways higher than our ways. Isa. 55 : 9.

(5) An additional ground of doubt respecting the length of the days of creation might be suggested by the fact that they certainly were not all solar days. The sun was not created, or at least was not made the measurer of time for the earth until the fourth day.

(6) The surprising correspondence between the successive works of the six days and the order in which according to geological researches animated beings would seem to have made their first appearance on the earth, creates a strong presumption that the periods of geology and the days of Moses are identical.

▫ The Pentateuch is divided by the Jews into 669 sections or paragraphs, the end of each being sometimes, as here, marked by the letter ע, at others, as 3:15, 16, by ס. The former is the initial of פתח opened, indicating that the rest of the line was to be left vacant in the manuscript. The latter is the initial of סוף closed, indicating that after leaving a blank space the writer should recommence in the same line. It is also divided into 54 larger sections or lessons for the public reading of the synagogue. These are not noted in this chrestomathy; but in ordinary Hebrew Bibles they are marked by פס or סס as they coincide at the beginning with one or the other sort of smaller sections.

6. צקע I. 2. § 185 from צקע to spread out, denoting that which is spread out, expanse. As the root also means 'to hammer out,' some have judged that this word involves the conception of the sky as a solid arch, like the Greek στερέωμα and the Latin firmamentum. Even if this were so, however, which is by no means certain, the sacred writers cannot be held responsible for the etymology of the words which they employ, any more than a modern astronomer, who should speak of the 'fixed stars,' would be held to sanction the notion that they are fastened to the celestial sphere. The Scriptures nowhere profess to give a physical description of the sky; the language employed respecting it is purely phenomenal and figurative. Thus while in Job 37:18 it is spoken of as firm and like a molten looking-glass, the Psalmist, 104:2, compares it to a curtain, and Isaiah, 40:22, to a tent or veil of the thinnest and most subtile texture (קו).

קו prep. § 231. 1, with the const. of קו § 183. ב, § 216. 1. d. קו Hiph. part. of קו § 84. 5, denoting continuous action § 266. 1, and referred by the tense of the accompanying substantive verb to the future § 266. 3. a. קו prep. with Kamets § 231. 4, between waters to waters, the interval beginning with the first and having respect also to the second: our idiom requires and instead of to.

7. קו Kal fut. of the ק guttural and ו verb קו with Vav conv. § 109. 3, § 171. 1, § 172. 4, the accent on the penult § 32. 3. קו the article before an object spoken of before § 245. 1, Methegh in its regular place § 44. קו with the article because it is defined by the accompanying words § 245. 2. קו two prepositions קו § 232 and קו § 237. 2 (1). In computing direction the Hebrews measure from the object spoken of toward themselves or toward the object to which it has relation, which is then indicated by קו to, or may stand without קו, ver. 9. Thus, instead of saying that one object lay to the right of another, they would say that it lay from the right with respect to it. So here a downward direction from the firmament or beneath it is expressed by the phrase 'from under to the firmament'; and an upward direction or above it by from over to it. עַל־מַעְרָב composed of מַעְרָב and עַל. : מַעְרָב adverb § 235. 3 (4). The verse has three accentual clauses § 36. 1. In the subdivision of Zakeph Katon, Pashta is repeated § 39. 4.

The waters above the firmament were by some ancient interpreters understood to imply a literal ocean above the vault of heaven. And unbelieving expositors of modern times have sought to fasten this conception upon the sacred writer. But the figurative expression occurring in the account of the deluge, Gen. 7 : 14, "the windows of heaven were opened," does not warrant the conclusion that he imagined sluices to be really existing in the sky through which the supernal waters poured in time of rain, any more than Malachi, 3 : 10, and the Israelitish lord mentioned 2 Kin. 7 : 1 supposed a literal granary of provisions in the sky to be poured down through these imaginary apertures. That the Hebrews were well aware that the rain came from the clouds, and that the clouds were formed by evaporation, is plain from numerous passages in every part of the Bible. Those who adopt the hypothesis of Laplace find the waters of this verse in the nebulous fluid. The waters beneath the firmament formed this terraqueous globe, both the water and the land of ver. 9; the waters above the firmament formed the heavenly bodies. The ordinary interpretation makes the waters above the firmament to be the clouds, which might be so called as well as the birds can be said, ver. 20, to 'fly over the face of the firmament.'

8. : שְׁנֵי ordinal number § 227. 1, follows the noun with which it agrees § 252. 1, a second day. The several days of creation are spoken of indefinitely, the sixth alone, upon which the whole was completed, being distinguished by the article, ver. 31.

The words 'and God saw that it was good' occur with regard to the work of every day but the second. Whence some have conjectured that they have here been dropped from the text, or, as these words occur twice in the account of the third day, that they have by some accident been misplaced, or that the formula announcing the end of the second day has been transposed from the end of ver. 10, and properly belongs there. The true explanation of the omission appears to be, that the first part of the third day's work is really a continuation of that which was begun on the second, and the divine approbation is withheld until the division and segregation of the waters was complete. The insertion of this clause in ver. 8 by the LXX without authority affords a good illustration of the manner in which various readings have arisen from transcribers or translators paying too much regard to parallel passages.

9. עָמַד Niph. fut. of עָמַד § 169. 1. עָמַד III. from עָמַד root עָמַד to stand § 190. b, signifying that in which one can stand, i. e. place § 191. 3, of common gender though mostly masculine § 197. b, plur. עָמָדִים . עָמַדִּים Niph. fut. of עָמַד , a א guttural § 109. 4 and עָמַד verb § 168, with Methagh § 44. The apocopated future rarely occurs in the Niph'al, and never in the strictly passive species, because it did not accord with Hebrew conceptions to address a command to the object of the action § 97. 2, b. The future expresses simple futurity, leaving the fact of its being spontaneous or constrained and every other modal quality, for which occidental languages employ distinct forms, to be inferred from the circumstances of the case § 263. 1. In both instances in this verse it denotes not only what will occur, but what must and shall take place, and is therefore virtually equivalent to a command. עָמַדִּים adjective II. § 187. 1, intensive from עָמַד dry, used only in the fem. עָמַדִּים § 207. 1, or עָמַדִּים § 205, with the generic article § 245. 5. a, the dry, viz. land.

10. עָרְבָה earth here used in its strict sense of the dry land exclusively, but in ver. 1 the world, embracing land and water, so named from its principal and most important part. עָרְבָה conj. § 234, prep. § 231. 1, and noun III. root עָרַב § 190. b, that which is gathered, collection § 119. 5, in the const. § 215. 2, followed by the material of which it consists § 254. 4, definite without the article § 246. 3. עָרְבָהִים plur. § 207. 2 of עָרַב , I. from an obsolete עָרַב root § 186. 2. c, seas, because distributed into separate basins, though as these all communicate they may be viewed in their totality as one עָרְבָה .

11. עָשָׂה Hiph. apoc. fut. § 97. 2, § 264, of עָשָׂה § 162. 2, governing in its strictest sense its cognate noun עָשָׂה § 271. 3, and with a wider extent of meaning also עָשָׂה and עָשָׂה , which are not in apposition with עָשָׂה , as though the latter were a generic name for all vegetable products and the former were its subdivisions, but they are co-ordinated with it, and constitute together the three great branches of the vegetable kingdom, not according to a scientific classification, but a popular and obvious division, grasses, seed-bearing plants and trees. Methagh § 45. 2. עָשָׂה masc. noun with plur. in עָשָׂה § 200. a, which occurs but once, commonly as here a collective § 201. 1, from root עָשָׂה to be green, accent Y'thibh § 30. 2, § 38. 4. עָשָׂה Hiph. part. of עָשָׂה guttural verb § 123. 3, follows the noun to which it belongs § 249. 1, governs a cognate noun § 271. 3, expresses what is permanent and habitual § 266. 1. עָשָׂה masc. collective § 201. 1, only once found in the plural. עָשָׂה has both an individual and a collective signification, tree and trees, pl. עֵצִים § 207. 1, probably abridged from עָצָה root עָצָה to be firm, hard § 185. d, in the const. § 215. 1, with the following word, which denotes its quality § 254. 6. פְּרִי fruit collective I. 1, root פָּרָה to bear § 184. b, G'ra-shayim § 38. 1. a. עֵצֶיךָ Hholem preceding Sin § 12, Kal act. part. of עָצָה verb § 168. The accent, which is not Y'thibh but Mahpakh, since it stands before Pashta in the subdivision of Zakeph Katon § 30. 2, § 38. 4, is shifted to the penult by § 35. 1. The point in the first letter of the next word is Daghesh-forte conjunctive § 24. a. וְעֵצֶיךָ prep. § 231. 1, וְעֵצֶיךָ I. from an obsolete עָצָה root § 186. 2. b, and pronom. suffix § 220. 1. עֵצֶיךָ תְּלוּהוּ oblique case of the relative pronoun § 74, § 285. 1, formed by appending the suffix to the noun § 221. 5, which is the governing word, whose seed is in it, or the relative might be connected with the suffix of the preposition § 233 and governed by it, in which is its seed. וְעֵצֶיךָ not to be connected with עֵצֶיךָ as descriptive of the tree in distinction from shrubs and grass producing fruit over (or above) the earth, but with עֵצֶיךָ and referring alike to grass, shrubs and trees which were all to be produced upon the earth.

12. עֵצֶיךָ Hiph. fat. of עָצָה § 144. 1, § 145. 2 and עָצָה verb § 162. 2, with Vav conv. § 99. 3, § 166. 4, the accent remaining on the ultimate § 147. 5. עֵצֶיךָ T'lisha Gh'dhola § 38. 8. עֵצֶיךָ 3 pers. suf. with the connecting vowel e § 220. 1. b, sing. in a distributive sense referring to the preceding collective § 275. 6.

13. עֵצֶיךָ ordinal number § 227. 1, § 252. 1.

14. עֵצֶיךָ singular verb preceding a plural subject § 275. 1, or it may be explained by supposing עֵצֶיךָ to partake of the nature of an impersonal verb, 'let there be,' comp. es gebe, qu'il y ait § 275. 1. c. עֵצֶיךָ masc. III. from עָצָה root עָצָה to shine § 190. b, signifies a luminous body § 191. a, thus differing from the noun עָצָה ver. 3, which signifies the element of light; plur. has either עֵצֶיךָ or עֵצֶיךָ § 200. c. Hholem written defectively § 11. 1. a, § 14. עֵצֶיךָ const. of apposition or specification § 254. 3. עֵצֶיךָ prep. expresses design, to, in order to, and requires the construct form of the infinitive § 267. b.

עֵצֶיךָ pret. with Vav conv. § 100. 1, § 265, continuing the command begun with עֵצֶיךָ, in the plural because it comes after its subject § 275. 1. b. עֵצֶיךָ the noun עֵצָה sign of common gender § 197. b, from עָצָה to mark, with the fem. ending ה § 196, which is retained contrary to the ordinary rule before the plural ending § 199. d, for signs, i. e. of whatever the heavenly bodies serve to indicate that is not included in the following particulars, whether ordinarily or in extraordinary cases in which they may become portents of momentous events, Matt. 2 : 2, or of divine

judgments, Joel 2 : 31, Mat. 24 : 29, Luke 21 : 25. There is no need of assuming that for signs and for seasons is put by hendiadys for signs of seasons, nor of making the subsequent words dependent upon אֵת הַחַיִּים signs both in respect to seasons and in respect to days and years. אֵת הַחַיִּים from אָצַר III. אָצַר root אָצַר to appoint § 190. b, appointed time, season, plur. in אֵת, though once it has אֵת. Munahh takes the place of Methegh § 39. 3. b, § 45. 5. : אֵת הַחַיִּים fem. noun אֵת I. 2 from אָחַז root אָחַז to repeat, hence a year, in which the sun and the seasons repeat their course; the fem. ending causes the suppression of the last vowel proper to the form § 185. d, § 209. 1, plur. both in אֵת and אֵת, the latter only in poetry § 200. d.

The works of the first three days have, as has often been remarked, a certain measure of correspondence with those of the last three.

1. Light.

4. Celestial luminaries.

2. Division of the waters by the firmament.

5. Aquatic animals and birds.

3. Dry land and plants.

6. Terrestrial animals and man.

15. אֵת הַחַיִּים Hiph. inf. const. of אָצַר verb אָצַר § 153. 1, having Hholem in the Kal pret. § 82. 1. a (3), with the prep. § 267. b.

16. אֵת הַחַיִּים see ver. 7. אֵת cardinal number § 223. 1, in the construct before its noun § 250. 2 (2), without the article § 251. 4, the two great lights, not two of the great lights, which would be expressed by omitting אֵת before the indefinite object § 270, and inserting the preposition אֵת in its partitive sense after אֵת. אֵת הַחַיִּים adj. I. 2. § 185, with the article after אֵת הַחַיִּים § 249. 1, which it qualifies and with which it agrees in gender, though the termination is different § 200. e. The noun is definite because the objects are well known § 245. 3. They are called 'the great lights,' not from their absolute but their apparent magnitude, or rather from the measure of their effulgence as compared with the stars. אֵת הַחַיִּים . . . אֵת הַחַיִּים absolute or emphatic use of the positive degree § 260. 2 (2). אֵת takes the form אֵת with the pause accents § 65. a, or when declined, אֵת. אֵת הַחַיִּים, אֵת הַחַיִּים § 207. 2. b. אֵת הַחַיִּים III. § 190, root אָשַׁל to rule, meaning dominion, rule § 191. 4, a segholate form in the construct § 214. 1. b, the following noun denoting the object § 254. 9. The preposition expresses design, in order to, for. : אֵת הַחַיִּים II. probably softened from אֵת הַחַיִּים § 57. 1, from the obsolete אֵת root אָשַׁל to wrap up § 187. 1. e, hence globule, star. Methegh § 44.

17. אֵת הַחַיִּים from אָתַן verb אָתַן § 129. 1, gave, put. אֵת sign of the definite object with pron. suf. § 238. 2, § 270, which has less independence than a noun, and usually, as here, follows the verb immediately, instead of coming after the subject § 270. a; see also ver. 22.

18. $\text{בְּשֶׁמֶתְּ$ const. infin. with prep. § 267. b, followed by ב , which is not here used in its temporal sense, in or during, but according to the Hebrew idiom links this verb to its object. The day and night (with the generic article § 245. 5) were the domain in which the sway was exercised. Our idiom requires rule over, which is based on a different conception, that of the elevation of the ruler above the ruled. $\text{מֵתֵּיחַ$ Methegh § 45. 2. a.

No functions are here assigned to the heavenly bodies but those which they perform in relation to the earth, because these were all that the sacred writer was concerned to state. But it does not follow of course that this was the sole aim of their creation. The work of the fourth day need not include the original formation of these bodies; if ver. 1 describes the first act in creation the contrary is explicitly declared. But they then made their appearance in the sky, and their relation to the earth was definitely determined.

20. וַיִּצְרָף command expressed by the simple future § 263. 1, in a person which has no distinct apocopated form § 97. 2. b, governs its cognate $\text{דָּגָוּ$, a collective I. 1. § 183. This is by many understood to mean that fish were made from the element in which they move; which, though not explicitly asserted, is not improbable in itself, and has in its favour the analogy of terrestrial animals, which were made of earth, 2 : 19. נְפֹשׁוֹת I. 1. vital principle, soul, here put for the animated being, common gender though mostly fem. § 197. b, plur. commonly נַפְשׁוֹת , once נַפְשׁוֹת . § 200. c, in apposition with the preceding noun § 253. 1. חַיִּים might be the fem. adj. from חָי living, I. from חָי root חָי to live § 186. c, but the fact that when joined with נְפֹשׁוֹת the former alone receives the article, ver. 21, and also that the compound expression is construed as a masculine, 2 : 19, shows that it is a noun, life, and נְפֹשׁוֹת is in the construct before its attribute § 254. 6. עוֹפְרוֹת collect. fowl, birds § 201. 1, not the object of וַיִּצְרָף , with the relative understood, fowl, which shall fly § 285. 3, a construction which has sometimes been distorted into a contradiction with 2 : 19, but the subject of וַיִּצְרָף Piel fut. of the cognate צָרַף verb צָרַף § 154. 2, to which it is emphatically prefixed § 270. a. עַד over or across the face of the firmament, i. e. the part turned toward us.

21. וַיִּצְרָף plur. of צָרַף § 199. II. intensive from obsolete root צָרַף to stretch § 187. 1, hence that which is greatly extended, the monsters of the sea, whales, etc., so called from their length, the article before that which is well known § 245. 3. Hhirik of the ultimate long § 19. 1. וַיִּצְרָף before an object made definite by construction § 270. b. וַיִּצְרָף fem. Kal act. part. § 205, § 217, with the article § 249. 1, which may be resolved into the relative with the verb that creep or move.

כַּנְפֵי־צִוְיָ plur. noun with 3 masc. plur. suffix § 220. 2. b, referring to nouns of different genders § 276. 3. אָרְיָ before -כַּנְפֵי § 270. c, shortened from כַּנְפֵי by Makkeph § 43. חָפָה I. 2, root חָפַף, hence a covering, a wing, fem. as double organs usually are § 197. a, occurs in the dual § 203. 1, and plur. in חֵי § 217, which is used in a different sense § 203. a, expresses the quality of the preceding construct § 254. g, fowl of wing, i. e. winged fowl.

22. פָּקַדְתָּ Piel fut. of פָּקַד Gutt. verb § 116. 4, § 121. 1, with Vav conv. § 99. 3. a, no Daghesth lene in פ since the preceding Sh'va is vocal § 25, primarily to kneel, thence to bless. אֶל־כַּנְפֵי prep. with Tsere § 231. 3. a, so as to say, i. e. in saying. אֶל־כַּנְפֵי Kal imper. of פָּקַד, פָּקַד § 169. 1. כַּנְפֵי Kal apoc. fut. § 171. 1, Hhiirik short though accented § 19. 1, subject emphatically prefixed.

24. אֶרֶץ see ver. 12, אֶרֶץ 3 fem. sing. suffix § 72, § 220. 1, Mappik § 26. חֵי I. 2, with fem. ending, root חָיָה to be dumb, applied chiefly to the larger quadrupeds, and especially to the domestic animals, beast, cattle, const. חַיֵּי, plur. חַיֵּי, const. חַיֵּי. חַיֵּי I. 1, collective § 201. 1. חַיֵּי־חַיֵּי construct of חַיֵּי, I. § 186. c, with fem. ending § 207. 2, from חָיָה root חָיָה to live, hence living thing, beast, with i paragoric § 218. The article is constantly omitted from חַיֵּי when preceded by this archaic or poetic form, perhaps by § 247, though when the ordinary form is used, the phrase is חַיֵּי־חַיֵּי, see ver. 25, beasts of the earth, i. e. wild beasts. Methegh § 45. 2. Daghesth forte omitted, and no Daghesth lene in ח § 25.

25. אֶרֶץ־אֶרֶץ I. 2, with fem. ending, root אָרַץ to be red, hence the ground, so called from the colour of the soil.

26. אֶל־כַּנְפֵי Kal fut. of אָרַץ § 109, § 168, 1 pers. plural, which is not to be explained as a royal style of speech, nor as associating the angels with God, for they took no part in man's creation, nor a plural of majesty which has no application to verbs, but as one of those indications of the plurality in unity in the divine Being which are repeatedly met with in the Old Testament, and which must be regarded as foreshadowings of the doctrine of the Trinity § 275. 3. a. The future tense expresses the divine determination, we will make § 263. 1, or, as the paragoric future rarely has a distinct form in אֶל־ verbs § 172. 3, and may therefore be regarded as included under the simple future, it may have the cohortative sense, let us make. אֶל־כַּנְפֵי generic name man, has no construct or plural § 201. 1. אֶל־כַּנְפֵי from אָרַץ I. 1, § 183, root אָרַץ to be dark, hence shadow, and, as this resembles the object by which it is cast, image, with 1 plur. suf. § 220. 1, § 221. 5, and prep. אֶל in § 231. 1, the model being conceived of as enclosing the copy, every line of which is directed by and drawn in the corresponding line of the former. בְּרִמְיָהוּ , I. 1, with fem. ending § 184. b, § 198. a (4), from רָמָה root רָמַה to be like, hence likeness, not here distinguishable in its sense from the preceding word, to which it is added for the sake of emphasis, comp. § 280. 3. a. That there is no special significance in the change of prepositions appears from their being reversed in the same phrase, 5 : 3. מִן־הָאָרֶץ from הָאָרֶץ § 169. 1, plural because referring to the collective אֲרָצוֹת § 275. 2, followed by $\text{בַּ$ which indicates the territory in which the dominion is exercised. בְּהָרְיָהוּ prep. § 231. 2, const. § 214. 1, § 216. 1, of the fem. collective noun הָרָה § 198, I. 2, § 185. d, from root רָחַה to increase, hence rush, from their rapid multiplication.

27. אָס might be taken distributively in the sense of the plural § 275. 6, but more probably the singular pronoun contains an allusion to the fact that Adam was first created alone, 2 : 20. אֲסֵם pronoun referring to both genders put in the masculine § 276. 3.

28. אָסְרָהוּ , וַיִּשְׁאָרְהוּ , וַיִּשְׁאָרְהוּ followed by לְ or לָאֵס is to speak to, more rarely to speak of or in reference to. וַיִּשְׁאָרְהוּ conjunction § 234, Kal imper. of שָׁרַה § 84. 4, and pronominal suffix § 101; ו written defectively § 11. 1. a, § 14.

29. וַיִּתֵּן from נָתַן § 130. 1, I have given for I hereby give, in conformity with a purpose already formed § 262. 1. b. וַיִּתֵּן־לָהֶם § 270. c. וַיִּתֵּן־לָהֶם § 245. 2. וַיִּתֵּן־לָהֶם § 74, § 285. 1. וַיִּתֵּן־לָהֶם singular referring formally to the nearest collective subject § 276. 1, or taken distributively § 275. 6, with לָהֶם be to you, i. e. you shall have it, be for food, i. e. answer for, become.

30. וַיִּתֵּן־לָהֶם § 270. c, supply וַיִּתֵּן־לָהֶם . וַיִּתֵּן־לָהֶם const. of designation § 254. 3, greenness of herb, i. e. green herb.

31. וַיִּתֵּן־לָהֶם past in relation to another past, i. e. pluperfect § 262. 1. וַיִּתֵּן־לָהֶם primarily a noun, might, then with an adverbial sense, mightily, very § 235. 3 (1), follows the word which it qualifies § 274. 1. וַיִּתֵּן־לָהֶם article omitted before the noun § 249. 1. c.

CHAPTER II.

1. וַיִּבְרָא Pual fut. of בָּרָא § 169. 1, 3 m. pl. with a compound subject § 276. 1. Daghesh forte omitted from ו , Sh'va remaining vocal § 25, § 99. 3. וַיִּבְרָא I. 2, § 185. 1, m. and f., pl. in וַיִּבְרָא § 200. a, from בָּרָא to go forth to war, masc. pl. suf. referring to nouns of different gender § 276. 3. The phrase 'host of heaven' occurs repeatedly both of celestial beings 1 Kin. 22 : 19 and celestial bodies Deut. 4 : 19. The host of the earth, an expression occurring only in this one passage prior to the derangement of the fall, denotes its inhabitants and all that it contains. They are called 'a host' from their vast numbers and orderly array, and possibly also because they are under God's command and fighting against the kingdom of evil.

2. בְּעָרְבָה ended, i. e. by discontinuing, not by performing the concluding portion, so that there is no need either of supposing that part of the work of creation was performed on the seventh day, or of changing 'seventh' to 'sixth' to evade the fancied difficulty. $\text{הַיּוֹם הַשְּׁבִיעִי}$ ordinal number § 227. 1, its position and agreement § 251. 1, § 249. 1. בְּעָרְבָה from עָרַב , III., root עָרַב to send, hence a service upon which one is sent, work, in const. בְּעָרְבָה § 214. 1. b, with suf. § 221. 2. a. עָרַב in the sense of the pluperfect § 262. 1.

3. בְּבָרָכָה blessed, i. e. conferred upon it special honour and distinction, and made it fruitful of blessing. $\text{אֵת הַיּוֹם הַשְּׁבִיעִי}$ the article omitted from the noun in a definite phrase § 249. 1. c, or else the noun is in the construct before its adjective § 252. 2, § 254. 6. b. Comp. $\text{הַיּוֹם הַשְּׁבִיעִי}$ Ezr. 7 : 8. קִדְּשׁוֹת sanctified, i. e. made sacred, set apart to a sacred use. The natural interpretation of the language is that this was done at the time of creation, and not ages afterwards at the giving of the law upon Sinai. This too agrees with the traces of weeks, Gen. 7 : 4, 8 : 10, 17 : 12, 50 : 10, and the sacredness of the number seven in the patriarchal age, Gen. 21 : 28 etc., as well as among several ancient nations, with the observance of the Sabbath in Israel before they came to Sinai, Ex. 16 : 23, etc. and with the exhortation in the fourth commandment to remember the Sabbath day as though it were an institution with which they were already acquainted and not then introduced for the first time. $\text{וַיֵּצְאֵהוּ אֱלֹהִים$ sign of definite object with suf. § 238. 2, § 270. $\text{וַיֵּצְאֵהוּ אֱלֹהִים}$ created so as to make, i. e. created not in its elements only, but so as to give it its completed form and full accomplishment, or the first verb may qualify the second § 269. a, made in a creative manner, or by creation.

4. $\text{וַיֵּצְאֵהוּ אֱלֹהִים}$ demonstrative § 73. 1, predicate § 259. 2, referring either to what precedes, Gen. 10 : 5, 20, 31, 32, or to what follows, Gen. 10 : 1. This verse may be regarded as a formal conclusion of the foregoing narrative of the creation, these are the generations, i. e. such was the origin of the heavens and the earth. But it seems better to adopt the Jewish division of the text, and make it the heading of the ensuing section, 2 : 4—4 : 26 ; for (1) A like phrase occurs eleven times in Genesis, and invariably as the heading of successive portions of the book, e. g. 5 : 1, 6 : 9, 10 : 1 etc. (2) These titles in every other instance introduce an account, not of the ancestry of the persons named in them. but of their descendants and family history ; hence the generations (דֹּרֹתָם III. f. pl.

const. from בָּרָא root בִּרְרָ to bring forth § 190. b) of the heavens and the earth record not how they came into being, but the origin and history of man who sprang from them or was formed out of them. In strictness indeed it was from the earth alone that man was made, but the heavens and the earth form one whole, the common theatre of the history now to be unfolded. For that reason the creation of both was described together, 1 : 1 etc. and now follow their generations or the further developments upon the scene thus prepared. This first stage of human history embraces a more minute account of the creation and original state of man, 2 : 4—25, as preliminary to ch. 3, the fall, the sequel of which is ch. 4, the sundering of the race into two opposite branches, and the initiation of the struggle foreshadowed, 3 : 15, between the seed of the woman and the seed of the serpent.

בְּיִצְרָאן prep. בְּ with Niph. inf. const. of יָצַר § 267. b, and 3 m. pl. suf. § 103. a, § 276. 3, here representing the subject § 102. 3, in their being created, i. e. when they were created. The marginal note is הָיָה קָטָן (fem. of the Chaldee adj. קָטָן § 196. d) small He § 4. a, which the Rabbins explain as a mystic reference to the future diminishing and passing away of the material creation, or as suggestive of the anagram בְּיִצְרָאן in Abraham, for whom, together with his seed, the universe was created, and which some critics have doubtfully conjectured to indicate a reading with ה omitted § 91. b. בַּיּוֹם in the day indefinitely for at the time of, Lev. 14 : 57, 2 Sam. 23 : 20; there is no implication, as some have imagined, at variance with ch. 1, that the creation occupied but one day. This may be parallel to and explanatory of the preceding בְּיִצְרָאן , comp. Num. 3 : 1, or it may be the beginning of a new sentence which is continued in ver. 5, comp. 5 : 1. וַיִּבְרָא const. before its subject יְהוָה הָיָה and governing $\text{וַיִּצְרָאן וְיָצַר$ as its object § 254. 9. b. יְהוָה Jehovah III. § 192. 1, with the vowels of יְהוָה Lord § 47, from the root הָיָה = יְהוָה to be, denoting not a future quality, he who will become, i. e. will unfold or reveal himself hereafter, or he who will be, i. e. who is to come, but, as proper names so formed invariably do, a permanent essential characteristic, he who is, who has existence in its fullest and highest sense, the self-existent and hence eternal and unchangeable, paraphrased Rev. 1 : 4, 8, ‘which is and which was and which is to come,’ whence the conclusion has sometimes been erroneously drawn that יְהוָה is compounded of the future יְהוָה , the participle הָיָה and the preterite הָיָה . Hitherto God has been called exclusively יְהוָה ; from this verse to the end of ch. 3 he is prevaillingly called יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ , and in ch. 4 יְהוָה י. e. . This interchange, which is too remarkable to be accidental, and which though less conspicuous is yet perceptible in the rest of Genesis, gave rise to the critical hypothesis that the sections using different divine names have proceeded from different authors, one being distinguished by his preference for אֱלֹהִים and the other by his preference for יהוה. But this hypothesis, notwithstanding the ingenuity with which it has been constructed, fails to account for the very unusual combination אֱלֹהֵי יְהוָה, which is found in but one other passage in the Pentateuch, Ex. 9 : 30, and but rarely in the rest of the Bible, and also for the frequent occurrence of one divine name in the midst of a section characterized mainly by the other. This shows that the phenomenon in question has not arisen from an unconscious peculiarity of style in different writers, but is due to the intelligent selection of the appropriate word as determined by the thought and the connection. Although these names are in a multitude of cases used indiscriminately, as 'God' and 'Lord' are in English, and it would be vain to seek a reason in every case why one is employed rather than the other, there is a real distinction between them, which is sometimes observed. Thus in the opening chapters of Genesis אֱלֹהִים, which is the more general name of God, is employed in the account of the creation; but in that of the fall, with its promise of redemption, from which all the subsequent revelations of mercy are unfolded, the covenant name יהוה is used, which specially belongs to him as the God of revelation and of grace. In the first step of the transition from one to the other both names are combined to indicate their identity; יהוה is no other than אֱלֹהִים, the God of the covenant is the same with the God of creation. The exceptional use of אֱלֹהֵי in 3 : 1. 3. 5 is because the serpent is either speaking or addressed, where the covenant name of God would be as inappropriate as in language uttered by idolatrous Gentiles or directed to them, Jud. 3 : 20, comp. ver. 28, 1 Sam. 4 : 7. 8, 30 : 15, 1 Kin. 20 : 23, comp. ver. 28. Again, in 4 : 25 Eve speaks of אֱלֹהִים because she has respect to God as working in nature, whereas in 4 : 1 it is יהוה, who had granted her a pledge of the promised redemption.

אֶרֶץ וְשָׁמַיִם earth, named before heaven, as in but one other passage, Ps. 148 : 13, as some suppose, to indicate the order of their formation, 1 : 9—19, the earth on the third day and the heavenly bodies on the fourth; but more probably because the earth was chiefly concerned in the following narration. This inversion of the accustomed order imparts to the expression a sort of poetic character, whence the omission of the article § 247.

5. וְשָׁמַיִם. Three constructions are possible: (1) שָׁמַיִם may be the object of וְשָׁמַיִם, in ver. 4, comp. Ex. 12 : 34; so the LXX, Vulg. and Eng. Ver. (2) It may be the subject of וְשָׁמַיִם and the beginning of a new sentence, and no § 256. c, shrub of the field was yet in the earth, comp. 1 Sam. 3 : 3. 7. (3) The sentence may begin with וְיָרֵחַ and וְיָ simply form the connection with this statement of time § 287. 3, comp. Gen. 19 : 4, in the day etc. then no shrub etc. This last construction seems to be the best. וְהָאֲדָמָה I. 2, from an obsolete אָדָם root § 185. d; its repeated occurrence in ch. 2 and 3, and that even in combinations in which אֲדָמָה is found in ch. 1, e. g. $\text{וְהָאֲדָמָה הָיְתָה}$ 2 : 19. 20, 3 : 1. 14, has been perverted into an argument for diversity of authorship. The simple explanation is that אֲדָמָה denotes earth in contrast with heaven, and land in contrast with water. But throughout this section there is a tacit opposition between the garden, or the space enclosed for man's primeval habitation, and the open space without, or the field. וְהָאֲדָמָה followed by the future referring to past time § 263. 1. b, accent Y'thibh § 30. 2. בְּיָמָיו because assigns a double reason for the non-existence of vegetation at the time spoken of, the lack of rain to prepare the ground for its production, as well as of man for whose use it was designed. The period referred to is before the creation of plants and trees upon the third day, or, in the judgment of others, a vegetation suited to the wants of terrestrial animals may first have been brought into being on the sixth day, prior to their creation and that of man. It is next stated how these two requisites were supplied. in ver. 6 rain, in ver. 7 man. Every thing to the end of this chapter is in the strictest sense preliminary to the history of the fall. Details necessary to acquaint us with the situation, vs. 5-17, and the actors, vs. 18-25, which, though falling within the period covered by chap. 1, would have been unsuited to its majesty and would have marred its symmetry, were reserved for this place. וְהָאֲדָמָה in the sense of the pluperfect § 262. 1. וְהָיָה § 236, in the absolute state § 258. b.

6. וְהָיָה conj. וְ , not adversative but, as though it introduced a substitute for the missing rain, but copulative and, proceeding to show how it was actually supplied § 287. 1 ; וְהָיָה I. 2, from an obsolete וָיָה root § 186. c, vapour, which rising from the earth was condensed into rain and watered the ground. וְהָיָה , וְהָיָה guttural § 109, and וְהָיָה verb § 168, future denoting repetition § 263. 4 ; the following pret. with Vav conv. וְהָיָה § 100. 1, has a like sense § 265.

7. וְהָיָה from וָיָה verb § 144. 2, with a double object § 273. 3. Vav conv. draws back the accent and changes Pattahh to Seghol § 147. 5 ; the postpositive accent § 30. 1 is repeated in some editions. In 1 : 27, where the immediate exercise of divine power in the creation of man was to be made prominent, וְהָיָה was employed ; here the thought is directed to the material of which he was made, and the proper word is וְהָיָה to form, used of a potter moulding vessels of clay. וְהָיָה § 129. 1 and ב guttural § 123. 1. $\text{וַיִּשְׁׁרַח$ prep. and noun $\text{חַי$ I. 1. § 184. ב (ח and ש roots) by contraction for חַיִּים § 54. 2 from חָנַף to breathe, hence breather, nose, here in the dual nostrils, with Daghesh-forte § 207. 2, and 3 m. s. suf. § 220. 2. וַיִּחְיֶה I. with fem. ending § 198. א (2), const. before its quality § 254. 6, which is expressed by the abstract חַיִּים (= חַיָּה) life § 201. 1. א . $\text{וְ$. . . וַיִּחְיֶה was to or unto, the preposition implying a change of state or condition, hence became, see 1 : 14. 29.

8. וַיִּצְרַח , ב § 129. 1 and ב guttural § 123. 1. It has been charged that ch. 2 contradicts ch. 1 in making the creation of man prior to that of plants. But (1) the plants and trees here spoken of are those of the garden of Eden, not those of the earth generally. (2) The priority accorded to man, even as respects this garden, lies in the order of thought rather than in the succession of time. To prepare the way for an account of the garden of Eden, the writer, ver. 5, reverts to the time when there were yet no plants in the earth. As these, and especially the trees of Eden, which he has chiefly in mind, were for the sake of man, he speaks, ver. 7, of his creation, then, ver. 8, of planting the garden and putting man in it, then, ver. 9, in order to reach the idea that it was not only an abode but a place of trial, of the trees which were made to grow there, and finally, ver. 15, of man's being placed there to dress and to keep it. That this narration, though linked throughout by futures with Vav conversive, does not aim at strict chronological succession, is obvious, since the act of placing man in the garden could not both have preceded and followed the production of the trees. And if the succession is that of the association of ideas rather than of chronology, then the circumstance that the formation of man is named before the planting of the garden, does not prove that it preceded it in actual fact. It is indeed much more natural to assume that the contrary was the real order of occurrence. $\text{וַיִּגְן$ I. § 186. c , from גָּן root וַיִּגְן to protect, hence a place protected, securely fenced about, a garden. וַיִּצְרַח this orthography is appropriated exclusively to Eden, the abode of our first parents. The Eden of later times, 2 Kin. 19 : 12, is גִּן־עֵדֶן . As the Hebrews estimated direction by measuring from the object spoken of and not toward it, as we are accustomed to do, see on מִמְּזֵרָה 1 : 7, their from east is equivalent to our eastward, i. e. from the rest of the land of Eden, and consequently in the eastern part of the land. וַיִּצְרַח , ב verb § 153. 5. As וַיִּצְרַח also has a temporal sense, antiquity, this verse gave rise to the legend that paradise was older than the world, 2 Esdras 3 : 6.

9. וַיִּחְיֶה Vav conv. compresses Hhirik in Hiph. fut. to Tseré § 99. 3, which in ב gutt. verbs becomes Pattahh § 123. 2, § 126. 1. וַיִּחְיֶה with simple Sh'va § 112. 5, the participle expressing not only a constant experience but a permanent quality, not merely desired but desirable § 266. 1. $\text{לִּמְצֹאֵי הַיָּדָע}$ III. § 190, from רָאָה to see, hence that which is seen § 191. 5, as to appearance. $\text{לִּמְצֹאֵי הַכֹּחַ$ III. from כָּאָחַז to eat, for food. $\text{וְהָיָה$ as this is often a collective, some have been of opinion that there was not only one but many trees of life and trees of knowledge; the pronoun referring to the latter, however, is always in the singular, ver. 17, 3 : 3, etc. The article is prefixed to the following word הַיָּדָע § 246. 3, § 256, to render וְהָיָה definite. For the same reason וְהָיָה Kal const. inf. of יָדָע § 144. 3, § 148. 2, and יָדָע gutt. verb § 123, receives the article contrary to the general rule § 245. 5. b, comp. 1 Kin. 10 : 19. : וְהָיָה הָעֵץ are the direct object of the verb, the tree of knowing good and evil. The rhetorical character of the accents is exemplified in the pause made upon the name of this fatal tree and the deliberate manner in which it is to be pronounced, וְהָיָה though in the close connection of the construct state having Zakeph Gadhol, and וְהָיָה having Tiphhha.

10. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ I. 2. from וְהָרָה to flow, subject preceding the verb in a descriptive clause, see on וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ 1 : 2. $\text{וְהָיָה$ time of participle § 266. 3. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ , וְהָיָה § 168, prep. expressing the design or the result, in order to or so as to. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ fut. because consequent to the preceding; the river waters the garden and will be divided, i. e. is afterwards divided § 263. 5. a. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ pret. with Vav conv. assimilated in sense to preceding future § 265, with וְהָיָה be unto, i. e. become, ver. 7. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ cardinal § 223. 1, peculiarity of form § 223. 2, and construction § 250. 2, § 251. : וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ I. 1. § 207. 1. f.

11. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ I. 2. abbreviated from obsolete וְהָיָה root § 185. d. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ the one, where we would use the ordinal number, because in a series or enumeration the first is counted one. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ IV. § 193, from וְהָיָה to overflow, like most other objects in antediluvian geography of doubtful if not impossible identification. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ the one compassing § 259. b, not necessarily making a complete circuit of the land, but going around one side of it, or going about tortuously through it. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ I. 2. with fem. ending, perhaps from וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ sand (root וְהָיָה to whirl about), the sandy region, Havilah, with the article on account of its original appellative sense § 246. 1. a. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ § 74. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ the well known metal gold § 245. 5 (see note c); for the same reason in ver. 12 וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ § 195. 1 and וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ .

12. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ § 16. 3. b, § 234. a. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ remote demonstrative § 71. a (3), § 73. 3, § 47, with the article § 249. 2. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ predicate follows the subject in a descriptive sentence § 259. a.

13. וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ IV. from וְהָיָה to burst forth. : וְהָיָה הָרֵךְ the land of Cush, the region settled by the descendants of Cush, the son of Ham, Gen. 10 : 6, though it is uncertain which portion of that vast territory is here designated by this name.

14. לְקִיָּסָא notwithstanding its seeming diversity is really a modification of the name Tigris by interchanging smooth and middle mutes and liquids ($alkl = tgr$) and prefixing a guttural. מִצְרַיִם § 208. 2. a, either east of, when אַשּׁוּרָא Assyria must be restricted to Mesopotamia, or in front of, i. e. between the region where Moses was and Assyria, which will then denote the empire so called exclusive of Mesopotamia. מִצְרַיִם may be used adverbially or may be the direct object of הָלַךְ § 271. 2. $\text{וַיֵּשְׁבֵהוּ$ copula § 258. 2. $\text{בְּנַחַל פְּרָתַיִם}$ Euphrates, which was too familiar to need further description.

15. וַיִּשְׁמַע § 132. 2. $\text{וַיִּשְׁמַעְהוּ$ from שָׁמַע § 160. 1, with 3 m. s. suf. § 101. 2. $\text{וַיִּשְׁמַעְהוּ$ $\text{וַיִּשְׁמַעְהוּ$ Kal inf. const. with suf. § 101. 3, no Daghesh lene in ו § 22. a (1), both the positive and the negative side of his task.

16. וַיִּצַּח Piel fut. of צָחַח § 171. 1, here followed by עָלַי , because the command is regarded as something laid upon the man, elsewhere occasionally by לְךָ or לְיָדְךָ before the person to whom it is directed: more frequently the person commanded is, as in English, the direct object of the verb. The language of the command is introduced by $\text{כִּי־כֵן־אָמַרְתִּי}$ so as to say. וַיִּצַּח § 87, § 282. וַיִּצַּח־לְךָ § 110. 3, § 111. 2. a, the future permissive § 263. 1.

17. וַיִּצַּח־לְךָ , and stands, even in adversative clauses, where our idiom requires but § 287. 1. וַיִּצַּח־לְךָ § 233 (see note a) repeats for greater clearness the idea of וַיִּצַּח־לְךָ § 281. וַיִּצַּח־לְךָ for assigns the reason. וַיִּצַּח־לְךָ § 106. a, no Daghesh lene § 22. a (6). וַיִּצַּח־לְךָ § 153. emphatic infin. § 282; the phrase for the penalty of death in the laws of Moses is modelled after this, though as it was to be executed by man it is varied by the substitution of the Hophal for the Kal, e. g. Ex. 19 : 12, וַיִּצַּח־לְךָ he shall be put to death.

18. וַיִּצַּח־לְךָ § 177. 1, const. before וַיִּצַּח־לְךָ and subject of sentence § 242. b, with a masc. predicate adj. § 275. 1, or as infinitives even when they have a fem. ending regularly take a masc. adj. it may be explained as a substitute for the neuter § 196. a. וַיִּצַּח־לְךָ prep. לְ to, which when motion is not implied becomes at or in, as in Lat. at, Gr. eis; וַיִּצַּח I. from עָצַח root עָצַח to separate § 186. c, with suf. § 221. 6, in his separation, i. e. alone. וַיִּצַּח־לְךָ Dag. conj. § 24. a. וַיִּצַּח־לְךָ abstract for concrete, help for helper. וַיִּצַּח־לְךָ his counterpart, corresponding to him, lit. as over against him.

19. וַיִּצַּח־לְךָ § 147. 1 and 4, see ver. 7. The alleged discrepancy between this account and ch. 1 in respect to the time and the occasion of creating the inferior animals is purely imaginary. It is not here declared that they were created after man and for the purpose of providing a help meet for him. To suppose them made for this purpose is to charge God with failure in his first attempts, which the writer surely cannot have intended to do. And the future with Vav conv. does not always imply strict succession of time, see on ver. 8, also Gen. 12 : 1, comp. 11 : 32. Especially where two such verbs are connected as here $\text{וַיִּבְרָא} \dots \text{וַיִּבְרָא}$, the progress not infrequently lies wholly in the second, to which the first is in fact, though not in form, subordinate, the phrase being really equivalent to 'he brought the animals which he had formed etc.' So Deut. 31 : 9, 'And Moses wrote this law and delivered it,' can only mean 'he delivered this law which he had written.' וַיִּבְרָא § 160. 3, § 166. 4, object omitted because sufficiently plain from the connection, comp. § 243. 1. וַיִּבְרָא § 168. וַיִּבְרָא § 75. 1. וַיִּבְרָא fut. relative to a preceding past, would call § 263. 1, government see on וַיִּבְרָא 1 : 5. וַיִּבְרָא sing. in distributive sense § 275. 6, masc. § 276. 3. וַיִּבְרָא in apposition with וַיִּבְרָא § 253. 1. וַיִּבְרָא copula, for which our idiom requires the substantive verb was § 258. 2.

20. וַיִּבְרָא here a proper noun, and therefore without the article § 246. 1.

21. וַיִּבְרָא § 129. 1, § 99. 3, that which is divinely sent is represented as descending from above. וַיִּבְרָא III. § 192. a, from וַיִּבְרָא to be in a deep sleep denotes a deep and in most instances a supernatural sleep. וַיִּבְרָא § 223. 1. a. וַיִּבְרָא 3 f. s. suf. with ו epenthetic, a form used mostly with verbs § 238. 1. b, § 101. 2, § 105. b, under, then in place of, instead of.

22. וַיִּבְרָא § 171. 1. וַיִּבְרָא fem. of וַיִּבְרָא § 207. 2 (see note e), § 214. 1. b, root וַיִּבְרָא to be feeble, sickly, the proper terms for the male and female of the human species, while וַיִּבְרָא and וַיִּבְרָא are common to them with other animals, and are therefore used, 1 : 27, when man is contemplated as the head of the animate creation. וַיִּבְרָא § 153. 1, § 157. 3, § 160. 3.

23. וַיִּבְרָא demonstrative § 73. 1. וַיִּבְרָא § 245. 3. b, from וַיִּבְרָא to beat, transferred to marking time. וַיִּבְרָא from וַיִּבְרָא to be strong. וַיִּבְרָא § 232, וַיִּבְרָא like vir, ἀνὴρ, denotes a man as distinguished from a woman, or in the married relation a husband as opposed to the wife; וַיִּבְרָא like homo, ἄνθρωπος, is the generic name embracing both sexes, and is used, particularly with the article, in a collective sense of mankind, or individually of Adam, the progenitor of the race. When contrasted with each other, וַיִּבְרָא denotes an ordinary man, or one of low rank, while וַיִּבְרָא is a man par excellence, one distinguished by manly qualities or high position. Both may have the sense of indefinite pronouns, a man, i. e. some one, any one, each. וַיִּבְרָא Methegh § 45. 2, compound Sh'va § 16. 3. b, Daghesh forte omitted § 25.

24. The language of Adam continued, or a remark of the writer. על-זֶה upon, or, since the effect rests upon its cause, because of, on account of so, i. e. therefore. מַכְּכֶם Makkeph § 43, § 88 (3 m.). אָרְבֵי § 220. 1. c. נִבְרַח cleave, followed by ׀ in denoting combination, in union with, elsewhere by לְ or לָּ to, or in the sense of ardent pursuit by אַחֲרָי after.

25. נִיחָוּ § 276. 3. שְׁנֵיהֶם they two § 250. 2. a, not two of them, which would require the insertion of the prep. אִתּוֹ, comp. מִצְּרֵי־עָרֵי־יִשְׂרָאֵל ver. 21. צָרָה pl. of צָרָה § 207. 2. c, by Gesenius derived from צָרָה, but as this verb has a different sense, it is perhaps better to regard it as a shortened form of צָרָה IV. from עָרָה to be naked § 193. c. The marginal note is דָּגַשׁ אַחֲרֵי שְׁנֵיהֶם Daghesh after Shurek, which is here a short vowel § 14. a, § 19. 1. הִתְבַּשְׂטִיטִי § 154. 2, § 96. b, fut. since it follows from the preceding, were not ashamed in consequence § 263. 5. a.

CHAPTER III.

1. הִתְקַחֵם onomatopoeic root תִּקַח to hiss, article § 245. 3, subject stands first in a descriptive sentence. צָרוּם I. 2, from צָרָה to be cunning, predicate § 259. 2, superlative § 260. 2 (1). אֵלֶּיךָ אֲנִי also that as an exclamation, It is then true also that God has said! or as a question, though without the usual sign of interrogation § 284, Is it true also that etc.? The accession implied in אֵלֶּיךָ is to whatever would be naturally understood. In addition to everything else has he also or even said? אֵלֶּיךָ אֲנִי, see on אֵלֶּיךָ אֲנִי 2 : 4. מִכָּל . . . מִכָּל might be translated not from any § 256. c, as though the tempter purposely exaggerated the rigour of the prohibition; this is the usual sense when כָּל is indefinite, but as it is here definite by construction it seems better to read not from all, i. e. from a part only, comp. Num. 23 : 13.

2. תִּבְרַח, the future is permissive § 263. 1.

3. תִּבְרַח dependent upon תִּבְרַח and repeated in תִּבְרַח; not upon תִּבְרַח, as the Eng. Ver. might be understood. מִן תִּבְרַח § 129. 1, commonly followed by ׀ (as are also other verbs of sense, e. g. smell, hearing, and sight, though verbs of sight are modified in meaning by this construction, see on 1 : 4), indicating the intimate conjunction of the sense with its object; or if the prep. be taken in the partitive sense which it likewise has, it will resemble the Greek construction of this same class of verbs with the partitive genitive, 'to touch in a thing,' i. e. somewhere within its entire extent as opposed to uniform contact throughout. The verb is also sometimes followed by לָּ to, עַד unto, עַל upon, or by the direct object § 272. 2. תִּבְרַח־יָרֵךְ § 88 (2 and 3 m. pl.), paragogic Nun causing the rejection of Kamets § 157. 3.

4. לֹא-יִשְׁמַע emphatic infin. § 282 ; the negative adverb is also rendered prominent by being prefixed to the whole phrase, instead of standing in its customary place between the infinitive and the finite verb.

5. וַיִּשְׁמַע confirmatory, for. וַיִּשְׁמַע declarative, that. וַיִּשְׁמַע , Vav connects with וַיִּשְׁמַע § 287. 3, by which the action is referred to the future § 265. b, plural verb with dual subject § 278. וַיִּשְׁמַע § 231. 3. a. וַיִּשְׁמַע may agree with the preceding noun § 275. 3. a, or better perhaps with the subject of the sentence § 276. 3, const. before its object § 254. 9. b.

6. וַיִּשְׁמַע § 172. 4. וַיִּשְׁמַע III. f. from וַיִּשְׁמַע to long for, hence a desire, delight. וַיִּשְׁמַע , observe the article. וַיִּשְׁמַע Gesen. to behold, others, as Eng. Ver. to make wise. וַיִּשְׁמַע § 221. 5. c. וַיִּשְׁמַע § 35. 2.

7. וַיִּשְׁמַע IV. root עָרַב to be naked § 193. c, see on 2 : 25, nakednesses, abst. noun for adj. naked § 254. 6. a. וַיִּשְׁמַע I. 2, root עָרַב to ascend, grow up. וַיִּשְׁמַע fig-tree, from its spreading, root עָרַב to extend. וַיִּשְׁמַע , the simple pronoun used as a reflexive, for themselves. וַיִּשְׁמַע , root עָרַב to gird.

8. וַיִּשְׁמַע to hear, followed by the direct object or by וַיִּשְׁמַע , see on וַיִּשְׁמַע ver. 3 ; with וַיִּשְׁמַע or וַיִּשְׁמַע it means to hearken to. וַיִּשְׁמַע the kindred verb is obsolete in Heb. though in use in Arabic, to say, here not voice but sound, since וַיִּשְׁמַע (to go for one's self § 80. 1 (2), hence to walk about, comp. Fr. se promener) being without the article is a predicate and not a qualifying participle § 259. 2. It was consequently the noise of the walking which was heard, not the voice of God as he was walking. The subject with its predicate is subordinated to וַיִּשְׁמַע comp. 1 Kin. 14 : 6, just as it might be to וַיִּשְׁמַע alone § 273. 4. וַיִּשְׁמַע at (see on וַיִּשְׁמַע 2 : 18) the wind or breeze of the day, i. e. toward evening. וַיִּשְׁמַע § 276. 1. וַיִּשְׁמַע from the face or presence of, generally used before persons as וַיִּשְׁמַע before things.

9. וַיִּשְׁמַע § 236. 3, § 104. b, § 105. b.

10. וַיִּשְׁמַע , object emphatically prefixed § 270. a. וַיִּשְׁמַע , Niphal reflexive § 77. 2.

11. וַיִּשְׁמַע § 75. 1. וַיִּשְׁמַע § 129. 1, properly signifies 'to cause to be before (prep. וַיִּשְׁמַע) any one,' i. e. to show, tell, followed by וַיִּשְׁמַע or less frequently the direct object of the person. וַיִּשְׁמַע § 230. 1. וַיִּשְׁמַע . . . וַיִּשְׁמַע , relative governed by וַיִּשְׁמַע § 74, § 285. 1. וַיִּשְׁמַע § 169. 2, commonly followed by the direct object of the person, more rarely by וַיִּשְׁמַע upon, וַיִּשְׁמַע unto, or וַיִּשְׁמַע to, the command being conceived of as laid upon a person or directed to him. וַיִּשְׁמַע , negative adverb formed by adding paragogic וַיִּשְׁמַע § 61. 6. a, to the obsolete וַיִּשְׁמַע from וַיִּשְׁמַע to waste away, be reduced to nothing ; this is always used instead of וַיִּשְׁמַע before the infin. with וַיִּשְׁמַע .

12. וַיִּשְׁמַע § 130. 1, § 86. b (2 m. s.). וַיִּשְׁמַע = וַיִּשְׁמַע , this prolonged form of the prep. עַל occurs only before 1 sing. suffix. הָיָה § 71. a (3), § 281 : עַל־הָיָה § 111. 2. b.

14. עַל־כֵּן, prep. עַל in its comparative sense § 260. 2 (1). עָקָם I. 2 root עָקַם to bend, hence that which bends or curves, belly. עָקָם § 151. 1. The posture to which the serpent is doomed and his eating dust, not as his proper food, comp. Ps. 102 : 10, but as an incidental consequence of his prostrate form, is a standing type of the humiliation and doom of Satan the real seducer. עָקָם from עָקַם § 207. 1. f.

15. הָיָה I. f. from הָיָה to be hostile. עֲדָתֵי thy seed, i. e. devils and wicked men, Mat. 13 : 38, John 8 : 44. עֲדָתֵי her seed, i. e. in its widest sense, mankind limited only by the opposition just suggested in the 'seed of the serpent,' the defection of those who attach themselves to the party of the enemy. The tempted, ruined race shall trample under foot its enemy and seducer. So the apostle Paul applies it, Rom. 16 : 20. At the same time this victory is really achieved by One from amongst mankind, the Messiah, and the expressions are so framed as to be specially applicable to him. His birth of a virgin makes him peculiarly the seed of the woman, while the singular pronoun הָיָה and his being said to bruise or crush Satan himself עָקָם rather than his seed, gives it the appearance of a personal and individual conflict. That עָקָם may be used of an individual appears from 4 : 25. רָאָשׁ, a second object indicating the part affected § 271. 4, § 273. 2.

16. הָיָה § 175. 2. עָנָה IV. from עָנָה to be afflicted § 193. 2, hence toil, sorrow. הָיָה IV. from הָיָה to conceive, contracted from הָיָה, as if for הָיָה § 53. 3. a. It is not necessary to assume a hendiadys for the sorrow of thy conception; the meaning is thy sorrow and especially thy conception considered as a painful suffering condition. הָיָה § 144. 2. בָּנָה § 207. 1. a, root בָּנָה to build § 185. d, offspring considered as constituting their parent's house. הָיָה III. f. § 192. 2. a, from בָּנָה to run after, desire. הָיָה Makkeph § 43, § 88 (3 m.); for the construction with בָּ, see on 1 : 18.

17. עָקָם, here, as 2 : 20, a proper name, and therefore without the article § 246. 1. עָקָם on thy account. The origin of this sense has been variously accounted for; perhaps the simplest explanation is the following, suggested by Ewald. עָקָם, from עָקָם to pass, denotes that which passes out of something else, its 'product' or 'consequence'; as a noun it is used of the produce of the earth; as a preposition, in which case it is always compounded with בָּ, it means in consequence of, on account of; pause accent § 65. (3). עָקָם compound Sh'va § 16. 3. b, Nun epenthetic § 101. 2, eat it, i. e. the fruit of it, comp. Isa. 1 : 7.

18. עָקָם thorn from עָקָם to cut, on account of its pricking or cutting.

רְתִירָר II. § 187. 1. e, from רְתִירָר, perhaps in the sense of growing luxuriantly, hence a thistle. רְתִירָר, pausal form for רְתִירָר § 65. a. רְתִירָר, accent shifted by Vav conversive § 33. 4, § 100. a, eat the herb of the field, in contrast with the trees of the garden.

19. בְּזַעַת I. f. from זָרַח root רָזַח to flow § 184. b, Tsere retained in the const. § 216. 1. b; the prep. בְּ expresses the condition in which he should eat bread, a condition induced, as is implied, by the toil necessary to procure it; or it may be used, as it often is, to denote the price, the thing purchased being regarded as contained in that which is paid as its equivalent, in return for or at the cost of the sweat, etc. אֶפְיָה, primarily nose, then used, as here, for the whole face. אֶפְיָה § 35. 1. לָקַח I. 1. root לָקַח to consume. בִּי is confirmatory of the thought that man must return to the ground; the second בִּי is coordinate with the first, stating the same reason but with greater fulness.

20. בְּיָקָרָה, construction different from 2 : 20. חַיַּה Eve, II. f. from root חָיָה archaic form of חָיָה to live, hence life, abst. for coner. source or dispenser of life; בִּי assigns the reason, because through her, as appeared from ver. 16, the race was to be preserved from extinction.

21. בְּתָוִה § 216. 2. b. עִיר skin, root עִיר to be naked. וְלִבְשָׁה § 276. 3.

22. בְּאָזַח construct though followed by a prep. § 255. 1; not an ironical reference to the language of the tempter, ver. 5, but an assertion of its truth, though in a very different sense from that in which he designed it to be understood. מִצֵּיטָה § 233, § 275. 3. a. גָּב, not only take, as he has done, of the forbidden tree, but also etc. § 39. 4. The concluding sentence of this verse is incomplete: it is broken off by an abrupt change from word to deed, and instead of a mere declaration of the divine purpose the actual expulsion of man from Eden follows.

23. אֶפְיָה . . . אֶפְיָה § 74.

24. בְּיָקָרָה § 99. 3. a. שְׁכִינָה, from the same root comes שְׁכִינָה Shekinah, the name given by the later Jews to the symbol of the divine residence in the tabernacle and the temple. מִצֵּיטָה, see on 1 : 7, 2 : 8. לָקַח flame, i. e. the flashing blade, or with the sense of the adjective flaming sword § 254. 6. a, from לָקַח to burn. חֶרֶב sword, from חָרַב to be waste or lay waste. חֶרֶב const. § 254. 9. a.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

1. וַיִּבְרָךְ fut. with Vav conv. continues the narration § 99. 1, though the succession thus indicated is not always that of time or of actual occurrence, see on 2 : 8. 19. The writer here resumes the direct narrative

35 : 27, from which he had diverged to introduce Isaac's death, 35 : 28. 29, and what he thought it necessary to say about Esau's line, ch. 36. Having thus dismissed them from the history, he can now pursue uninterruptedly his account of Jacob's family. In like manner the history of Isaac's family, 25 : 19, follows the record of Abraham's death, 25 : 7, and of Ishmael's line, 25 : 12 ; and Shem's descendants, 11 : 10, succeed those of Noah's other sons, 10 : 1. The statement of this verse accordingly, though not posterior in time to what immediately precedes, is so in the order of narration to which the writer steadfastly adheres throughout the book, the direct line of descent of the chosen seed being postponed until the lateral branches have first been traced. $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$ § 246. 3. $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$ § 220. 1. c.

2. $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$ § 259. 2. $\text{בְּיָמֵי יַעֲקֹב הַיְהוּדִים הַגֵּרִים}$, the generations of Jacob, i. e. an account of his descendants. This is the uniform style of the titles prefixed to the different sections of Genesis, see on 2 : 4. It appears to have been selected on account of the prevailingly genealogical character of the history, the genealogies constituting, as it were, the frame work of which the narrative is the filling up. Jacob is henceforth contemplated not as an individual but as a patriarch, the father and head of a family, whose fortunes are interwoven with his own. $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$ § 215. 1. b. Terms of natural relationship are extensively employed in Hebrew to express various kinds of relation or dependence § 254. 6. a. Time is viewed as the parent of that which is produced within it, and a person or thing as the offspring of the time during which he or it has existed. The ordinary mode of stating the age is that here employed, son of seventeen years, i. e. seventeen years old. The chronological difficulty, which some have fancied here, is purely imaginary, and has arisen from neglecting to observe that though the writer in pursuance of his plan (see on ver. 1) has recorded the death of Isaac, 35 : 29, before proceeding to the history of Jacob's family, that event did not take place for several years after the occurrences now to be related. $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$, in the singular after seventeen § 251. 2. a. $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$ § 265, § 266. 3. a, verb following its subject in a descriptive clause. $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$. This verb is often followed by $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$, the sign of the direct object. If that is the case here, it must be read superintending his brothers (who were) with the flock. But as it would more naturally have $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$ for its object, and it is sometimes elsewhere construed with $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$, $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$ is doubtless the preposition with, and it is to be rendered feeding or tending the flock with his brothers $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$ for $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$ from $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$ § 63. 1. a, § 207. 2. b. The preposition $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$ will then indicate the sphere within which the action of the verb was exercised, lit. acting as shepherd in the flock. $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$ § 245. 3. $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$ and he was a lad § 258. 1. $\text{וְיָרְדוּ אֶלְעֵזָר}$ from $\text{נָאָ} \S 207. 1. a, \S 216. 1. \text{וַיִּשְׁלַח}$ from $\text{נִשְׁלַח} \S 207. 2. e. \text{אֲשַׁלְּחֶנּוּ}$, verb שָׁלַח and $\text{שָׁלַח} \S 160. 3. \text{הֵנָּה עֲשֵׂהָ}$, the suffix denotes the object $\S 254. 9$; the noun is consequently indefinite, and no article is required by $\text{הֵנָּה} \S 249. 1. b$, an evil report respecting them. Comp. Num. 14 : 37.

3. $\text{בְּזָקִים} \S 260. 2. a. \text{בְּיָמֵי זְקֵנִי} \S 201. 1. b$, a son of old age, not one possessed of the qualities which usually accompany age, as wisdom and the like, but one born when his father was old, comp. 21 : 2. 7, 44 : 20, and the similar expression wife of thy youth, Prov. 5 : 18. The expression is indefinite, and the construct relation paraphrased by the following $\text{בֵּן} \S 257$, perhaps because he was not the only son born to him at that period of his life. $\text{הַפְּזָרָה} \S 35. 1, \S 265. b. \text{בְּצִיָּה עֲשֵׂהָ}$, LXX. $\chi\iota\tau\omega\nu\alpha \pi\omicron\iota\kappa\iota\lambda\omicron\nu$, Vulg. tunicam polymitam, Eng. Ver. coat of many colours. This explanation is based on the assumption that בְּצִיָּה means pieces: a 'coat of pieces' might then mean one of patchwork, or of pieces of various colours stitched together, or perhaps one so embroidered as to present the appearance of being so composed. In 2 Sam. 13 : 18. 19, the only other passage in which the expression occurs, it is rendered by the LXX $\chi\iota\tau\omega\nu \kappa\alpha\rho\pi\omega\tau\acute{o}\varsigma$, and by the Vulgate tunica talaris. In conformity with this the latest and best authorities understand by בְּצִיָּה extremities; a tunic or undergarment of extremities is one reaching to the wrists and ankles in contrast with those in ordinary use, which were without sleeves and extended only to the knees.

4. $\text{בְּשָׁלְוָה} \S 238. 2. \text{בְּשָׁלְוָה}$, infin. not preceded by a prep. $\S 267. b$; בְּשָׁלְוָה is commonly followed by בְּ , לְ to or $\text{עִי$, אִי (prep.) with, but here and in Num. 26 : 3 by the direct object of the person addressed. בְּשָׁלְוָה in peace, peaceably, comp. on בְּשָׁלְוָה , 2 : 18, or unto peace, with a peaceable design.

5. $\text{בְּשָׁלְוָה} \S 271. 3. \text{וַיִּשְׂנֵא} \S 129. 1$, object omitted, comp. 2 : 19. $\text{וַיִּשְׂנֵא} \S 145. 1$, added again to hate, i. e. hated yet more $\S 269. a$. It is characteristic of Hebrew narrative that upon the first mention of Joseph's dreams the result of his telling them to his brethren is stated, before a more detailed account is given of them; after which the resulting hatred or jealousy of his brethren is mentioned again, vs. 8. 11. See an instance of the same sort, 2 : 8, comp. ver. 15. No critic, even of those most disposed to discredit the original unity of Genesis, has ventured to impute this repetition to an intermingling of different narratives, and to ascribe vs. 6-11 to a writer distinct from the author of ver. 5. And yet this would be as reasonable as the like charges based on similar repetitions occurring elsewhere.

7. $\text{וַיִּשְׂרָף} \S 200. c. \text{וַיִּשְׂרָף}$, pret., not part., as shown by the accent $\S 34$, rose up in contrast with $\text{וַיִּשְׂרָף} \S 65 (2) \text{stood}$. וַיִּשְׂרָף , fut. because subsequent to the preceding § 263. 5. a, afterward encircled it. It is better to give this word its proper verbal force than to regard it as simply qualifying the verb which follows, prostrated themselves around. $\text{וַתִּשְׁתָּחוּ אֶרְצָה}$ § 82. 5, § 176. 1, § 88 (2 and 3 f. pl.).

8. וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה , emphatic infin. § 282, followed, as is usual, by עַל over, since the monarch is over his subjects or exalted above them; more rarely by בְּ in, to define the sphere in which the sway is exercised, since the local use of the prep. to designate the royal residence, e. g. reign in Jerusalem etc., makes this ambiguous. On the other hand וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה to rule, is commonly followed by בְּ in, and rarely by עַל over, see on 1:18. $\text{וְעַל כֵּן$ § 283. 2 shalt thou reign as king or even rule in any way? וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה , plur. used indefinitely, his dreams, though only one had been actually related, it being regarded by his envious brothers as a representative rather than an individual fact, comp. 8:4, 21:7, 46:2, Judg. 12:7, 1 Sam. 17:43, Neh. 6:2, also Mat. 2:20, 27:44, where an apparent discrepancy with Luke 23:39 is thus reconciled.

10. וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה , followed by לְ or בְּ to before the person, and commonly the direct object of the thing narrated, though in rare instances this is preceded by עַל concerning or בְּ in reference to. וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה , rarely followed by the direct object, commonly as here like other verbs expressive of hostility by בְּ , the hostility being conceived of as not only directed towards its object, but reaching and penetrating it. It expresses more, therefore, than our preposition at, which may be used in like connections, e. g. 'to scold at.' וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה , Leah, or in the judgment of others, Bilhah ver. 2, or Joseph's own mother, Rachel, who was already dead, 35:19, but is here mentioned by Jacob for that very reason, to make the apparent absurdity of the dream more glaring. וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה § 230. 1, § 282. וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה § 157. 3, § 276. 1. וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה § 219. 1.

11. וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה , commonly followed by בְּ , see on וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה , ver. 10, less frequently by the direct object or by בְּ to, i. e. envious in reference to. וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה , Vav in a disjunctive sense § 287. 1; the noun on account of this implied contrast is put emphatically before the verb and receives a disjunctive accent.

12. וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה . The marginal note is $\text{וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה עַל אֶת וְעַל ח}$. According to the Masora such extraordinary points, § 4. a, occur ten times in the books of Moses, four times in the Prophets, and once in the Hagiographa. The Rabbins explain it by saying that, though pretending to feed their father's flocks, they were in reality feeding their own spleen against their brother. It may possibly have been designed to call attention to the construction: וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה and בְּ follow וַיִּשְׁתָּחֶה here as in ver. 2, but with a different sense.

13. וְהָיָה § 151. 1. וַיִּבְרָךְ § 123. 4. וַיִּבְרָךְ , notwithstanding the repeated change of subject, it is omitted from this and the following verbs, because it can create no real embarrassment § 243. 1.

14. וַיִּבְרָךְ , commonly with the direct object of the thing brought, and לְ before the person to whom or place to which it is brought. Here the person is regarded as the remote object § 273. 3. a, bring me back word, instead of to me.

15. וְהָיָה fut. because the action though begun is not finished § 263. 2, what art thou seeking?

17. וַיִּבְרָךְ gives confirmation. וַיִּבְרָךְ § 273. 4.

18. וַיִּבְרָךְ at a distance, see on וַיִּבְרָךְ , 1:7. וַיִּבְרָךְ § 263. 1. b. וַיִּבְרָךְ § 80. 1, made themselves subtle or deceitful, i. e. acted deceitfully, here with a direct object, elsewhere with בְּ , see on ver. 10. וַיִּבְרָךְ § 160. 4.

19. וַיִּבְרָךְ § 73. 2. וַיִּבְרָךְ part. § 266. 2, the same form as pret. ver. 23.

20. וַיִּבְרָךְ § 248. a, וַיִּבְרָךְ properly in, but after a verb of motion, into. וַיִּבְרָךְ § 100. 2. a (1). וַיִּבְרָךְ § 101. 1.

21. וַיִּבְרָךְ out of their hand, i. e. from their power or threatened violence. It is on account of this derived sense of the phrase that the noun is singular with a plur. suf.; so וַיִּבְרָךְ ver. 27. וַיִּבְרָךְ § 129. 1, § 169. 3, § 101. 2, the verb followed by a double object § 271. 4, we will not, or let us not smite him as to life, i. e. kill him.

22. וַיִּבְרָךְ with the apoc. fut., which here does not differ from its simple form § 97. 2. b, is equivalent to a negative imperative, shed not.

23. וַיִּבְרָךְ § 285. 2, according to the time that, i. e. when. וַיִּבְרָךְ § 287. 3, § 273. 2.

24. וַיִּבְרָךְ § 132. 2, § 39. 3. b. וַיִּבְרָךְ § 258. b.

25. וַיִּבְרָךְ § 57. 2 (3) a. וַיִּבְרָךְ § 34.

28. וַיִּבְרָךְ . There is no inconsistency in speaking of the same caravan as Ishmaelites, ver. 25, as Midianites, and as Medanites, ver. 36; for though these were, strictly speaking, distinct tribes, yet from their close affinity in origin, 25 : 2. 12, and character, the names might in a general sense be used promiscuously. The fact appears to be that both here and Judg. 8 : 24, comp. vs. 22. 26, Ishmaelite is a generic term, embracing not only the proper descendants of Ishmael, but other Arab tribes, just as Hellenes was used to designate the Greeks generally, though properly denoting one subdivision of them. Or each of these three tribes may in actual fact have been represented in this company of travelling merchants. Upon this interchange of names, which is so readily explicable, certain critics have based the assertion that two contradictory narratives are here blended. One is represented in vs. 25-27 and in ver. 28 from וַיִּקְרָא onward; the other in ver. 28, as far as וַיִּבְרַח, and in ver. 36. According to the first Joseph's brethren sold him to the Ishmaelites, who carried him down to Egypt. According to the second certain Midianite merchants, accidentally discovering him in the pit where his brethren had left him to perish, drew him out and sold him into Egypt. But, 1. This is founded on a false theory of the constitution of the Pentateuch, as though it were not one continuous composition, but made up of detached portions from different pens. 2. It gratuitously impugns its credibility, as though it were a record of conflicting traditions instead of a consistent and well accredited history. 3. It is merely an ingenious cross-reading, made out by dividing one sentence and dislocating others. 4. It is apparent that the writer, or, if the critics please, the compiler saw no inconsistency in the different parts of what he has presented as one connected narrative; neither was such an inconsistency suspected by any of his readers until very recently. The mention of Joseph's being taken down to Egypt both at the beginning and close of the paragraph, vs. 28. 36 (comp. on ver. 5), and again 39 : 1, where the subject is resumed after a digression (comp. 37 : 1 with 35 : 27) lends no countenance to this critical hypothesis.

וַיִּקְרָא. The subject of this and the next two verbs is not the Midianites but the brethren of Joseph, 45 : 5, see on ver. 13. וַיִּקְרָא, the prep. denotes the price, see on 3 : 19. שֶׁקֶל shekels, which was the current standard of value, is to be supplied § 251. 2. c, with which וַיִּקְרָא is in apposition § 253. 2; for the price, comp. Ex. 21 : 32, Lev. 27 : 5.

32. וַיִּקְרָא § 129. 1, § 94. d. וַיִּקְרָא § 24. b, § 230. 2. a, § 283. 2. וַיִּקְרָא § 221. 3. a.

33. וַיִּקְרָא § 105. a. וַיִּקְרָא my son's coat! the abrupt brevity of the exclamation is admirably suited to the occasion. וַיִּקְרָא § 282. a.

34. וַיִּקְרָא. We would say upon his loins, and the Heb. might use בְּ, Jer. 13 : 1, 48 : 37; but here it has וַיִּקְרָא in, denoting intimate conjunction, i. e. in contact with, see on 3 : 3. וַיִּקְרָא § 80. 1, used chiefly in prose, the Kal being more usual in poetry, followed by וַיִּקְרָא over, since the common attitude of mourners is that of bending over the object of their grief, or the prep. may mean on account of, the effect being conceived as resting upon its cause, the grief resting upon its source, see 2 : 24. It sometimes takes וַיִּקְרָא in reference to.

35. וַיִּקְרָא § 277. a, § 276. 3. וַיִּקְרָא § 205. b, § 207. 1. a. וַיִּקְרָא § 101. 3, § 102. 3. וַיִּקְרָא § 80. a (2). וַיִּקְרָא might be explicative, that, which commonly introduces an indirect citation, but is occasionally used even before a direct citation; but it is better to regard it as confirmatory, for, referring to the implied language of his refusal, 'I will not be comforted, for, etc.' or but, to which בִּי is often equivalent after a negative clause. הִנֵּנִי חַיִּים , the continued and conscious existence of the dead is implied. $\text{וְהָיָה לִי$ § 172. 4, followed here by the direct object, elsewhere by עַל over, בְּ or לְאֵל in reference to, for.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

1. הֵרַדָּהּ § 265, was brought down, not only because there was an actual descent in leaving Palestine southward, but because of the moral elevation attaching to it as the centre of religious hopes and aspirations. Hence men are said to 'go up' to Palestine and to Jerusalem from all directions, Zech. 14 : 16—19, et passim.

2. יְהוָה . The name Jehovah occurs significantly here and in a like connection in vs. 3. 5. 21. 23. God's favour to Joseph was not a mere providential benefit to him, but belonged to Jehovah's plan of grace and his merciful dealings with his covenant people. After this chapter יְהוָה occurs but once in the rest of the book, Gen. 49 : 18. When Joseph speaks to the wife of Potiphar, ver. 9, to the servants of Pharaoh, 40 : 8, to Pharaoh himself, 41 : 16—32, or to his brethren or they to him while they thought him an Egyptian, 42 : 18, 43 : 29, 44 : 16, or when Pharaoh speaks, 41 : 38. 39, or the steward of Joseph's house, 43 : 23, the more general name אֱלֹהִים is the appropriate one. So in other cases, where the thought is principally of God as ruling in providence, 42 : 28, or a contrast is implied between what man devised and God appointed, 45 : 5. See on 2 : 4. אִתּוֹ prep. with, implying fellowship and aid § 238. 2. מִמָּצָרַיִם § 216. 1. d, § 208. 3. c. אֶרְצֵי מִצְרָיִם § 201. 2, § 249. 1, his Egyptian master.

4. וְהָיָה לִי differs from עָבַד , see Gesen. Lex. וְהָיָה לִי , change of subject plain from the connection § 243. 1, see 37 : 13. 28. וְהָיָה לִי , ellipsis of the relative, comp. ver. 5 ; § 285. 3.

5. בְּיָדָיו , prep. בְּ in, suggests the sphere of his authority, and עַל over, his elevation above what was thus subjected to him. בְּיָדָיו in all, this was the seat of the blessing. וְהָיָה לִי § 275. 1.

6. וְהָיָה לִי suf. refers not to Potiphar, he knew not anything with him, i. e. which was in his own possession, but to Joseph, comp. ver. 8, and is not dependent on וְהָיָה לִי § 195. 3, anything with him, i. e. which was in Joseph's charge, but, as the order of the words requires, on וְהָיָה לִי did not know with him, i. e. Joseph had not only the entire charge but the exclusive knowledge of everything; his master shared with him only the knowledge of what came upon his table. וְהָיָה לִי § 254. 10.

7. $\text{הָרַחֵק} \S 98. 1, \S 22. a (1).$

9. $\text{לֹא־יֵשׁ} \S 263. 4, \text{he, i. e. my master, is not;}$ the rendering 'there is none greater, etc.' would require יֵשׁ without the suffix, comp. 40 : 8, 41 : 8. $\text{לִּי־אִם} \S 260. 1. -\text{אִם} \text{;} \text{for if,}$ which after a negative clause (see on 37 : 35) is equivalent to but if or but when, i. e. except. $\text{בְּכִי} \text{;} \text{in that, i. e. because,}$ the effect being regarded as involved in its cause. $\text{בְּיָמֵי} \S 231. 3. a, \text{in respect to God,}$ the prep. indicating the direction of the offence.

10. $\text{כְּדִבְרֵיהָ} \text{'according to her speaking,}'$ i. e. as she spake, the particle strictly expressing the resemblance or identity between the time of her speaking and his not hearkening, and thus receiving the temporal sense of at or when. $\text{בְּיָמֵי} \text{;} \text{in} \S 280. 1. -\text{אִם} \S 287. 3. \text{בְּכִי} \S 87.$

11. $\text{בְּיָמֵי} \S 231. 5. a,$ since the particle of comparison may express not only identity but a resemblance more or less remote, it is applied to measures of time, space or quantity, not only to indicate exactness at, but a more general correspondence about, comp. Gr. $\acute{\omega}\varsigma, \acute{\omega}\sigma\alpha\iota.$ $\text{בְּיָמֵי} \text{;} \text{prep. partitive.}$

12. $\text{בְּיָמֵי} \S 22. b, \S 221. 5. a,$ the prep. may be taken in its original local sense as designating the part immediately affected by the seizure, in his garment, or, which is more natural in English, it may indicate the means, in which the action is regarded as involved, since that alone rendered it possible, by his garment.

14. $\text{בְּיָמֵי} \S 35. 1, \S 92. d, \text{;} \text{properly indicating the design, see on } 1 : 14,$ which is here inferred from the result, comp. Ex. 17 : 3, Lev. 20 : 3. $\text{בְּיָמֵי} \S 34,$ according to the turn given to the preceding verb the prep. may, as after verbs of hostility, see on 37 : 10, indicate the object at which the laughter is directed, and in which it rests, mock at us, or it may denote conjunction, see on 3 : 3, 37 : 34, sport with us. $\text{בְּיָמֵי} \text{;} \text{the prep.} \text{;} \text{may denote the cause, means, or as here the instrument, since anything may be regarded as residing in that, by, through or with which it is effected.}$

15. $\text{בְּיָמֵי} \S 153. 4. \text{בְּיָמֵי} \S 287. 3.$

16. $\text{בְּיָמֵי} \S 160. 1 \text{ and } 3.$

17. בְּיָמֵי might be dependent on $\text{בְּיָמֵי} \S 160. 2,$ see ver. 14, but is more probably to be connected with $\text{אִם} \text{;} \text{.}$

18. $\text{אִם} \text{;} \text{construction begun with the infinitive and continued with the future and Vav conversive} \S 282. c.$

21. $\text{הָיָה} \text{ } \S 172. 4.$ לָהּ suf. denotes the object $\S 254. 9$, he gave graciously wrought favour toward him, in the mind of the keeper. $\text{לְיָדָיו} \text{ } \S 254. 9$, a subordinate entrusted with the immediate oversight of the prison, while Joseph's master, the captain of the guard, held the supreme direction of its affairs, comp. 40 : 4.

CHAPTER XL.

1. $\text{יָשָׁר} \text{ } \S 254. 9$ fut. with Vav conv. might have been used, comp. 39 : 7, $\S 287. 3$, with prep. בְּ , comp. 39 : 9.

2. $\text{בְּעֵינָיו} \text{ } \S 254. 9$ followed by בְּ , the prep. in a hostile sense indicating upon whom the anger is directed; it might also have $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 254. 9$ in respect to; our idiom requires at. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 250. 2$, see on 1 : 16. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 60. 3. c$, $\S 210. a$.

3. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 255. 2$, comp. 39 : 20.

4. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 255. 2$, not set him over them, as though the prep. were בְּ , see 39 : 4, but put him in charge with them, associated him with them to have the care of their necessities, to wait upon them, as is immediately added. According to the analogy of oriental courts these were officers of high rank, and Potiphar assigns them his servant as their attendant. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 274. 2. a$.

5. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 250. 2. a$.

7. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 245. 3. b$.

8. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 258. b$, the absolute form is only used when it is the last word in its clause $\S 258. b$.

9. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 287. 3$.

10. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 223. 2$, $\S 250. 2$. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 205. a$, the prep. may denote comparison, as if it were blossoming, i. e. it seemed to blossom, or time it was about blossoming, see on 39 : 10. 11. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 271. 1$. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 198. b$, used collectively $\S 198. b$, whereas the fem. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 271. 1$ denotes a single flower. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 80. a (1)$, either matured grapes, or by a transitive construction with the result of the action, ripened into grapes. $\text{בְּ} \text{ } \S 183. c$, $\S 210. e$, $\S 216. 1. c$. It has been objected to the truth and the antiquity of this narrative that, according to Herodotus, 2. 77, there were no vines in Egypt ($\text{o}\tilde{\upsilon}\ \gamma\acute{\alpha}\rho\ \sigma\phi\acute{\iota}\ \epsilon\iota\sigma\iota\ \epsilon\tilde{\nu}\ \tau\eta\ \chi\acute{o}\rho\eta\ \acute{\alpha}\mu\pi\epsilon\lambda\omicron\iota$), and according to Plutarch, De Is. et Osir. 6, wine was not in use there before the time of Psammetichus ($\text{\eta}\rho\acute{\xi}\alpha\nu\tau\omicron\ \delta\acute{\epsilon}\ \pi\acute{\iota}\nu\epsilon\iota\nu\ \acute{\alpha}\pi\omicron\ \Psi\alpha\mu\mu\eta\tau\acute{\iota}\chi\omicron\upsilon\ \pi\rho\acute{o}\tau\epsilon\rho\omicron\nu\ \delta\prime\ \omicron\tilde{\upsilon}\kappa\ \acute{\epsilon}\pi\iota\nu\omicron\nu\ \omicron\iota\nu\omicron\nu$). But Herodotus is only speaking of the region which he denominates 'the grain country' ($\text{\tau}\eta\ \sigma\pi\epsilon\iota\rho\omicron\mu\acute{\epsilon}\nu\eta\nu\ \text{A}\acute{\iota}\gamma\upsilon\pi\tau\omicron\nu$), and even in regard to this his language must be taken with some limitations. See Rawlinson's Herodotus, II. p. 108. Plutarch is speaking of the free indulgence in wine by kings and priests as introduced by Psammetichus in place of the restricted use which prevailed before. The monuments of Egypt show incontestably that wine was used and the grape cultivated there in the earliest periods by their delineations of the vintage, the winepress, vessels for drinking and for holding wine, and even persons in a state of intoxication.

12. אֶלְשֵׁי § 250. 2, § 251. 2 and 4. :וְ, copula § 258. 2.

13. נִתְּשֵׁיָהּ § 160. 2. אֶלְשֵׁי § 221. 6. a. אֶלְשֵׁי, used adverbially of time, as in 39: 20 of place, when, the time in which.

14. אֶלְשֵׁי אֶבְרָתִי, see on 39: 9, but if thou hast remembered me, etc. with the implication as I trust thou wilt have done אֶלְשֵׁי אֶבְרָתִי then do kindness with me, I pray thee § 287. 2, or if may be equivalent to O if, and express a wish, but if thou wouldst remember me, etc. and wouldst do, etc. Literally, wouldst have remembered, the pret. § 262. 1, denoting a past in relation to the fut. אֶלְשֵׁי § 35. 1; this tense is used here because the act of memory at that time implies that he had been remembered during the entire preceding period, comp. the use of memini as a present in Latin. The following verbs אֶלְשֵׁי etc. as they follow the future אֶלְשֵׁי obtain a future sense from Vav conv. אֶלְשֵׁי § 65. a. אֶלְשֵׁי, see on 3: 12.

15. אֶלְשֵׁי § 93. d. § 282. a. אֶלְשֵׁי § 156. 4, the unusual position of the accent is remarked in the marginal note § 32.

16. אֶלְשֵׁי well not correctly, for this could not yet be known, but acceptably. :וְאֶלְשֵׁי Herodotus, 2. 35, states it as one of the customs in which the Egyptians differ from the rest of the world, that the men carry burdens upon their heads and the women upon their shoulders.

20. הַיּוֹמָהּ § 150. 5, day of Pharaoh's being born, the subject of the passive verb receiving אֶלְשֵׁי, since it is really the object of the action § 271. a.

23. וְאֶלְשֵׁי, Vav in an adversative sense.

CHAPTER XLI.

1. אֶלְשֵׁי from, denoting separation in point of time, i. e. after the end of. אֶלְשֵׁי אֶלְשֵׁי § 202, two years of days, the measure or quantity being in apposition with the material § 253. 2. אֶלְשֵׁי over, because a person standing on the bank is above the surface of the river; the English idiom requires by. :וְאֶלְשֵׁי. The number of Egyptian words occurring in this chapter affords an incidental proof of its genuineness and truth.

2. אֶלְשֵׁי § 223. 2; the cow was the instrument and symbol of agriculture, and is here represented as coming up from the Nile, which was the source of Egypt's fertility. חֲזָזִי § 254. 10.

3. חֲזָזִי lip, then edge or brink § 3. 1. a. חֲזָזִי § 216. 1. a (1).

4. חֲזָזִי . . . חֲזָזִי, the article is for the sake of making the preceding adjectives agree in definiteness with the noun to which they belong § 249. 1. a; the adj. themselves could not receive the art., being in the const. § 256. חֲזָזִי § 251. 4. חֲזָזִי § 147. 5.

5. חֲזָזִי § 235. 3 (3). חֲזָזִי § 207. 1. d, § 16. 3. b. חֲזָזִי in the stalk, because forming part of it, in intimate union and conjunction with it, see on 3 : 3.

6. חֲזָזִי § 254. 9. b. חֲזָזִי, the southeast wind from the great desert. Observe that ח is a radical, not the plural ending.

8. חֲזָזִי § 99. 3. a. חֲזָזִי IV. § 193. c. חֲזָזִי suf. refers to חֲזָזִי § 197. d. חֲזָזִי, the plur. and the sing. (חֲזָזִי) are used indifferently, according as the dream is contemplated as one or two.

9. חֲזָזִי-חֲזָזִי, the prep. with. חֲזָזִי § 208. 3. חֲזָזִי § 245. 3. b.

10. חֲזָזִי, see on 40 : 2. 11. חֲזָזִי § 99. 3, § 109. 3. a.

12. חֲזָזִי § 257. 2. חֲזָזִי, 'each according to his dream,' i. e. according to the dream of each. The construction of חֲזָזִי, when used as an indefinite pronoun, and standing in a possessive relation to nouns, often follows the analogy of the relative חֲזָזִי § 285. 1, comp. 9 : 5, 15 : 10, Num. 26 : 54; though it may also preserve its usual construction as a noun, comp. חֲזָזִי-חֲזָזִי 43 : 21, but חֲזָזִי . . . חֲזָזִי 42 : 35.

13. חֲזָזִי according to that which, i. e. as § 285. 2. חֲזָזִי § 153. 1; the subject is not Joseph, as though he were said to do what he predicted, but Pharaoh, who though addressed is reverentially spoken of in the third person, comp. ver. 10. Examples of a like change of subject abound, see on 37 : 13. 28.

14. חֲזָזִי 3 pl. indefinite § 243. 2. חֲזָזִי, where the Hithpael might have been expected, as in English we can say he shaved, for he shaved himself. Another correspondence with Egyptian customs, which are here the reverse of the Hebrew. The Egyptians were ordinarily shaven, only suffering their beards and hair to grow in token of grief, Herod. 2. 36, whereas to be shaven was a token of grief among the Hebrews, Isa. 15 : 2, Amos 8 : 10.

15. חֲזָזִי respecting thee, lit. 'upon thee,' the discourse being founded upon the subject spoken of. חֲזָזִי § 22. a (5).

16. חֲזָזִי not to me belongs this faculty of interpreting dreams.

21. חֲזָזִי 3 f. pl. suf. with appended vowel ח, § 220. 1. b, which occasions the change of the preceding Kamets to Seghol. Comp. § 63. 1. b and c, § 219. 1. b. חֲזָזִי, the noun is singular § 221. 7. a, as is shown by the adj. עַד; the suf. הָךְ is occasionally though rarely attached to singular nouns § 220. 1. b.

22. אֲנִי וְאַתָּה § 172. 4. 23. אֲתֵּיבָהּ § 275. 5.

24. וְנִתְּבַחְתֶּיךָ § 88(2 and 3 f. pl.).

25. הָיָא § 258. 2. אֶתְּ אֲשֶׁר § 285. 2. הָאֵלֵּיךָ § 246. 1. a.

26. הַשְּׁבִיחַ § 249. 1. c. הַלְּגִים אֲתֵּי § 250. 1, it is one dream.

28. הָרַע § 175. 1.

29. שָׁנִים רַבּוֹת שָׁנִים years of great plenty, descriptive apposition § 253. 2.

31. מִפְּנֵי from the face of, or from before, i. e. by reason of, the effect being regarded as proceeding from the cause.

32. בְּיָצֵק in respect to, lit. upon the subject of, see on ver. 15. בְּיָצֵק, this was done because etc. בְּיָצֵק § 153. 3.

33. הָיָא § 171. 1, § 35. 2, some editions have Tsere in the ultimate, consequent upon the shifting of the accent. נִבְּוֶה § 158. 4. וְיִשְׁתַּחֲוֶה § 157. 3, receives a jussive sense from its connection with הָיָא.

34. יִשְׁתַּחֲוֶה expresses not simple futurity, but desire § 264. a, as is shown by its association with the preceding and following apoc. futures. וְיִשְׁתַּחֲוֶה § 97. 2. הָיָא § 256.

35. וְיִתְקַבְּצוּ and they shall gather, or that they may gather § 263. 1. וְיִתְקַבְּצוּ § 249. 2.

38. הַרוּחַ § 230. 1, Kal fut. though the form might also be found in the Niph. pret. הַרוּחַ אֱלֹהִים from Pharaoh's polytheistic stand-point הַרוּחַ is not a proper but a common noun, and the expression is consequently indefinite, a divine spirit, lit. a spirit of divinity.

39. אַחֲרַי retains its strict temporal sense, after God had taught him this, he had a superiority to others which he did not possess before. הִוְדִיעַ § 267. b, followed by a double object, § 273. 1. בְּמִוְדָּע § 233. a.

40. יִשָּׁק some render, upon thy mouth shall all my people kiss, in token of fidelity and homage. But it is objected to this that the kiss of fealty was upon the hand or the foot, not upon the mouth, and that this verb meaning to kiss is never construed with יָצֵק, but either with the direct object or with לְ before the person to whom the kiss is given. Consequently others translate, according to thy bidding all my people shall dispose themselves, the primary notion of the verb being assumed to be to adjust or dispose, from which both its other senses to kiss and to arm are derived. The preposition יָצֵק obtains the meaning according to from the conception that when one thing lies in every part precisely upon another, it is conformable to it. The mouth, as the organ of speech, is here put, as it frequently is, for speech itself, or for command. אֲבָרַךְ § 271. 4. אֲבָרַךְ § 260. 2. a. : אֲבָרַךְ § 233. a.

42. וְנִסְרָה § 160. 3. 'בַּמִּצְעָה', royal edicts were authenticated by the king's signet-ring, the possession of which gave authority to act in the name of the monarch, Esth. 3 : 10. 12, 8 : 2. 10. הַשֶּׁבַע הַזֶּה § 256, the chain of gold customary as a mark of distinction § 245. 3.

43. הַמִּשְׁכָּבָה § 241. 1. b, § 216. 2. b. הַמִּשְׁכָּבָה § 256, the chariot of the second order, or the second chariot, i. e. the one immediately following that of the monarch in state processions. אֶרֶץ מִצְרַיִם, properly an Egyptian word, though assimilated in its orthography to abs. inf. Hiph. of מָצַח which has a kindred sense § 94. b, see Gesen. Lex. וְנִסְרָה properly expresses the abstract idea of the verb, but when it continues a narration it is modified in sense by the tense, number and person of the preceding principal verb, here by וַיִּנְסְרָה, and he set him over, etc. lit. 'there was a setting him over, etc.'

44. הַמֶּלֶךְ Pharaoh, i. e. the king, as the word signifies in Coptic. וְגַם לֹא-יָרִים יָדוֹ § 9. 1, shall not raise his hand, i. e. to perform any action, and (our idiom requires or § 287) his foot, i. e. to take a step. The expression is a proverbial one.

46. בָּרָא, see on 37 : 2. יָשָׁב § 225. 1, § 251. 1 and 2. בָּרָא § 22. a (1), § 101. 3, in his standing, i. e. when he stood. וַיִּנְסְרָה a resumption after the intervening mention of Joseph's age, of the statement at the close of the preceding verse with a view to continue the narrative, see on 37 : 5.

47. הַמִּשְׁכָּבָה § 256. : לְקַחְתָּם § 101. 2. b, § 208. 3. b, by handfuls, the prep. properly signifies according to, see on וְיָמִינוּ 1 : 11.

48. לְקַחְתָּם § 270. c. 49. הַמִּשְׁכָּבָה § 175. 2. הַמִּשְׁכָּבָה § 22. a (5).

50. וְיָרִים § 275. 1, the marginal note קָמֶתְהָ לָמֶדֶת Kumets'd Lamedh calls attention to the fact that the vowel of the ultimate is prolonged, though without a pause accent § 65. b, whence some have unnecessarily inferred that it is an abbreviated participle § 53. 2. a, § 93. e. תָּבִיא § 157. 3, § 263. 1. b.

51. וַיִּנְסְרָה § 169. 3, § 92. c, the form of the verb is assimilated to the noun, whose etymology is to be explained; the direct is substituted for the indirect quotation.

52. הַמִּשְׁכָּבָה § 183. c, double-fruitfulness § 203. 5. : עָנִינוּ § 221. 5. c, § 62. 2. b.

54. וְיָרִים § 141. 2 (p. 174).

55. לְקַחְתָּם § 151. 1, § 197. d, § 275. 2. b.

56. הַמִּשְׁכָּבָה § 285. 1, all in which there was food.

57. וְיָרִים § 275. 2. b, all the earth, as we might say, 'everybody came.' General terms are necessarily limited by their application and the connection in which they are found. People came from all quarters, not from the whole earth in its widest sense, of course, but from the entire region which under such circumstances would naturally look to Egypt for supplies. So ver. 54, all the lands, must mean the countries adjacent to Egypt, and with which the Hebrews were most familiar.

CHAPTER XLII.

1. לְפָנָיו § 231. 4. a. אֶתְחַרְחַר § 80. 1 (3).
3. הֶעֱשָׂה § 250. 2 (3), § 251. 4.
4. אֶתְחַרְחַר § 215. 1. e. אֶתְחַרְחַר § 179. 1. a.
6. אֶתְחַרְחַר § 30. 2, § 258. 2. וְיִשְׁתַּחֲוּוּ § 82. 5, § 176. 1. אֶתְחַרְחַר § 274. 2. e.
7. קְטוּבָה fem. in sense of neuter § 196. a.
9. לְפָנָיו in reference to, respecting them.
10. וְיִשְׁתַּחֲוּוּ Vav adversative § 287. 1.
11. אֶתְחַרְחַר § 71. a (1). The fact that they were all sons of one man was presumptive evidence that they were peaceful traders and not a band of adventurers or emissaries. אֶתְחַרְחַר § 262. 2, have not been and are not now acting as spies § 266. 3. a.
12. כִּי for which after a negative is equivalent to but, 37 : 35, 39 : 9.
13. עֲבָדָיו § 224, thy servants are twelve, we are brethren, etc. הַנִּשְׁעָר § 260. 2 (2), comp. minimus natu. הַנִּשְׁעָר § 245. 3. b. הַנִּשְׁעָר the remaining one § 245. 3.
15. בְּזֵאת by this, see on 39 : 12. 14. הֵיָ § 215. 1. d. uttered as an exclamation, the life of Pharaoh! a formula of swearing, which in our idiom would require the preposition ‘by.’ אֶתְחַרְחַר if, which in an oath obtains a negative sense. The complete form of the oath would be, ‘God do so to me and more also if you shall go forth,’ i. e. I swear that you shall not, etc., 1 Sam. 3 : 17. אֶתְחַרְחַר except by the coming, see on 39 : 9. אֶתְחַרְחַר § 235. 3 (4).
16. אֶתְחַרְחַר prep. in partitive sense. אֶתְחַרְחַר pron. expressed on account of the emphasis of the contrast with אֶתְחַרְחַר § 243. 1. אֶתְחַרְחַר § 109. 4. אֶתְחַרְחַר § 230. 3, indirect question § 283. 1 ; § 205. b. אֶתְחַרְחַר that, depending on the preceding form of oath, as if it were, ‘I swear that.’
17. אֶתְחַרְחַר § 274. 2. a.
18. אֶתְחַרְחַר § 287. 1. אֶתְחַרְחַר, a verbal derivative taking a direct object, like the verb from which it is derived. אֶתְחַרְחַר the true God § 246. 1. a.
19. אֶתְחַרְחַר, the article is omitted purposely, because the expression, contrary to the ordinary rule § 246. 2, is here indefinite, one of your brethren, lit. 'one your brother.' Comp. ver. 33 הַאֶחָדִים , after a selection had been made of the one to be left behind. שֶׁבַר בְּעֵינָיו const. of the object § 254. 9, grain for the famine, the latter being the object for which the former is provided. בְּעֵינָיו § 208. 3. c.

20. $\text{וְנִשְׁעַשׂוּ-לָךְ}$, a summary statement in advance of what is, after a brief reference to another subject, related in detail from ver. 26 onward. See on 37 : 5.

21. וְנִשְׁעַשׂוּ , in distributive apposition with the subject of $\text{וְנִשְׁעַשׂוּ-לָךְ}$. עַל-הַיָּדָיִם concerning, lit. upon the subject of, see on 41 : 15. 32. וְנִשְׁעַשׂוּ § 216. 1. a (1). בְּעֵינָיו § 80. 1 (2), § 137, § 25. וְנִשְׁעַשׂוּ § 34.

22. בְּעֵינָיו , see on 37 : 22. בְּעֵינָיו § 109. 3. a, followed by בְּ , indicating that wherein the sin is committed, in the matter of the boy; or the prep. may be used, as elsewhere after verbs of hostility, to indicate the object reached, and as it were penetrated by it, sin against the boy, see on 37 : 10.

23. וְנִשְׁעַשׂוּ the interpreter, usual and necessary in the intercourse of Egyptians with foreigners § 245. 3. בְּעֵינָיו § 238. 1, § 220. 2. a; the singular form of this preposition is used with singular suffixes (except twice in the K'ri, Josh. 3 : 4, 8 : 11), and the plural form with plural suffixes, the fem. plural being mostly preferred when the suffix embraces both the objects the interval between which is spoken of, and the other forms when the objects are separately stated, and the preposition repeated before each. Comp. Gen. 26 : 28. Before nouns the singular form of the prep. is employed except in one passage, Ezek. 10 : 2. 6. 7.

24. וְנִשְׁעַשׂוּ from over them, with allusion to his position on an elevated seat above them; or as one projects over that beside which he stands, the idea of superior elevation may be merged, as it often is, in that of contiguity, and the meaning be from by or from beside them. בְּעֵינָיו to, when no motion is implied, becomes at or in, see on 2 : 18, hence in their eyes or their sight.

25. וְנִשְׁעַשׂוּ Raphe § 27, with an indefinite subject § 243. 2, and a double object § 271. 1, § 273. 3, and they filled. בְּעֵינָיו § 208. 3. d. וְנִשְׁעַשׂוּ , dependent upon וְנִשְׁעַשׂוּ and he commanded to restore. The change of construction may have arisen from this order being addressed to a different person from those who fulfilled the preceding: and this may be still further intimated by the change of number in וְנִשְׁעַשׂוּ to the 3 sing. indef. § 243. 2. בְּעֵינָיו , the plur. denotes pieces of silver. וְנִשְׁעַשׂוּ , in distributive apposition to the preceding suffix, see on ver. 21, their money, viz. that of each; or, after the analogy of the relative, it may be connected with the suffix in בְּעֵינָיו , into the sack of each, see on 41 : 12. בְּעֵינָיו § 131. 4.

27. הַאֶחָד the one, distinguished as such in an enumeration, is of course the first, so that the cardinal is here practically equivalent to an ordinal. It is not here added that the others made the same discovery, but we learn from 43 : 21 that they did : and this is not inconsistent with ver.

35. בָּפָּי § 215. 2. b.

28. וַיִּתְחַדְּדוּ § 22. a (2), with לָאָז they trembled unto, i. e. turned tremblingly unto § 272. 3.

29. בָּנָנוּ § 22. b. הִקְרָה from קָרָה § 209. 1, § 196. a.

30. וַיִּתֵּן he gave, made, i. e. regarded and treated us as, etc.

33. הַצְּרִיכָה § 160. 1. תִּקְחוּ take the famine of your houses, as if we were to say, take the need of your houses, i. e. what is necessary to supply it, comp. ver. 19.

34. בְּיָמַי, see on ver. 12.

35. אִישׁ § 271. 4. b, as for each, his bundle of money § 256, see on 41 : 12.

36. עָלַי upon me as a burden, implying grief and care. חֲבִיבָה § 220. 1. b (3 pers.).

37. הָיָה § 132. 1.

38. לְבָרְךָ, see on 2 : 18.

CHAPTER XLIII.

2. הִיאָמַר § 287. 2.

3. הִתְרַחַץ § 282, § 94. a (3 m. s.), testified against us, i. e. solemnly warned us : for the use of אָ see on 37 : 10, 42 : 22.

4. הִשָּׁחָה § 258. b. 6. לָמָּה § 231. 4. a. הִרְעִיבָה § 136. 2.

7. לְבָנָי in reference to, respecting, see on 42 : 9. עַל-פִּי according to (see on 41 : 40) the sound or tenor, lit. mouth ; or the distinct sense of פִּי as a noun may be lost, as it not infrequently is, and the phrase signify simply according to. יָדָעָה fut. relative to preceding pret. § 263. 1, were we to know? or, as the implied negative rests on the assumed impossibility, could we know?

9. הִבְיִיאָהּ pret. in relation to the future, if I shall not have brought him, § 262. 1. וְהִצַּגְתִּי § 144. 2, § 150. 4. וְהִצַּגְתִּי § 287. 2, § 100. a (1), followed by הָ, see on 39 : 9. הַיָּמִים § 245. 5.

10. פִּי depends on שָׁלַחָה ver. 8, assigning a reason why the request to send Benjamin should be granted. לִי § 239. 2 (3). הִתְחַמְּדָה § 137, § 141. 2 (p. 175), pret. in relation to a past § 262. 1. בִּי depending on an ellipsis, 'the fact is that,' or 'I affirm that.' שָׁבָנוּ modified by the conditional particle לִי we would have returned. אָה, used adverbially § 235. 3 (4).

11. מִן-הַשִּׁירָה prep. in partitive sense, of the song of the land, that which is made the theme of song, its most celebrated productions: others explain the word in this place from a different signification of the root, that which is cut or obtained from the land, its productions.

12. $\text{הַכֶּסֶף הַשֵּׁנַיִם}$ § 254. 6, money of duplication, may either mean 'double money,' comp. Ex. 16 : 22, as $\text{הַכֶּסֶף הַשֵּׁנַיִם}$ unquestionably does in ver. 15, or 'a duplicate parcel of money,' when it will be equivalent to $\text{הַכֶּסֶף הַשֵּׁנַיִם}$ ver. 22. That the latter is the meaning here is apparent from the separate mention of the 'money which was brought back.' $\text{הַכֶּסֶף הַשֵּׁנַיִם}$ § 221. 1. a; the sing. form of the noun is due to the special significance of the phrase, which does not mean literally in your hands, but in your possession or along with you, see on 37 : 21. בְּיָמֵינוּ § 153. 1.

14. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 249. 1. b. ; $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 65. a, pret. in relation to a future § 262. 1, when (lit. according to the time that § 285. 2) I shall have been bereaved, I shall have been bereaved. If this results in my bereavement, it must be so: there is no avoiding it. Comp. John 19 : 22.

15. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 24. 4, apposition of the quantity with the material § 253. 2, comp. 41 : 1. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ is here the direct object of $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 271. 2; it might with equal correctness have been $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ with He directive, 46 : 3. 4.

16. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 285. 2. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$, the only example of Hholem with a $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ gutt. imper. § 125. 1. ; $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 203. 5, the well-known period of noon § 245. 3.

17. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 256. d. 18. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 273. 5. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 132. 2.

19. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 274. 2. b. 20. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 240. 2.

21. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 99. 3, the apodosis may begin here or with $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 287. 2. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$, the precious metals were weighed, not coined.

26. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$, the marginal note $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ 'dagheshed Aleph' calls attention to the point in this letter, which is commonly explained as Mappik § 26. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 176. 1.

27. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$, followed by $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ both before the person to whom and the subject to which the question was directed. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ used absolutely to indicate condition, in health § 274. 2. e; there is no need of assuming it to be an adjective. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 249. 1, your old father.

28. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 141. 1. ; $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 46. 29. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 61. 1, § 141. 3.

30. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ to the inner apartment, or it may mean to his chamber § 245. 3. a. ; $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ thither is used, when previous motion is implied, even though this is not expressed by the immediately preceding verb, wept on coming thither, where our idiom requires 'wept there.'

32. The laws of caste in Egypt forbade promiscuous intercourse with foreigners, Herod. 2. 41; and Joseph, who was allied to the priestly caste, ate separately from the other Egyptians. $\text{וְהָיָה כִּי אֶבְרָא}$ § 88 (2 and 3

m. pl.), § 263. 3. תִּיגְדָה, not merely offensive, but an object of religious abhorrence.

33. וַיִּתְהַיְתוּ, followed by אֶל § 272. 3, expressed their wonder to one another by looks or words.

34. חֲמֵסָה § 260. a. חֲמֵסָה § 215. 1. b. חֲמֵסָה handfuls, hence equal parts, five times; יָדַיִם would mean hands, the fem. plur. is commonly used for the derived senses § 203. a. וַיִּשְׂבְּרוּ, drank to satiety, as much as they wanted, not necessarily to intoxication, though the word is often so used, comp. Hag. 1 : 6.

CHAPTER XLIV.

1. אֶלְמָה § 271. 1, § 273. 1. אֶלְמָה § 131. 4, without לְ, but see לְמָה 43 : 32, § 267. b.

2. וַיִּבְרַח § 256. הַכֶּסֶף const. of object § 254. 9, his money for grain, comp. on 42 : 19. בְּדָבָר § 22. a (5). וַיִּבְרַח § 92. c.

3. וַיִּבְרַח § 82. 1. a (3), § 156. 2.

4. וַיִּבְרַח § 100. 1. וַיִּבְרַח § 231. 4. a.

5. זֶה this, assuming the presence of the cup, and their knowledge of what he referred to. וַיִּבְרַח § 263. 4, with בְּ, a person being said 'to drink in a cup,' because he drinks what is in it. וַיִּבְרַח abs. infin. § 92. d. וַיִּבְרַח § 141. 2 (p. 174).

7. וַיִּבְרַח § 263. 2, why will my lord speak, the thought being directed not only to the fact that he has just spoken in this manner, but to his probable persistence in it. וַיִּבְרַח § 219. 1. a, lit. it is unto profane to thy servants from doing, we esteem it utterly profane and detestable, so that we would not do. The idiomatic phrase may perhaps be best rendered in English, 'far be it from thy servants to do.' וַיִּבְרַח, the prep. in its negative sense before an infin. away from doing, i. e. so as not to do.

8. וַיִּבְרַח, indefinite § 248. וַיִּבְרַח fut. to preceding pret. § 263. 1, how should we after that steal.

9. וַיִּבְרַח § 156. 2, § 287. 2. וַיִּבְרַח with לְ twice, comp. 1 : 29. וַיִּבְרַח § 231. 3. a.

10. וַיִּבְרַח § 65 (1), the marginal note is abbreviated for וַיִּבְרַח וַיִּבְרַח וַיִּבְרַח Kamets with Zakeph Katon, § 9. 1. וַיִּבְרַח, emphatic contrast § 243. 1.

12. וַיִּבְרַח § 260. 2 (2), in or at the eldest, comp. in Lat. maximus natu. וַיִּבְרַח § 140. 5.

13. וַיִּבְרַח § 220. 2. a. 14. וַיִּבְרַח § 276. 1. וַיִּבְרַח § 236. 2.

16. וַיִּבְרַח pron. used adverbially § 235. 3 (4). וַיִּבְרַח § 82. 5, § 96. b. וַיִּבְרַח § 236. 1. וַיִּבְרַח . . . וַיִּבְרַח § 285. 1.

17. םִּיְשָׁלֵם, in peace, comp. 2 : 18, 37 : 4.

18. בְּיָ § 240. 2. ׀ִּבְּיָ prep. expressive of hostility, against, see on 37 : 10. יָ assigns the reason why he deprecated Joseph's anger. : כַּמֶּלֶךְ כַּפָּרֹאֲהִי, strictly like thee like Pharaoh, thou art like Pharaoh in authority.

20. ׀ִּבְּיָ pret. or part. § 156. 2. : יִָּבְּיָ § 262. 2, has loved him, with the implication that he still does so.

22. וְיָצִיב, lit. and he will leave his father and he will die. It is put in the form of an affirmation that he would do so, and this result would follow, the implied condition being if the father's inability to part with his son were disregarded.

23. יִָּבְּיָ § 150. 2, § 269. a.

27. ׀ִּבְּיִָּבְּיָ § 262. 2, the pronoun emphatic § 243. 1, you know yourselves.

28. יִָּבְּיָ § 245. 3. יִָּבְּיָ § 282. a.

29. יִָּבְּיִָּבְּיָ pret. with Vav conv. has its signification here determined by the immediately preceding יִָּבְּיָ § 265. b, and now ye are taking, etc.

32. יִָּבְּיָ refers generally to what precedes, and assigns the reason why Judah in particular was so urgent in the matter. I speak as I do, for, etc. יִָּבְּיָ pledged the lad from with my father, i. e. obtained him from my father by the pledge or security which I gave.

33. יִָּבְּיָ, primarily under; then, as one thing coming in under another removes it and takes its place, in place of, instead of.

34. יִָּבְּיָ depends on the implied answer to the preceding question, I cannot go up lest, etc. יִָּבְּיָ with יִָּבְּיָ, gaze upon, is stronger than with the direct object, when it means simply see. The prep. denotes that the sight not only falls upon the object, but remains fixed, rests in it, see on 1 : 4, 3 : 3.

CHAPTER XLV.

1. יִָּבְּיָ in reference to all, he could not maintain a self-restraint such as had regard to bystanders. יִָּבְּיָ by him, see on 42 : 24. יִָּבְּיָ from by me, or יִָּבְּיָ may retain something of its original force, from upon me, their presence being represented as burdensome and lying as an oppressive load upon him, comp. 42 : 36. יִָּבְּיָ § 150. 3.

2. יִָּבְּיָ § 197. d, § 275. 2. b. 4. יִָּבְּיָ . . . יִָּבְּיָ § 285. 1.

5. יִָּבְּיָ let it not burn in your eyes, i. e. let not anger be kindled there. Anger is here and 31 : 35 spoken of as manifesting itself in the eye.

6. וְ, used adverbially § 235. 3 (4), see 43 : 10. וְאֵינִי, see on 39 : 20, 40 : 13. וְהָיָה § 185. a. : וְנִקְרָא, Vav used after a negative disjunctively, or § 287. 1.

7. וְלִפְנֵי הַמַּלְאָכִים followed by לְ § 272. 2. a, to preserve life to you. לְמַלְאָכֵי § 207. 1. c, the fem. may be used as an abstract, unto a great deliverance, or as a collective § 198, unto a large escape, so that not a mere fraction but a numerous body might escape this peril.

8. אֲנִי, pronoun expressed because of the contrast with the following אֲנִי-הָיָה § 243. 1. כִּי, for, after a negative equivalent to but, see 42 : 12. אֲנִי. Pharaoh had the highest regard for him, was guided entirely by his counsels, and had entrusted the supreme management of everything to him. אֲנִי followed by אֲנִי, see on 1 : 18.

9. אֲנִי § 148. 3. 10. אֲנִי § 100. a (1), § 276. 1.

11. אֲנִי § 154. 3. 12. אֲנִי § 253. 2.

12. אֲנִי § 259. 2, § 278. אֲנִי, אֲנִי § 220. 1. c. אֲנִי is the subject and אֲנִי the predicate, the mouth speaking to you is my mouth.

15. אֲנִי with the direct object, or more commonly, as here, with לְ § 272. 2. a, gave a kiss to, etc.

16. אֲנִי § 274. 2. b. 18. אֲנִי eat ye ; the imper. is permissive.

19. אֲנִי § 86. b (2 m. s.), § 262. 2, thou art charged to say to them, etc.

20. אֲנִי, see on 37 : 21 ; pity like other emotions expresses itself in the eye, comp. ver. 5. אֲנִי see on 37 : 22. אֲנִי § 153. 5, § 157. 3, to have compassion upon, spare, followed by אֲנִי, since the act proceeds from a superior and reaches down upon an inferior. אֲנִי § 258. 2.

21. אֲנִי, preliminary statement of what is more fully described in detail from ver. 25 onward, comp. 42 : 20. אֲנִי continues the narration according to the succession of ideas in the mind of the writer, though it is not subsequent in the order of time to the statement of the preceding clause, see on 2 : 8. 19. אֲנִי according to the command of, see on 41 : 40.

22. אֲנִי in distributive apposition to אֲנִי ; when אֲנִי is used in the sense of an indefinite pronoun it rarely receives the article. Where it does receive it, as here and 1 Sam. 26 : 23, 1 Kin. 8 : 39, Prov. 20 : 3. 17, the article has its generic or universal force § 245. 5, 'a suit of clothes to the man' throughout the entire company, i. e. to each person. אֲנִי changes, i. e. a suit ; the plur. is used with reference to the different articles composing the dress, for each of which a change was furnished. אֲנִי § 251. 1. a. אֲנִי, supply 'shekels,' as that was the most familiar denomination § 251. 2. c ; so 'a million of money' would mean dollars in America and pounds sterling in Great Britain. אֲנִי § 253. 2.

23. כִּי־אֶתְּנֶה. Some refer the pronoun to what precedes, like this, i. e. the same as he had given his brothers, and in addition ten asses, etc. As, however, there is no conjunction before אֶתְּנֶה, it is more natural to refer כִּי to what comes after, as in vs. 17. 19, so that like this is equivalent to 'as follows.' כִּי־אֶתְּנֶה prep. in partitive sense.

24. אֲנִי־וְאַתְּמֵךְ, see on 37 : 22, Ges. renders tremble not, be ye not timid, but the ordinary meaning of the word yields a more suitable sense, be not angry, do not get into angry altercation with each other as to the part which you respectively took in this crime against me as well as against my father.

25. וְאֵתְּנֶה § 271. 2.

26. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה and that depends upon אֶתְּנֶה, and marks a transition from the direct to the indirect mode of citation. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה with וְ, see ver. 8. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה § 153. 5, was benumbed, remained cold and without emotion, or perhaps stunned by the intelligence which he was unable to credit. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה followed by כִּי before the person or thing to which faith is given.

27. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה § 131. 4.

28. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה. Although the names Jacob and Israel are often used interchangeably as simple equivalents, there appears to be a significance in putting this language in the mouth of prevailing Israel, 32 : 28. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה § 263. 1. b.

CHAPTER XLVI.

1. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה § 276. 2. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה § 256. d. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה, in memory of the divine covenant there made with Isaac, and probably upon the altar which Isaac had built, 26 : 23—25.

2. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה, indefinite plur. though one only is intended, see on 37 : 8.

3. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה § 144. 3, § 148. 2, the prep. וְ usual after verbs of fearing may be explained as indicating the source from which the fear proceeds, or that from which the fear would incite to flee. Upon the latter hypothesis וְ would here have a negative sense before the infin. away from going down, i. e. so as not to go down, see on 44 : 7.

4. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה emphatic § 243. 1. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה § 169. 3. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה 282. a, the emphasis of the repetition is increased by the unusual position of the infin. which here stands after instead of before the finite verb, and by the particle וְ which implies accession, I will bring thee up, yea, bring thee up. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה, the subject stands emphatically before the verb § 270. a. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה shall put his hand upon thine eyes, pay the last tribute of affection by closing the eyes in death.

5. וְכִי־אֶתְּנֶה § 276. 2.

EXODUS. CHAPTER XX.

2. v The sections of the Masoretic text were doubtless intended to distinguish the several commandments, though it is remarkable that the division thus indicated agrees neither with that of the ancient Jews represented by Josephus and Philo, nor with that which prevails among the modern Jews. The former, like the majority of the Christian fathers and the Reformed Churches of the present day, regarded the prohibition of idolatry, ver. 3, as the first commandment, that of image-worship, vs. 4-6, the second, and under the tenth they included the whole of ver. 17. The latter find the first commandment in ver. 2, though it has not the form of a command, combine the prohibition of idolatry and image-worship, vs. 3-6, as the second, and include the whole of ver. 17 in the tenth. The sections of the text, on the contrary, agree with the division of Augustine, which after him became current in the Latin church, and was retained likewise by Luther. According to this the first commandment, vs. 2-6, prohibits both idolatry and image-worship, no distinction being made between offences against the unity of God and against his spirituality; and two commandments are devoted to the sin of coveting, ver. 17, though this is attended with the inconvenience of creating a distinction in things fundamentally identical, and is moreover precluded by a variation in the order of the clauses in Deut. 5, where the decalogue is repeated.

The v after ver. 7 indicates a wider separation than v (see on Gen. 1:5), and is perhaps designed to mark the limit of the first table, a more equable division of the matter being attained thus than by dividing at any other point.

This passage is provided with a double system of accents, § 39. 4. α , one having relation to its division into verses and the other into commandments. Thus vs. 2-6 are accented both as separate verses and as forming together one paragraph: so also vs. 8-11. And the sixth, seventh, eighth, and ninth commandments (according to the ordinary reckoning), are accented both individually and as forming together a single verse; they are so numbered in Deut. 5, though the common enumeration in Ex. 20 makes them four distinct verses. Where the limits of the verse and of the commandment are identical, as in the third, ver. 7, and the fifth, ver. 12, the two systems of accents coincide and are reduced to one. In ver. 17 there is but a single series of accents, its first clause having no separate accentuation to distinguish it as a complete commandment; the v in this verse is also omitted in many manuscripts and in a few printed editions.

When considered as one paragraph, vs. 2-6 are divided into three clauses, § 36. 1, the first ending at $\text{עָשֶׂה לְךָ אֱלֹהִים$, ver. 5, and the second at $\text{וְלֹא יִשְׁתַּחֲוֶה לְאֱלֹהֵי אֲחֵרִים$, ver. 5. The Segholate clause is subdivided at $\text{וְלֹא יִשְׁתַּחֲוֶה לְאֱלֹהֵי אֲחֵרִים}$, לְבַעַל אֲחֵרִים , and $\text{הַיִּזְבֵּחַ הַזֶּה}$, ver. 4, וְיִזְבֵּחַ , ver. 3, וְיִזְבֵּחַ and וְיִזְבֵּחַ , ver. 2. In the second clause both the subdivisions and the immediate antecedents of Athnabh coincide with the accents before Silluk, which marks the last clause of ver. 5 taken by itself. The third or Silluk clause is subdivided at וְיִזְבֵּחַ . Returning to the two subdivisions of the first clause in ver. 2, the Zakeph Katon of the first is preceded by Munahh and Pashta, the R'bhia of the second by Munahh and Geresh, and this by Kadhma, T'lisha K'tanna and Munahh. This same verse, when accented separately, consists of two clauses, the first ending at וְיִזְבֵּחַ , which is preceded by Munahh and Tiphkha, while וְיִזְבֵּחַ is preceded by Merka and Tiphkha, and this by Merka and T'bhira, and this by Darga. In most editions, though not in all, וְיִזְבֵּחַ has an Athnabh additional to the two accents already explained. This indicates a paragraph of two clauses, of which the first is ver. 2, and the second ver. 3, and consequently represents the ordinary Reformed view of the length of the first commandment.

3. וְיִזְבֵּחַ , this may either be joined by Makkeph to the following word and receive Methegh, or it may receive Munahh whether as the second conjunctive before T'bhira or as the fourth before Geresh. וְיִזְבֵּחַ § 275. 1. וְיִזְבֵּחַ § 39. 4. a, upon my face, i. e. before me, an act performed in the presence of another being said to be upon his face, just as we speak of anything adjacent in a lateral direction as 'upon one's side' or 'upon his right or his left hand.' Others give to face here the sense, which it sometimes has, of person or self; וְיִזְבֵּחַ will then mean either above me, or besides me, the preposition denoting something superadded.

4. וְיִזְבֵּחַ § 243. 2, may either be followed by Makkeph or have one of the conjunctives by which it is accompanied; in the former case the following וְיִזְבֵּחַ will have Daghest forte conjunctive, in the latter it will remain without it, as is indicated by the Raphe § 27. וְיִזְבֵּחַ § 256. c, see on Gen. 45:6. וְיִזְבֵּחַ is not a second object of וְיִזְבֵּחַ § 273. 3, make an image or any form of God (out of) that which is, etc. but has וְיִזְבֵּחַ for its antecedent. וְיִזְבֵּחַ , וְיִזְבֵּחַ , see on 1:7.

5. וְיִזְבֵּחַ § 111. 3. a. וְיִזְבֵּחַ § 207. 1. a, that the second generation, though not explicitly mentioned, is not to be excluded, is both obvious in itself and apparent from 34:7. וְיִזְבֵּחַ § 102. 3, in reference to those hating me. This law of divine retribution holds in regard to God's enemies, who are regarded as perpetuating from generation to generation an organized opposition to the divine government, and thus as justly liable for the sins of their predecessors which they justify and increase by accessions of their own. The links of this fatal connection can only be broken by leaving the ranks of those who 'hate' God, and becoming allied to those who 'love' him.

6. $\text{אַלְפִּיָּם אֶלְפִּיָּם}$ to thousands, not contemporaneous individuals merely, but counted down the line of descent, i. e. so many generations, as appears both from the contrast with the preceding verse and from the parallel expression in Deut. 7 : 9. וְיִשְׁמְרוּ § 254. 9. b.

7. אֵלֶיךָ thou shalt not lift up the name of Jehovah thy God to vanity or falsehood, i. e. bring it into connection with what is false, or as the 'lifting up' intended is by means of the voice, the verb may be translated thou shalt not utter. אֵלֶיךָ § 16. 1, the article before an abstract noun in a universal sense § 245. 5.

8. זָכֹר § 268. 2. The trifling differences in the text of the commandments in Exodus and in Deuteronomy are no disparagement to the accuracy of either book. Exodus gives us doubtless an exact transcript of the tables of stone upon which they were engraved. Deuteronomy contains the law as reiterated and enforced by Moses in his address to the people, in which case it is natural to expect less regard to verbal precision than to the substantial meaning. Accordingly in Deut. 5 : 12 שָׁמַר observe is substituted for זָכֹר remember, and this latter word is reserved to introduce the special consideration which is there urged for the observance of the Sabbath: "And remember that thou wast a servant in the land of Egypt and that the Lord thy God brought thee out thence through a mighty hand and by a stretched-out arm; therefore the Lord thy God commanded thee to keep the Sabbath-day." This is not inconsistent with the appointment of the Sabbath to commemorate the rest of God after the work of creation. In conformity with this grand ideal, man weekly finishes his toil and enters into rest, the rest which God has appointed, a type and foretaste of the ultimate release which God is preparing for him in communion with himself. The release from Egyptian bondage was a preliminary realization of this great sabbatic idea, and a fresh type and pledge of the final consummation. It affords a fresh reason, therefore, and one of peculiar force to Israel, why the Sabbath should be faithfully kept. It is accordingly quite appropriate, in the address of the lawgiver to the people, while the law itself as engraved on stone presents a motive more in accordance with its universal and perpetual obligation. The other variations are still more unimportant, and consist of the insertion or omission of the conjunction וְ and; the substitution of one word for another which is synonymous, as אֵלֶיךָ for אֶלֶיךָ falsehood in the ninth commandment, חָשַׁבְתָּ for חָשַׁבְתָּ desire or covet in the tenth; a rhetorical amplification, as in both the injunction and the promise of the fifth, the insertion of ox and ass along with cattle, as well as of the clause 'that thy man-servant and thy maid-servant may rest as well as thou' in the fourth, and of field after house in the tenth; and the alteration in the order of the clauses of the tenth, the importance of which in the question of the proper division of the commandments has been already adverted to, see on ver. 2.

Considered as one paragraph, vs. 8—11 are divided into three clauses, the first ending with חָשַׁבְתָּ ver. 9, and the second with חָשַׁבְתָּ ver. 11. The first clause is subdivided at חָשַׁבְתָּ ver. 8. The second at חָשַׁבְתָּ , חָשַׁבְתָּ , חָשַׁבְתָּ , חָשַׁבְתָּ , ver. 10, besides the subdivisions in ver. 11, in which the two systems of accentuation coincide.

9. חָשַׁבְתָּ § 274. 2. a. : חָשַׁבְתָּ § 214. 1. b. § 221. 2. a.

10. חָשַׁבְתָּ , the article omitted before the noun, though retained before the adjective § 249. 1. c. or more probably the noun is in the construct, see on Gen. 2 : 3. חָשַׁבְתָּ § 231. 3. a. חָשַׁבְתָּ § 276. 1 and 3. חָשַׁבְתָּ § 221. 2. a. חָשַׁבְתָּ § 211. a. : חָשַׁבְתָּ , used not of private dwellings but of the gates of public edifices or of cities : here of course the latter.

11. חָשַׁבְתָּ § 157. 3. 12. חָשַׁבְתָּ § 79. 2, § 88 (2 and 3 m. pl.).

16. חָשַׁבְתָּ , see on Gen. 37 : 10.

18. חָשַׁבְתָּ § 275. 2 see in the wide sense of perceive, used of objects some of which addressed themselves to a different sense than that of sight, comp. Gen. 2 : 19, 42 : 1. חָשַׁבְתָּ predicate § 273. 4. חָשַׁבְתָּ § 275. 2. a. : חָשַׁבְתָּ , see on Gen. 1 : 7, 37 : 18.

20. חָשַׁבְתָּ , when the infin. with חָשַׁבְתָּ takes חָשַׁבְתָּ , this may either precede the particle, 2 Sam. 14 : 20, 17 : 14, or follow it, 1 Chron. 19 : 3. חָשַׁבְתָּ to try you, i. e. as explained in the following clause, whether you can thus be made to fear him and avoid sin. חָשַׁבְתָּ , see on ver. 3, that his fear § 254. 9 may be before you. This may mean either that the fear of God may be inspired by the spectacle transacted before you, or that his fear may be the thing to which you look in all your conduct, and by which you are guided, comp. Ps. 36 : 2. חָשַׁבְתָּ , see on Gen. 3 : 11, commonly followed by the infin., only in a few instances, as here, by the finite verb. חָשַׁבְתָּ § 112. 4.

21. חָשַׁבְתָּ § 80. a (3). חָשַׁבְתָּ § 193. c.

JUDGES. CHAPTER XIII.

1. חָשַׁבְתָּ § 150. 2 (p. 181), § 269. a. חָשַׁבְתָּ generic article § 245. 5. a. LXX τὸ πονηρόν. The recurrence of the same phrase at the beginning of each section of this book, 2 : 11, 3 : 7. 12, 4 : 1, 6 : 1, 10 : 6, affords a strong incidental proof of unity of authorship. בְּעֵינָיו in the eyes of, that which was evil in his view, as judged of by him. בְּיָדָם into the hand of, i. e. into their power. The noun is singular on account of its secondary sense in this phrase, see on Gen. 37 : 21. The prep. בְּ properly means in; it retains this sense after a verb of motion, denoting that the thing spoken of not only comes to a particular place, but remains in it. פְּלִשְׁתִּים , commonly, as here, without the article, because Philistim, Gen. 10 : 14, is the proper name of the nation, like Israel, Edom, Amalek. It is in this plural form rarely used as a Gentile derivative, so as to receive the article § 245. 5. a, thus $\text{פְּלִשְׁתֵּי הַיָּם}$, 2 Sam. 5 : 19, 2 Chron. 21 : 16, 26 : 6. $\text{אַרְבָּעֵימֵאוֹת שָׁנָה}$ § 251. 1 and 2. שָׁנָה § 274. 2. a. These forty years extend beyond the life of Samson to the decisive victory gained over the Philistines at Mizpeh by Samuel, 1 Sam. 7 : 13.

2. Marg. note שֵׁנַיִם חֲפָטָה , Haphtarah of שָׁנָה, i. e. here begins the Haphtarah or lesson from the prophets corresponding to or to be read in connection with the Parashah or lesson from the law beginning Num. 4 : 21, and called שֵׁנַיִם , because this word occurs near the commencement of it. חֲפָטָה § 248. a. בְּמִצְרָה , a town originally assigned to Judah, Josh. 15 : 33, but subsequently transferred to Dan, Josh. 19 : 41. בְּמִצְרָה . The supernatural circumstances connected with the birth of Samson, as with that of Isaac, of Samuel, and of John the Baptist, make more conspicuous the fact that he was not a product of nature but a gift of divine grace, in this a type of the great deliverer whose birth was supernatural in a still higher sense.

3. מַלְאָכֵי יְהוָה § 246. 3, not an angel, but the angel of Jehovah, who repeatedly appears in the Old Testament as the messenger of Jehovah, and yet is expressly identified with Jehovah, ver. 22, Ex. 3 : 2. 4, 23 : 20. 21, Judg. 6 : 12. 14. וְהָיָה § 16. 1, the sense of the pret. with Vav conv. is determined by its being a sequence of the present indicated by וְהָיָה § 265. b.

5. קִדְּשׁוּ לַיהוָה part. with the inflection of the pret. § 90 (2 f. s.). קִדְּשׁוּ consecrated to God, const. before the object § 254. 9, and hence not necessarily definite § 249. 1. b, a Nazarite unto God. לַיהוָה § 135. 2. Samson only began what was reserved for Samuel, Saul and David to complete.

6. אִישׁ אֱלֹהִים , the man of God, the person of whom she speaks is clearly defined in her own mind, and in the vividness of her impressions she speaks as though he were also known to her husband. מִיָּמָה § 266. 1. מִיָּמָה § 119. 2. מִיָּמָה § 75. 2, from what place? whence?

אֲשֶׁר, the indirect quotation, which in Hebrew is much less frequent than the direct.

8. אֲשֶׁר § 240. 2, see Gen. 43 : 20, 44 : 18. אֲשֶׁר § 199. c, § 201. 2. : אֲשֶׁר Pu. pret. § 93. b, signifying a past in relation to the preceding future § 262. 1, with the art. in the sense of the relative pron. § 245. 5. b, who shall have been born. Others explain it as an abbreviated Pu. part. for אֲשֶׁר יִהְיֶה § 93. e. Marg. note the ל with Daghesh.

9. אֲשֶׁר with א as other verbs of sense, see on Gen. 3 : 3, implying the intimate contact of the sense with its object. אֲשֶׁר, see on Gen. 40 : 8.

10. הַיּוֹם, not to-day, which would be הַיּוֹם without the prep. § 245. 3. b, but in the well known day, or as we should say, 'the other day.'

11. : אֲנִי I am. As there is no word in Hebrew answering to 'yes,' an affirmative answer is mostly given by means of the personal pronoun, Gen. 27 : 24, 1 Kin. 18 : 8, or by repeating the verb contained in the question, 1 Sam. 23 : 11. 12.

12. אֲנִי § 97. 2. b, § 275. 1. : אֲנִי וְהַיְלֵד וְהַמָּוֶל. Gesenius, Lex. under אֲנִי translates, what will be the manner of the child (i. e. what sort of a child will he be) and what will he do? But it is plain both from Manoah's prayer, ver. 8, and from the angel's answer, vs. 13, 14, that the question relates not to the appearance and actions of the child, but to the duty of the parents. The true rendering, therefore, is, what is the judgment of the child, const. of object § 254. 9, the law or requirement respecting him, and the treatment of him, suf. denoting the object, what must we do to him, or even before his birth in relation to him?

16. אֲנִי § 111. 2. b, with א in a partitive sense, eat in or into thy bread, i. e. eat of it. אֲנִי for א is connected with ver. 15, and explains how Manoah came to make such a request.

17. אֲנִי who § 75. 1 is used because the reference is to a person, though אֲנִי what might have been expected and actually occurs elsewhere in the like connexion, Gen. 32 : 28, Prov. 30 : 4. אֲנִי assigns the reason for asking after his name, which is presented not conditionally but in the form of an assertion, comp. Gen. 44 : 22, for thy words shall come to pass and we will honour thee. אֲנִי, marg. note אֲנִי Yodh superfluous, so that the K'ri is אֲנִי, agreeing in number with the verb § 48, while the K'thibh אֲנִי does not § 275. 1, comp. ver. 12.

18. אֲנִי § 263. 2, with א of the subject respecting which the inquiry is made, see on Gen. 40 : 27, 43 : 7, why is this that thou wilt ask in respect to my name? The state of mind, from which the question proceeded, still continued, and it was liable to be asked, until it should be answered, comp. Gen. 44:7. וְהָיָה, marg. note, abbreviated for וְהָיָה אֲחֵרֵיכֶם אֶתְחַזְּקוּ, other copies with Makkeph, in some editions וְהָיָה instead of having a disjunctive accent is joined by Makkeph to the following word. : פְּלִיאִי, marg. אֵלֶּף יְהִיֶּר Aleph superfluous, so that the K'ri is פְּלִי, the pausal form § 65 (3) of פְּלִי I. 1. from פֶּלֶא root § 184. b, cognate and equivalent to the פֶּלֶא noun פְּלִיאָה, comp. Is. 9:5. The K'thibh is פְּלִיאָה, an adj. derived from the preceding noun § 184.

19. וַיִּמְדָּהוּ subject omitted § 243. 1, making marvellous to act, i. e. acting marvellously § 269. a, see on Gen. 2:3. : וַיִּמְדָּהוּ § 276. 3, in respect to the repetition in the following verse, see on Gen. 37:5.

20. וַיִּבְנֶה אֱלֹהִים. As there is no mention of the construction of an altar, doubtless the rock, ver. 19, upon which the offering was made is so called. The sacrifice of Manoah has sometimes been represented as a violation of the laws of the Pentateuch regarding the priesthood and the sanctuary. It is so only in appearance, however, not in reality. It was prescribed, Lev. 17:3—7, Deut. 12:5—14, that sacrifices should be offered only at the sanctuary, because there God ordinarily manifested himself; and he could be acceptably approached only through the appointed intervention of the priesthood, Num. 3:10, 16:40. But if God in an extraordinary way manifested himself in any other place, that became for the time a sanctuary: and if he appeared to any man without the intervention of the priesthood, that constituted him for the time a priest, and was his warrant for paying his worship directly without the aid of those officially appointed for the purpose. This extraordinary investiture, however, lasted only while the cause to which it was owing continued. While it was no violation of the law for Manoah to act as he did under the circumstances, it would have been sinful for him to have arrogated to himself thenceforward the functions of the priesthood, or to have established a permanent worship at the altar thus signally honoured.

21. וַיִּבְרָא § 172. 2, § 173. 2.

23. וְהָיָה pret. conditioned by the preceding clause, he would have taken § 262. 1. : וְהָיָה § 175. 1. וְהָיָה at the time, i. e. at this time § 245. 3. b, see on Gen. 39:10.

25. וְהָיָה § 140. 5. וְהָיָה § 119. 3. וְהָיָה, so named from the circumstance related 18:12, and which occurred in the early settlement of the land, 18:1, Josh 19:47, long before the time of Samson, so that there is no anachronism in the mention of this name here. This was in the vicinity of Samson's residence. ver. 2, and of the place of his burial, 16:31. Marg. note abbreviated from וְהָיָה עַד כְּאֵן lit. until so, i. e. thus far. This marks the limit of the lesson beginning at ver. 2.

CHAPTER XIV.

1. הַמִּצְטָתָהּ § 196. b, § 219. 1. The local remains even after the prep. בְּ § 219. 1. a, and in ver. 5 after a noun in the const. $\text{בְּרֵצֵי הַמִּצְטָתָהּ}$ vineyards at Timnath. In Josh. 19 : 43 the vowel termination is added merely to prolong the name, without reference to its local or directive force § 61. 6. a. It lay southwest of Zorah, in the direction of the plain of the sea-coast, and hence Samson 'went down' to Timnath, and 'went up' as he returned.

2. The marriage contract was usually made by the parents, Gen. 21 : 21, 24 : 3, etc., 34 : 4. 6. --תָּקַח take, the verb which is commonly used in speaking of matrimonial alliances, her to (or for) me to wife, the prep. implying a transition from one state to another, comp. Gen. 1 : 29.

3. בְּיָמָיו § 276. 1. בְּיָמֶיהָ § 275. 6, the father and mother are represented as speaking separately. בְּיָמֶיהָ § 132. 2. בְּיָמֶיהָ § 262. 2, she has been and still is right, approved, pleasing.

5. בְּיָמֶיהָ § 276. 2 and 3. בְּיָמֶיהָ § 208. 3. d, comp. בְּיָמֶיהָ 13 : 15. 19.

6. בְּיָמֶיהָ , generic article § 245. 5. d.

8. בְּיָמֶיהָ from, indicating separation in point of time, i. e. after days, an indefinite period, see on Gen. 41 : 1. בְּיָמֶיהָ in the body, i. e. the skeleton, to which jackals and birds of prey would reduce it in a very short time. The attempt has been made to fasten upon the sacred writer the notion once prevalent among the Greeks and Romans that bees were bred by a putrefying carcass, Virg. Georg. 4. 299, etc. But his language suggests nothing of the kind. A parallel more to the purpose is Herod. 5. 114, the swarm of bees which took possession of the skull of Onesilus and filled it with a honeycomb.

9. בְּיָמֶיהָ § 282. בְּיָמֶיהָ § 276. 3.

10. בְּיָמֶיהָ § 263. 4. בְּיָמֶיהָ § 210. a.

11. בְּיָמֶיהָ § 251. 2. b. בְּיָמֶיהָ § 102. 3, they, the parents or friends of his wife, who are suggested by the context, though not expressly mentioned : for use of prep. see on Gen. 39 : 10.

12. בְּיָמֶיהָ § 251. 4, § 274. 2. a.

13. בְּיָמֶיהָ § 287. 2. בְּיָמֶיהָ § 243. 1.

14. The lion which sought to devour Samson, the representative and champion of Israel, was slain, and out of his carcass came sweetness and food. The riddle, like the incident which gave occasion to it, had a latent meaning for the Philistines and for every other foe, whether of the people of God or of the great captain of their salvation.

15. בְּיָמֶיהָ . The rise of various readings from supposed difficulties is well illustrated by the fact that several ancient versions here substitute fourth הַיּוֹם הַרְבִּיעִי for seventh, so the LXX, ἐν τῇ ἡμέρᾳ τῇ τετάρτῃ. Doubtless they began their urgency as soon as they abandoned the hope of discovering the solution for themselves, but on the seventh day they enforced their request with the threat here mentioned. שָׁמַיְךָ with five § 245. 5, for the prep. see on Gen. 39:12. 14. אֶתְּפֹרֵיךָ Pi. inf.; some editions omit Methegh converting into the Kal inf., though Yodh is nowhere else retained in that form.

16. אֶגִּידֶנָּה § 284.

17. שִׁבְעַת § 251. 4 the seven days, i. e. the rest of the seven days from the time that the solicitation was first made of her, as in Josh. 4:14 'all his life' for 'all the rest of his life.'

18. יָבֵא § 263. 1. b; to go in applied to the sun is to set, as to go out אֲרִיִּשׁ is to rise. According to the Jewish reckoning the day ended at sunset. הִתְרַבְּחָה § 61. 6. a, § 196. c. אֶתְּפֹרֵיךָ § 260. 1. אֶתְּפֹרֵיךָ, comp. Gen. 39:14, ploughed with my heifer, performed the work by aid which I furnished. אֶתְּפֹרֵיךָ pret. modified by a previous condition § 262. 1.

19. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן § 271. 2. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן § 175. 3. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן prep. partitive of them, the inhabitants of the place, as is plainly enough implied, though they had not been expressly mentioned. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן § 251. 2 and a. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן § 254. 9. b. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן § 271. 2. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן § 220. 1. c.

CHAPTER XV.

1. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן, see on 14:8. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן prep. expressing intimate conjunction, see on Gen. 41:5, with a kid, taking a kid along with him.

2. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן § 260. 2 (2). אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן § 260. 1. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן, see on Gen. 44:33.

3. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן with אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן, which may be taken in a comparative sense § 260. a, or in its ordinary signification, I am guiltless from the Philistines, a parte Philistcorum, i. e. as judged from their stand-point, guiltless so far as they are concerned, comp. Num. 32:22; prop. I have been and still am guiltless § 262. 2. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן § 245. 3. b. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן explains in what he was guiltless, that I am doing, etc.; part. expresses the proximate future § 266. 2.

5. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן. The ancient versions assume an ellipsis of the conjunction, vineyards and olive trees, comp. Deut. 24:17; according to most modern interpreters אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן is in the const. olive-yards.

6. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן § 243. 2. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן § 105. a. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן, see on 14:15.

7. אֲשֶׁר־בָּהֶן § 263. 2, if ye will do like this, if you are going to act in this manner, the action being regarded as not wholly past but as proceeding from a still existing state of mind, and therefore liable to be repeated, see on 13 : 18, Gen. 44 : 7. אֲנִי I declare that, see on Gen. 43 : 10, if I shall have avenged myself § 77. 2, § 262. 1, of you, אֶתְּ expressing hostility, see on Gen. 37 : 10, then § 287. 2 afterwards I will cease, but not before.

8. $\text{אֶתְּ-צֵל-רַגְלָהּ}$, a proverbial expression denoting the completeness or the dreadful character of the slaughter, but whose precise signification is obscure. According to some authorities leg upon thigh, the phrase standing absolutely § 274. 2. e, comp. Gen. 42 : 6, means that their mangled members were piled promiscuously in heaps, or it might refer to the confusion of the fray as they were huddled together in combat or in flight. According to others בְּצֵל upon here signifies in addition to, he smote them in leg and thigh, the phrase being directly governed by the verb, which will then have a triple object § 271. 4 utterly disabling them; with this the English phrase 'to have one on the hip' might be compared. בְּצֵל const. before the proper noun עַיִן-בְּצֵל which consequently makes the whole phrase definite § 246. 3. A particular well-known cave is doubtless meant.

9. בְּ-הִתְּחַלְּתִי , the prep. may have its local sense in, or denote hostility against. בְּ-הִתְּחַלְּתִי § 65 (3), § 246. 1. a.

11. אֶתְּ-אֶתְּ § 251. 2. a. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ § 262. 2. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ , see on Gen. 1 : 18, 45 : 8. 26.

12. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ § 131. 4. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ with אֶתְּ , see on Gen. 37 : 10. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ § 243. 1.

13. אֶתְּ for, after a negative but. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ § 130. 1, with אֶתְּ , see on 13 : 1. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ prep. see on Gen. 39 : 12. 14.

14. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ § 243. 1. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ , construed here as fem., but in ver. 13 as masc. § 200. c. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ § 245. 5. d. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ , the verb may be trans. with indef. subject § 243. 2, or intrans. and agree with אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ . אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ , see 14 : 15, 15 : 6.

15. אֶתְּ prep. in instrumental sense, comp. ver. 13.

16. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ heap § 280. a, this form of the word is selected instead of the more usual one אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ § 184. a (2), for the sake of the assonance or paronomasia, see on אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ , Gen. 1. 2. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ § 175. 1.

17. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ § 174. 3, see on Gen. 39 : 10. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ , construction, see on Gen. 1 : 5.

18. אֶתְּ thou, not I myself § 243. 1. אֶתְּ , declaratively, showing his expectation, I shall die, or interrogatively § 284. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ § 245. 5, see on Gen. 39 : 12. 14.

19. אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ . The prayer was made to אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ , it is answered by אֶתְּ-רַגְלָהּ ; this may illustrate the facility with which these divine names are interchanged, and how slender a basis the employment of the one or of the other affords for the critical hypotheses built upon it in respect to the Pentateuch, see on Gen. 2 : 4. הַמְּצִיטָה the socket, a cavity in Lehi (לְהִי is here a proper noun), which received this name perhaps from some fancied resemblance to the socket of a tooth. אָקָרָא 3 m. s. indefinite § 243. 2.

20. שֹׁפְטֵי יִשְׂרָאֵל. The judges of Israel were not appointed for the purpose of deciding civil suits between man and man, nor were they simply civil magistrates receiving this specific title, because in states where the legislative, executive and judicial functions are combined in the same hand, the administration of justice is one of the most important as well as the most familiar attributes of sovereignty. But they were extraordinary officers divinely raised up and commissioned to judge Israel, i. e. to do the chosen people justice against their oppressors by delivering the former and punishing the latter, 2 : 16. 18, 10 : 1. 2. Several of them, as occasion demanded, discharged civil functions likewise. But there is no evidence of this in the case of all of them, none for example in the case of Samson ; and at any rate this was not the main design of the office. : הַשֹּׁפֵט § 251. 2. and a. This preliminary statement of the length of time that Samson judged Israel, which, after further details are given, is repeated at the end of his life, 16 : 31, is quite in accordance with the style of Hebrew history, see on Gen. 37 : 5. It, therefore, is no warrant for the suspicion that the life of Samson originally ended here, and that the following chapter was added subsequently, nor that this verse has by some error been transposed from its true position at the close of ch. 16.

CHAPTER XVI.

2. הַמְּצִיטָה, supply 'it was told,' comp. Isa. 5 : 9. - נִדְרֵנוּ, let us keep quiet until. יִשְׁרָאֵל may be in the inf. const. § 157. 1 or in the pret. § 156. 2, in the sense of the future perfect, being conditioned by the idea of futurity involved in the preceding particle § 262. 1.

3. הַמְּצִיטָה, construed with direct object, or, as here, with נִדְרֵנוּ, denoting contact with the thing grasped, see on Gen. 3 : 3, as we say, 'to lay hold on.' וְהַמְּצִיטָה § 251. 4. הַמְּצִיטָה § 275. 5.

5. הַמְּצִיטָה might be a qualifying adj. with the article omitted § 249. 1. b, but it is more natural to regard it as the predicate § 259. a, by what, see on Gen. 39 : 12. 14, his strength is or is made great. הַמְּצִיטָה § 35. 1, with הַמְּצִיטָה prevail in respect to him, i. e. over him. הַמְּצִיטָה, you do that and we will do this § 243. 1. הַמְּצִיטָה § 130. b, marg. the Tav with Pattahh. הַמְּצִיטָה, in distributive apposition. : הַמְּצִיטָה, in apposition with 'shekels' § 253. 2, which is to be supplied § 251. 2. c.

7. כְּאִישׁ־אֶחָד like an ordinary man, see on Gen. 2 : 23, lit. one of the mass of men § 248. a ; in ver. 17 the expression is כְּכָל־אֲנָשִׁים like all other men. בְּאָדָם properly means mankind, the human race § 245. 5.

9. עָלַיְךָ in reference to her, for her, to aid her. עָלַיְךָ upon thee, indicating hostility and imminence of approach, already pouncing down upon their certain prey. וַיִּתְקַן § 263. 3. $\text{וַיִּשְׁמַע־הָאֵשׁ־בְּרִיחָהּ}$ § 256, § 245. 5. d. $\text{וַיִּשְׁמַע־הָאֵשׁ־בְּרִיחָהּ}$ § 102. 3, in its smelling the fire ; it cannot be rendered when the fire smells it, even if this yielded as good a sense, for the interposition of the suf. shows that the inf. is not in the const. before וַיִּשְׁמַע § 256.

10. וַיִּתְקַן § 142. 3, § 141. 2 (p. 174), with קָן denoting hostility.

11. וַיִּתְקַן . . . וַיִּתְקַן § 285. 1. וַיִּתְקַן § 111. 3. b, § 275. 1, the Niphal of this verb has Pattahh in all the forms which occur both of the preterite and participle, except 3 f. s. pret. וַיִּתְקַן .

13. An illustration of the manner in which various readings arise under the influence of parallel passages is afforded by the LXX, which inserts after this verse, 'and fastenest it with the pin to the wall, then shall I be weak as another man. And it came to pass when he was asleep that Delilah took the seven locks of his head and wove them in the web.'

14. וַיִּתְקַן § 246. 3. a.

15. וַיִּתְקַן § 262. 2. וַיִּתְקַן § 235. 3 (4).

16. וַיִּתְקַן § 272. 2. a. וַיִּתְקַן § 25, marg. the Lamedh weak (Raphé), i. e. without Daghesh forte § 27.

17. וַיִּתְקַן , see on 13 : 5. וַיִּתְקַן may be translated, if I had been shaven, then my strength would have departed, with special reference to the period embraced in the preceding statement, or as a general truth, § 262. 3. If I were shaven, my strength would depart.

18. וַיִּתְקַן the K'ri וַיִּתְקַן substitutes the direct for the indirect quotation in the K'thibh וַיִּתְקַן . וַיִּתְקַן § 265. b.

19. וַיִּתְקַן the man whose business it was, the barber § 245. 3.

20. וַיִּתְקַן § 280. 1, lit. as time by time, as at other times : the prep. וַיִּתְקַן denoting conjunction, see on Gen. 3 : 3, as though time were placed by or beside time in a continuous series.

21. וַיִּתְקַן , see on Gen. 39 : 20.

23. וַיִּתְקַן , referring to a single idol § 201. 2.

25. וַיִּתְקַן K'thibh, for which the K'ri substitutes the infin. of the cognate verb וַיִּתְקַן § 179. 2. a. וַיִּתְקַן § 245. 3.

26. וַיִּתְקַן with וַיִּתְקַן , comp. ver. 3. וַיִּתְקַן K'thibh § 150. 1 (p. 181), the K'ri has the וַיִּתְקַן form וַיִּתְקַן .

27. קָלָא § 271. 1. עַמְּיָאָה § 245. 1, composing 'the people,' ver. 24. הַפְּזִי, see on Gen. 43:30. הַפְּזִי, see on Gen. 39:11. הַפְּזִי, the part. with the art. may be resolved into the relative with the finite verb, the ones gazing at, i. e. who gazed at; on the construction of הַפְּזִי with פ, see Gen. 1:4, 44:34; הַפְּזִי . . . הַפְּזִי is parenthetical § 249. 1.

28. וְיִאָּמַר § 35. 2. הַיָּהוָה § 47. הַפְּזִי masc. here and 2 Sam. 23:8 K'thibh § 197. b. הַפְּזִי § 245. 2. הַפְּזִי § 91. c, § 271. 3, with הַפְּזִי before the thing on account of which vengeance is taken, considered as the cause from which this effect proceeds: and also before the person on whom vengeance is taken, this being regarded as a compensation for past injuries exacted from them: in 15:7 it is followed by הַפְּזִי. הַפְּזִי vengeance of once § 235. 3 (3), § 254. 6. b, which shall at one time avenge the entire wrong. Others make הַפְּזִי refer to eye, and take the following הַפְּזִי in a partitive sense, vengeance of (or for § 254. 9) one of my two eyes, supposing that he regards the vengeance, which he intends, as but half a satisfaction for the injury inflicted upon him. The Rabbins say that vengeance for the other was to be postponed to the retributions of the world to come. הַפְּזִי § 22. b, § 223. 1. a.

29. הַפְּזִי agrees either with הַפְּזִי or with Samson: in either case it is parenthetical, and the following clause must be connected with הַפְּזִי.

30. וְיִאָּמַר § 172. 4. הַפְּזִי the prep. denotes conjunction, with might, see on Gen. 3:3.

1 SAMUEL, CHAPTER XVII.

3. הַפְּזִי unto the mountain, i. e. they extended to it and upon it from the valley הַפְּזִי, ver. 2, in which the encampments were. הַפְּזִי, the Hebrews say from this, where our idiom requires 'in this direction' or 'on this side,' see on Gen. 1:7; הַפְּזִי repeated is this—that, the finger being supposed to point first in one direction and then in its opposite. הַפְּזִי, this is the central ravine, while the valley הַפְּזִי embraced the entire depression between the mountains, including the elevated plateaus on which the rival armies lay. הַפְּזִי, see on Gen. 42:23.

4. הַפְּזִי the well-known champion § 245. 3, from הַפְּזִי. The Vulg. vir spurius seems to derive it from הַפְּזִי a son. הַפְּזִי. Herodotus, 1. 68, speaks of a skeleton seven cubits long. Pliny, Nat. Hist. 7. 16, speaks of an Arabian of his own day who was nine feet nine inches high, and two men in the reign of Augustus who were half a foot taller.

5. הַפְּזִי § 216. 1. e. הַפְּזִי § 273. 3. הַפְּזִי § 90 (pass.). הַפְּזִי § 253. 2.

8. הַפְּזִי § 245. 4, the Philistine par excellence, representing the entire body.

9. מִן־הַיָּמִינִים marg. abbreviated for $\text{מִן־הַיָּמִינִים קָטָן קָטָן קָטָן קָטָן}$. מִן־הַיָּמִינִים , see on Judg. 16 : 5. 11. אֶת־הַיָּמִינִים § 19. 1, § 147. 1.

12. הַיָּמִינִים § 249. 2. c, this Ephrathite, Gen. 35 : 19, viz. the one spoken of 16 : 1, etc. הַיָּמִינִים § 253. b. שִׁבְעָה , only seven are named, 1 Chron. 2 : 13-15, perhaps one may have died in early life or without issue. $\text{בָּאֵת־בְּנֵי־הַיָּמִינִים}$, great age is elsewhere expressed by the words $\text{בָּאֵת־בְּנֵי־הַיָּמִינִים}$ come into days or advanced in days, Gen. 24 : 1, Josh. 13 : 1, 23 : 1; advanced among men is here used as an equivalent phrase.

13. הַיָּמִינִים § 251. 4. הַיָּמִינִים § 260. 2 (2), repetition in ver. 14, see on Gen. 37 : 5.

14. אֵת־הַיָּמִינִים § 258. 2.

15. $\text{מִן־צִדֵּי־שָׁאוּל}$ from beside Saul, from being near him or with him, see on Gen. 42 : 24, 45 : 1, although the original force of the prep. may possibly be preserved, from waiting upon Saul; as the servant stands while his lord sits, he may be said to be not only by him but over him. בֵּית־בְּתֵלֶהֶם may be the object of בָּאֵת to Bethlehem § 271. 2, or stand absolutely, at Bethlehem § 274. 2. b.

17. בְּיָמָיו § 251. 2. c, § 253. 2. בְּיָמָיו § 271. 2, § 273. 1.

18. בְּיָמָיו in respect to health. הַיָּמִינִים , pledge or token either of their welfare or of their receipt of the articles sent them.

20. עַל־שִׁמְרָתוֹ upon a keeper, in his charge, the care of them being devolved upon him, as though it were a burden to be carried. $\text{וְהָיָה־לְהִגְדֹלֵתוֹ}$ governed directly by בְּיָמָיו § 271. 2, and qualified by הַיָּמִינִים which cannot be a predicate since it has the article § 259. 2. בְּיָמָיו § 160. 2.

21. בְּיָמָיו agrees in form with בְּיָמָיו , which is in apposition with בְּיָמָיו .

23. מִמְצֵרוֹתַי K'thibh plains, or it might be caves. מִמְצֵרוֹתַי K'ri, armies or ranks. הַיָּמִינִים , viz. those above recited, vs. 8-10.

25. בְּיָמָיו § 24. b. בְּיָמָיו § 104. h.

26. בְּיָמָיו § 73. 2. בְּיָמָיו § 275. 3. a.

29. בְּיָמָיו , either was it not my father's command by which he had been required to come, or better, perhaps, was it not merely a word which did not deserve such severe censure, Isa. 29 : 21.

32. בְּיָמָיו suf. may refer to Goliath, who might readily be understood to be the subject of discourse, though he is not mentioned in the immediately preceding verses because of him the effect being regarded as resting upon its cause; or it may, after the analogy of like expressions occurring elsewhere, Ps. 42 : 5, 142 : 4, Hos. 11 : 8, let no man's heart fall upon him, sink down upon itself under the burden of its own emotions.

34. בְּיָמָיו with בְּיָמָיו , see on Gen. 37 : 2. בְּיָמָיו § 265. b. בְּיָמָיו § 245. 5.

d, comp. the wolf, John 10 : 12. וְאֵת-הַדָּבָר § 271. b. ק'תִּיבֵחַ referring distributively to the lion and bear as subject of אָרְבַּבְרָא, אָרְבַּבְרָא K'ri object of the verb.

35. וְהָיָה § 112. 3, with אָ connecting the verb with its object, see on Judg. 16 : 3. 26, or denoting the means or instrument of seizure, see on Gen. 39 : 12. 14. : וְהָיָה § 14. a, § 61. 4. a, § 160. 2, marg. the Tav with Dagshesh.

36. הָיָה § 265. b, has become, see Gen. 3 : 22. הָיָה § 255. 1.

37. Marg. אָרְבַּבְרָא אָרְבַּבְרָא pause in the middle of a verse.

39. אָרְבַּבְרָא, see on Gen. 1 : 7. אָרְבַּבְרָא § 150. 2 and 3 (p. 181).

40. אָרְבַּבְרָא § 254. 2. אָרְבַּבְרָא § 245. 3, as the two objects connected by אָ are identical, it must be translated even, comp. 28 : 3.

41. אָרְבַּבְרָא § 185. b, § 282. c. 42. אָרְבַּבְרָא § 172. 4.

43. אָרְבַּבְרָא indefinite plur. though only one is meant, see on Gen. 37 : 8. : אָרְבַּבְרָא, the use of the prep. אָ after verbs of cursing and swearing is by some derived from its signification of conjunction or nearness, cursed by his gods, uttering in their immediate presence the imprecation which they were expected to fulfil, and by others from its instrumental sense, comp. the Latin per, by his gods, as the instruments or agents in fulfilling his imprecation.

45. אָרְבַּבְרָא in the name of, by the authority and as the representative of; or with the name, etc., as what he brought to oppose the weapons of the Philistine, the name of God, as that by which he is known, being equivalent to God himself as revealed. אָרְבַּבְרָא § 253. b. : אָרְבַּבְרָא § 65. a, marg. abbreviated for אָרְבַּבְרָא אָרְבַּבְרָא Pattahh with Soph Pasuk, i. e. with Silluk § 36. 1.

46. אָרְבַּבְרָא § 275. 2. b. : אָרְבַּבְרָא there is a God to Israel, Israel has a God, or God is for Israel, on his side.

47. אָרְבַּבְרָא § 150. 2 (p. 181). 48. אָרְבַּבְרָא § 265. b.

50. אָרְבַּבְרָא § 260. a.

51. אָרְבַּבְרָא unto after a verb of rest where previous motion is implied : ran and stood unto the Philistine is equivalent to ran unto the Philistine and stood, comp. אָרְבַּבְרָא, Gen. 43 : 30. אָרְבַּבְרָא § 105. a.

52. אָרְבַּבְרָא אָרְבַּבְרָא. The schism in the time of Rehoboam only deepened and perpetuated a distinction, which had in various ways and for various causes been created long before between the powerful tribe of Judah, to whom Jacob had promised the sovereignty, Gen. 49 : 10, and the rest of Israel, comp. Josh. 11 : 21. אָרְבַּבְרָא 2 m. s. indef. § 243. 2.

54. אָרְבַּבְרָא § 47, although the citadel was not taken until the reign of David, 2 Sam. 5 : 7, part of the city was held by the Israelites from the time of Joshua, Josh. 15:63, Judg. 1:8. 21. $\text{לְבַיְתָאֲרֵיבֹנֵי}$ used here not in the strict sense of tent, as David was not connected with the army, but in the wider one of habitation, dwelling, compare 13:2, 1 Kin. 8:66. David now took Goliath's armour home with him as his lawful spoils, though he must subsequently have deposited Goliath's sword in the tabernacle, 21:9.

55. לְמַעַן § 273. 4. וְיָדָע § 249. 2. a. It has been thought strange that Saul should make these inquiries about one who had played the harp before him and been his armour-bearer, 16:21, etc. But we do not know what interval had elapsed, nor how much David had altered. Besides, the question concerns his parentage, which Saul had now a special reason for wishing to know, ver. 25, but which he might easily have forgotten, even if he recollected his person. וְיָדָעֵהוּ § 245. 2. וְיָדָע , see on Gen. 42:15.

58. וְיָדָעֵהוּ § 246. 3. b.

1 KINGS, CHAPTER XVII.

3. וְיָדָעֵהוּ § 254. 3, prep. denoting close conjunction, by the brook, or as וְיָדָעֵהוּ includes in its signification the valley with the brook, it may have its primary sense in. וְיָדָעֵהוּ , as the brook cannot be certainly identified, it is doubtful whether this means before or east of.

6. וְיָדָעֵהוּ § 263. 4. 7. וְיָדָעֵהוּ , see on Gen. 41:1.

11. וְיָדָעֵהוּ § 132. 2.

14. וְיָדָעֵהוּ § 177. 3, § 179. 1. a. וְיָדָעֵהוּ K'thibh § 132. 1, וְיָדָעֵהוּ K'ri.

15. וְיָדָעֵהוּ - וְיָדָעֵהוּ K'thibh, וְיָדָעֵהוּ - וְיָדָעֵהוּ K'ri. 16. וְיָדָעֵהוּ § 277.

18. וְיָדָעֵהוּ , declaratively or interrogatively § 284.

20. Marg. see 1 Sam. 17:9.

22. וְיָדָעֵהוּ with וְיָדָעֵהוּ , see on Judg. 13:9.

24. וְיָדָעֵהוּ this I know, or adv. this time § 235. 3 (4).

CHAPTER XVIII.

1. וְיָדָעֵהוּ § 275. 1, see on Gen. 1:14. וְיָדָעֵהוּ , reckoned not from the beginning of the drought, but from Elijah's arrival at Zarephath, Luke 4:25, James 5:17. Marg. Haphtarah of וְיָדָעֵהוּ וְיָדָעֵהוּ , i. e. here begins the lesson in the prophets corresponding to the lesson of the law, Ex. 30:11 etc. so called from its opening words, according to the custom of the German Jews.

3. וְיָדָעֵהוּ the royal house, the palace § 245. 4. וְיָדָעֵהוּ , derivatives of transitive verbs are often followed by a direct object.

4. בְּמִתְּהָהּ in the cave, i. e. in each cave, comp. מִתְּהָהּ, Gen. 45 : 22. מִתְּהָהּ § 273. 3.

5. בְּנִיחָהּ destroy, be forced to kill them on account of our inability to feed them; others suppose it to mean simply suffer to perish. מִתְּהָהּ prep. partitive; marg. other editions have מִתְּהָהּ מִן K'thibh, מִתְּהָהּ K'ri.

7. הֲאֵתָהּ הִנֵּה, as in English, is this you?

8. אֲנִי, see on Judg. 13 : 11.

10. לֹא יִמְצְאוּהָ will not, because unable to do so, hence equivalent to cannot, or, as conditioned by the preceding preterite, could not find thee.

13. אֵת אֲשֶׁר-רָאָה § 271. a. מִתְּהָהּ § 280. 1.

15. כִּי, see on Gen. 42 : 16.

18. מִתְּהָהּ plur. because of the various epithets he bore, descriptive of the different characters under which he was worshipped, as Baal-berith Judg. 8 : 33, Baal-zebub, 2 Kin. 1 : 6, etc.

19. אֲכָלִים § 254. 1, eating at the table, prop. eaters belonging to the table.

20. Marg. Haphtarah of בְּיָהוּדָה according to the custom of the Spanish Jews.

21. מִתְּהָהּ limping upon two opinions instead of treading firmly upon one. The LXX has upon both knees, ὑγνύας, in which it is followed by a few modern interpreters. מִתְּהָהּ § 246. 1. a. מִתְּהָהּ § 273. 2.

22. As the prophets of Astarte, ver. 19, are not separately mentioned here, or in vs. 25, 40, some have supposed that they were not present, but as the false prophets generally were gathered, ver. 20, and all of them were slain, 19 : 1, it is probable that the prophets of Baal only were named, since they were the most prominent and principal actors.

23. מִתְּהָהּ § 243. 2.

24. בְּשֵׁם prep. instrumental, call with the name, i. e. loudly utter the name § 272. 2. b, here by way of invocation; sometimes its proclamation is intended. מִתְּהָהּ § 258. 2. מִתְּהָהּ § 275. 2. a.

25. מִתְּהָהּ § 235. 3 (3). מִתְּהָהּ § 260. 2 (2).

26. וְהִלְכָהּ and they limped beside (see on Gen. 42 : 24, 45 : 1) the altar, contemptuously said of the dancing which formed part of their idolatrous service. מִתְּהָהּ § 243. 2.

30. מִתְּהָהּ § 215. 1. b. This, like other altars which had been similarly destroyed in different parts of the land, 19 : 10, was doubtless erected by the true worshippers of Jehovah after the time of the schism, when they were prohibited from going up to the temple at Jerusalem. In this period of defection, as in the corresponding period in the days of Samuel, the prophets were invested with extraordinary powers adapted to the emergency, and, as the immediate messengers and representatives of God, assumed the functions and prerogatives of the priesthood, who had either abdicated their office or had been excluded from it.

31. שְׁמֵךָ thy name, and therefore of the entire people, not of a part merely, to which it had then been unlawfully restricted.

32. סֵאֵהָ § 273. 3. עֲצָה , see on 1 Sam. 17 : 45. סֵאֵהָ § 203. 3, § 57. 2 (3), as two seahs or three pecks seem too small for the capacity of a trench surrounding the altar, some have thought that it occupied as much ground as would suffice for sowing two seahs of seed. But this on the other hand would make it too enormous. The suggestion is here offered whether the meaning may not be that its dimensions, viz. its width and depth, were those of a two-seah-measure זֶרַע סֵאֵהָ . Such a measure, which may have been a familiar one, would contain something less than a cubic foot; the trench would consequently be about a foot wide by a foot deep.

33. The order of procedure and even the terms employed are borrowed from the Mosaic law of sacrifice, Lev. 1 : 6-8.

45. $\text{יְדַעְתָּ וְיָדַעְתָּ}$ until so and until so, i. e. a very short time. This phrase is by some supposed to have been originally accompanied by a gesture of the hand, until one can do so and then so. Or the repeated adverb so and so may have an indefinite sense, whence until so and so means after an indefinite but brief period, as in English, 'by and by.'

ISAIAH. CHAPTER XL.

The last twenty-seven chapters of this book form one connected prophecy, of which the foresight of the Babylonish captivity, 39 : 6, 7, was the starting-point and the historical occasion, and which was designed to remove the despondency produced by the prospect and especially the experience of this great calamity. The prophet is enabled to look out over the entire future of God's scheme of mercy, and he aims to comfort the people by shewing them that they had a grand mission to fulfil and a glorious destiny which should be accomplished notwithstanding all present and future evils.

The work of consolation is begun in this chapter by the assurance

(1) vs. 1-11, the Lord who seemed to have forsaken Jerusalem is about to return and achieve her salvation.

(2) vs. 12-26, the possibility of what appears so incredible is confirmed by an appeal to God's incomparable greatness.

(3) vs. 27-31, the despondency of the people is therefore groundless.

The theme of the whole prophecy is contained in ver. 1, 2, which not only characterize it in the general as consolatory, but even foreshadow its triple division, with the special topic of each.

1. אָמַרְתִּי, the repetition is emphatic. The persons addressed are not specifically the priests (LXX), prophets (Targ.), elders, nor certain inquirers supposed to have consulted Isaiah respecting the future fortunes of the people, but all who hear the summons. The imperative form is unessential and does not belong to the main idea to be expressed. The thing insisted upon is not so much the duty and obligation of the work of consolation as the certainty that God's people were to be consoled. It was of no consequence who should administer the comfort; that is accordingly left indefinite. The point of real interest was that there was ground for comfort and that the people would receive it. אָמַרְתִּי, not a vocative (Vulg.) but object of verb: this expression contains already the seeds of consolation, since it is a recognition of the relation as still existing between God and the people, which the latter might be tempted in their dejection to imagine had been broken off. אָמַרְתִּי saith or is saying § 263. 2, for the utterance, though begun, is not completed; not will say, as though God would at some future time direct that comfort should be given to his people. For though it largely respects an emergency which had not yet arisen, 39 : 8, the comfort is not postponed to another time, but is given in this prophecy. And the same phrase is frequently used throughout Isaiah, and always in a present sense. אָמַרְתִּי to say, introduces the very words of a speaker, while אָמַרְתִּי to speak, in volves no citation of the exact language. Marg. Haphtarah of וְהִתְחַנֵּן, i. e. corresponding to the Parashah or lesson of the law, beginning Deut. 3:23.

2. בְּלִבְךָ according to, Gen. 41:40, the heart, in a manner agreeable to the heart or feelings; or the strict local sense of the prep. may be retained, speak not to the ears merely, but so as to reach down to and remain upon the heart. בְּ denotes the whole interior nature of man, including both the understanding, 1 Kin. 3:9, and the affections, Deut. 30:6. The meaning here is, speak so as to affect the feelings; the words themselves do not determine in what way, whether joyously or the reverse, but usage confines it to the former. בְּיְרוּשָׁלַם § 47, the city considered as the centre and capital of God's earthly kingdom, put for that kingdom itself or for the people who compose it (as Rome for the Roman empire), and hence equivalent to בְּ of ver. 1. Those critics, who deny the genuineness of this prophecy and refer it to some imaginary writer at or near the close of the captivity, are compelled to understand by 'Jerusalem' the desolated city itself, or its inhabitants in exile, though it is hard to see why these should be thus singled out from the rest of the exiles as the recipients of special comfort. וְקָרָא proclaim, cry in a loud tone, thus differing from וְקָרָא. The proclamation embraces the three things which now follow. וְצָבָא, usually masc. here fem. means both a host or army, and military service. In Num. 4:23 it is applied to the Levitical ministrations in the sanctuary as a militia sacra, an orderly and well appointed service by a special body organized and devoted to that particular function. It here denotes Jerusalem's period of suffering, comp. Heb. 10:32, conceived of as a toilsome service, and for a definite term. This is now full, i. e. completed. וְנִדְּחָה, some render pardoned, a sense which the word does not have; Gesen. translates is satisfied or discharged by the infliction of the merited penalty; others her punishment is accepted as sufficient, but this gives an unproved meaning to וְנִדְּחָה; the verb properly means to be accepted, and is technically used of the acceptance of sacrifices, whence the most probable opinion is that וְנִדְּחָה is here used as וְנִדְּחָה 'sin,' so often is for 'a sin-offering,' an atonement for her iniquity is accepted.

וְנִדְּחָה is most naturally taken in the same sense with the two that precede it, that, introducing the third particular of the comfort to be proclaimed. If rendered for, it assigns the reason of the preceding; she is released from further suffering, for, etc. וְנִדְּחָה, the preterites of this verse are prophetic § 262. 4. וְנִדְּחָה double, not in a strict numerical sense 'two things,' whether, as some old writers explained it, justification and sanctification, or the two particulars before mentioned, but indefinitely to denote the abundance or largeness of the blessings to be received, comp. 61:7. Those who render the preceding כִּי for, must refer 'double' not to blessings but to punishment or sufferings, as Jer. 16. 18, Rev. 18:6, not as though she had suffered twice as much as her sins had deserved, or as God had intended to inflict, but amply for the purposes of punishment; their punishment was 'double,' not so as to exceed but to be commensurate with the vastness of their sins. $\text{כִּי כָּל חַטֹּאתֶיהָ לֹא-לֵבָדָּהּ}$ the prep. may have its local sense in all her sins, in the midst of them, and by implication in spite of them; or it may denote the price, comp. Gen. 3:19, 37:28, for all her sins, by a gracious recompense of good for evil.

The rest of the book may be divided into three principal sections, of nine chapters each, indicated by the refrain, 48:22, 57:21, and answering in a general way to the three topics of consolation just announced. The prominent though not the exclusive subject of

(1) ch. 40-48 is the overthrow of Babylon and Israel's deliverance from exile, culminating in ch. 45. This is a pledge and a preliminary fulfilment of the declaration that 'her warfare is accomplished.'

(2) ch. 49-57, the sufferings and reward of the Messiah, culminating in ch. 53: 'her sin-offering is accepted.'

(3) ch. 58-66, the future glory of Israel, culminating in ch. 60: 'she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins.'

The remainder of the first division of this chapter consists of three stanzas of three verses each:

(1) vs. 3-5. In confirmation of what has just been announced, and as the method by which it is to be effected, it is declared that God will return to his long-forsaken people.

(2) vs. 6-8. This is indubitably certain: for it does not depend on frail and feeble man, but is secured by the unfailing word of God.

(3) vs. 9-11. It is represented as actually taking place before their eyes; God is seen returning to his people.

3. כִּי , not a continuation of the command, vs. 1. 2, with שָׁמַע understood, 'let there be a voice,' but an exclamation, a voice! equivalent to 'hark!' or 'I hear a voice;' const. as in LXX, Eng. Ver. 'voice of one crying,' or apposition, 'a voice crying.' אֲשֶׁר-קָרָא alludes to אֲשֶׁר-קָרָא , ver. 2, following the injunction to cry, this voice is heard crying. The voice itself is undefined, only the quarter is recognized from which it comes, רִבְרִיבָהּ in the wilderness. This may be connected with what precedes and designate the locality where the voice is heard, or with what follows and show where the way is to be prepared. The parallelism of the last clause is urged in favour of connecting it with what follows: but the different collocation of the words in the two clauses, together with the fact that one of its most remarkable fulfilments, as testified by all four of the evangelists, Mat. 3 : 3, Mark 1 : 3, Luke 3 : 4, John 1 : 23, was in John the Baptist, who came preaching in the wilderness of Judea, favours the other view. At the same time, while strictly belonging to what precedes, it will naturally be understood also with what follows ; the road was to be prepared where the voice was heard. בְּיַבְשָׁתוֹ is properly a wilderness, a waste, uncultivated region, producing a scanty herbage, fit only for pasturage ; בְּעֵרְבָה is a desert, a sterile, arid region, totally destitute of products. Those interpreters who see no allusion in this prophecy to anything except the Babylonish exile and the restoration from it, understand by 'the wilderness' and 'the desert' the region between Babylon and Palestine, through which God here promises a safe and easy passage to his people returning from exile. But not a word is here said about the return of the people from captivity. The road is not for the people to march over, but for God himself. The figure is not even that of God marching at the head of his people, and leading them from bondage, as when he brought them out of Egypt. But it is God returning to his people who had alienated him by their sins and in consequence fallen into their present extremity. They are now exhorted to prepare the way for his return to accomplish their salvation. It has further been made a question whether 'the wilderness' is to be understood literally or figuratively, and accordingly whether it denotes the wilderness of Judea, where John preached repentance in fulfilment of this prediction, or a place of destitution, privation and trial, and represents the condition of sin and suffering in which the people were. But in point of fact these two meanings do not exclude each other. John's preaching in the wilderness, like his dress and his ascetic life, was itself symbolical of the spiritual and moral waste which Judah then presented, and which it was his mission to endeavour to reclaim. His appearance in a locality conformed to the literal terms of the prophecy was an index pointing him out as its subject, and one by whom it was fulfilled in its higher spiritual sense. A like mingling of the literal and the figurative is frequent in the prophecies, comp. Zech. 9 : 9, Ps. 22 : 18. It may be remarked, in addition, that this is a generic prophecy, and was fulfilled in the entire series of instruments and messengers from Isaiah onward, by which God wrought reformations among his people at various periods, and thus prepared the way for his more or less conspicuous return to them. In this class of predictions it is not unusual for the prophets to employ terms, which are in a general sense applicable to all the particulars included within the scope of the fulfilment, but which are in a more special and strict sense descriptive of some one of marked prominence, comp. Gen. 3 : 15, 2 Sam. 7 : 12-16. So here, while all God's messengers to the people preached repentance in a moral and spiritual waste, John the Baptist did so in a literal wilderness likewise.

פָּנָה, cause to turn away, clear, prepare by the removal of obstacles, as of sin by a timely repentance. הַדֶּרֶךְ, § 254. 9. a, the way which Jehovah will use and over which he will come; this is a general term under which הַמִּדְבָּר is embraced as a particular kind of road, highway, or causeway raised above the ordinary surface. יִשְׁטַח, if the reference be to linear obliquity, make straight, if to superficial inequality, make level; the next verse shows that the latter idea is here prominent.

4. An amplification of the preceding idea. The meaning is of course not that the valleys shall be converted into mountains and vice versa, but that the one shall be raised and the other depressed, so as to form a smooth and level course. הִנָּשָׂא, declarative, shall be raised, or perhaps mandatory, as this is included among the senses of the future, and might here be suggested by the preceding command, let it be raised. גֵּיא, also גַּיָּא and גַּיָּא, a steep narrow valley, comp. on 1 Sam. 17 : 3, while בְּקִעָה means a valley that is broad and open, or even one that is expanded to a plain. הַעֲקָבִים, according to the Eng. Ver. which here follows the LXX, crooked, in contrast with יִשְׁטַח, straightness: but as the latter, comp. הַיָּשָׁר, ver. 3, may refer to superficial equality, evenness, the former may denote an eminence, or as an adj. uneven, broken into numerous hillocks. הַקָּשִׁיּוֹת הַקָּשִׁיּוֹת difficult passes, narrow gorges should be opened out to wide valleys or plains, or according to Dr. Alexander, ridges.

5. הִנָּגְדָה and as a result of the preceding preparations shall be revealed. This is to be preferred to the indirect subjunctive rendering that the glory of the Lord may be revealed. The former is more forcible, as it certainly assures of this result, which the latter only does by implication. * הַכְּבוֹד יִי, applied to any manifestation of Jehovah's presence or display of his perfections: used also of that symbolical brightness which often accompanied God's revelation of himself, as at the dedication of the temple, 1 Kin. 8 : 11. When the way was prepared for him by the penitence of his people, God himself would come and display his glorious perfections in the salvation of his people. This was true of their deliverance from exile, and other tokens of his presence, but especially of his personal coming in the flesh, of which the apostle John says, in language borrowed perhaps from this passage, 1 : 14, we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father. כָּל-בְּרָאָה all flesh, in its widest sense, Gen. 7 : 21, all living animals ; here, as often elsewhere, all mankind. The glory displayed by the coming of God to his people should be so conspicuous that all mankind (not the chosen people only) should behold it. This was more conspicuously true of Christ's advent than of the deliverance from Babylon. יחדוֹתָם together, may qualify the verb and denote identity of time, shall see it immediately on its being displayed, or qualify the noun, all flesh together. יֵרָא might be the object of יֵרָא shall see that, etc. : but it is better to make 'see' govern an object understood, 'the glory of God,' and translate יֵרָא for ; this is its meaning wherever else the phrase occurs. It then confirms what precedes, the mouth of Jehovah, not man, hath spoken it.

6. It has just been announced on the authority of God that his glory would be revealed in the salvation of his people. The next stanza, vs. 6-8, declares how reliable and unfailing that word is. קוֹלֵי אֶמְרָתֶךָ, as in ver. 3, an exclamation, either const. voice of one saying or, app. a voice saying. Some make the voice that of God, and the person addressed the prophet, a view of the case which has led in a few MSS. to pointing the next verb אָמַרְתָּ, and to the rendering in the LXX εἶπα, and in the Vulgate dixi. But there is no necessity of defining who the speaker is. מֵאֲזַיִךְ, a second voice, the person addressed by the first speaker here replies. Junius and Tremellius (quoted by Dr. Alexander) assume but a single voice and make קוֹלֵי the subject, 'a voice says cry, and says or tells me what I shall cry.' אֶמְרָתֶךָ-בְּקוֹלֵי, as in the previous verse used of mankind : perhaps that may account for the use of the article, all the flesh just spoken of : this is not necessary, however, as the article may be used in its generic sense § 245. 5. חֲבֵרָה grass, a comparison frequent in the Scriptures, the point of resemblance, as is plain from parallel passages and from this connexion, being that of evanescent frailty. The respect in which human frailty is here asserted will depend upon the meaning given to חֲבֵרָה. Its primary signification is that of kindness or benevolent regard. It is used (1) of God's favour to men, (2) of men's love to God, or piety, (3) of men's benignity or kindness to one another. On the assumption that the precise thing here asserted is the vanity of human greatness and power, some interpreters assume that the word must have the sense of beauty ; comp. חָן, and the English grace, which mean both favour and beauty. So Eng. Ver. goodliness, LXX δόξα, retained 1 Pet. 1 : 24. The adoption of this rendering by the apostle does not prove its accuracy as a verbal translation, but only that the sentiment expressed is true, and that it was sufficiently accurate for the purpose which he had in view in quoting it. But as the word occurs nowhere else in this sense, and as its meanings in other places yield a good sense here, there is no need of departing from them. It may mean favour shewn to men—human favour is precarious and feeble; we cannot build much therefore on human promises, but this is the word of God. Or love to God, piety: it is used in this sense by Hosea 6 : 4, “your goodness is as a morning cloud.” The meaning then is, human goodness is too feeble and frail to merit such an interposition as is here predicted. But the prediction is not based on any expectation of human merit, it rests solely on the gracious word of God. צִיָּץ הַשָּׂדֵה flower of the field, i. e. ‘wild flower,’ as ‘beast of the field’ denotes wild beast. It is not probable that any stress is to be laid here upon the distinction between wild and cultivated flowers, the former being less cared for, and especially liable to be trodden upon or cut down. The individualizing is due to the vividness of poetic conception, or it may have been suggested by association with the grass previously mentioned. The preceding clause contains a metaphor, here a particle of comparison is introduced. Those who insist on a literal understanding of our Lord’s words ‘this is my body,’ should here believe, on the basis of this passage, that all flesh is, not by a figure but in its actual substance, grass.

7. The comparison suggested before is here developed, and the point of comparison stated. Man resembles grass because it dries up, and a flower since it fades or wilts. $\text{כִּי$ § 262. 3. כִּי § 35. 1, § 42. a, editions vary in giving Merka or Methegh to the ultimate syllable. כִּי for; some render when, a sense which the particle sometimes has, but it is best to adhere to the ordinary meaning when practicable. רוּחַ Spirit, since God’s infinite Spirit conducts and presides over all operations of nature, great or minute; or, the breath of Jehovah has blown upon it; or, which amounts to the same thing though it is less poetical, the wind of Jehovah, i. e. sent by him, see on Gen. 1 : 2. כִּי , not a particle of inference, therefore, but of asseveration, yea, or surely. עָמָּה . Some suppose without reason that the Chaldeans are meant; yes, this powerful oppressing people is grass which his breath can wither. This word, when standing absolutely, often means the people by way of eminence, i. e. God’s chosen people, Israel, as on the other hand גוֹיִם stands for heathen nations; some so understand it here, yes, even Israel is grass, their goodness fleeting and void of all merit. But there is no need of restricting it in either of these ways; it is better to take it, as in 42 : 5, for people generally, mankind, equivalent to “all flesh,” vs. 5. 6. Subject with article, predicate without, as commonly in Greek, though not a universal rule.

8. An emphatic repetition for the sake of making plainer the contrast to be presented. וְכִי and, where we must employ the adversative but § 287. 1. Word in its wide sense, not limited to promise or prophecy, much less to the specific utterance which precedes, though that is of course included: nor to the gospel to which it is applied by Peter. עֲרֵךְ stand, i. e. be valid, firm, opposed to fail of accomplishment. According to the meaning of הִתְקַיֵּם, the sense will be, (1) No lack of goodness on the part of man can prevent God's word of grace from taking effect. (2) The feebleness and frailty of man is no argument against the completion of so glorious a salvation, since God's word assures it. Or (3) the fleeting favour of man only heightens by contrast the endless favour of God and the certainty of his word.

The omission from עָרַךְ ver. 7, to עָרַךְ ver. 8, in the LXX, shows how various readings may arise from the proximity of clauses or paragraphs of like ending.

9. In the confidence of faith God is actually seen coming to Zion, and the capital city is directed to announce the fact to the rest of the land. הֲרִיבֵהּ, ascend a high mountain, that the voice may be heard more widely: some suppose an allusion to the mountains on which Jerusalem was built and by which it was surrounded. אֲנִי־עָלִי, pleonastic use of the pronoun, for thee, for thyself. הַמְשִׁיעַ מְבַשְׂרִים, LXX εὐαγγελιζόμενος; it thus differs from מְשִׁיעַ which simply denotes a messenger, irrespective of the character of his message. It may govern the following word, "bearing glad tidings to Zion;" then fem. because it was the custom for women to celebrate victories with songs and dances, or as a term of office, comp. קְהֵלָה § 198, or as a collective = מְבַשְׂרֵי. It is simpler, however, to regard it as in apposition with Zion; Zion herself is to announce the glad message to inferior cities. הֲבִישֵׁהּ, announce it in a loud tone, without faltering or hesitation, for it is certainly true. הֲרִיבֵהּ, not thyself, but thy voice. הִרְאֵה, have no fear to make the announcement, as though there were danger of being disappointed in the issue. הִנֵּה behold him or here he is, either visibly coming or actually arrived, already in the midst of Jerusalem.

10. הִנֵּה עֲרֵךְ עִמָּךְ § 47, the combination of divine names adds to the impressiveness. אֲנִי עִמָּךְ, not in strength, for עִמָּךְ is not an abstract, nor against a strong one, nor with a strong one, in conjunction with the Messiah as his agent and coadjutor, but in the capacity or character of a strong one. אֵלָי, not over him, as the object of מְשִׁיעַ which is commonly followed by אֵלָי, but for him; he shall come as a sovereign. עָרְכֵהוּ his reward, that which he bestows, or possibly that which he receives, has merited or acquired, viz. his people, whom he saves, or the salvation which he bestows. אִתּוֹ with him, i. e. in his possession. עֲרֵכְךָ work, hence the wages which are its equivalent.

11. כְּרֹעֵף. God is often compared to a shepherd from the days of the patriarchs, Gen. 49: 24, and David, Ps. 23: 1; the figure is adopted by our Lord in the parable of the good shepherd, John 10. The possible constructions are as a shepherd who feeds his flock, as a shepherd his flock, he, Jehovah, will feed, as a shepherd he will feed his flock. רֹעֵף: not only feed, but the whole work of a shepherd. יְרֹעֵף, will gather with his arm, i. e. take up in his arms. רֹעֵף § 153. 1, not pregnant, but giving suck. יְרֹעֵף: lead; others render sustain.

Vs. 12-26. God's incomparable greatness is presented as a ground for trusting him to accomplish what in itself might seem incredible.

12. אֵי-מִדָּתוֹ. The true answer to this question is not simply 'no one,' as though it were designed to exalt the vastness of the material creation, which man could never compass with his puny measures. It is rather implied that this which no one has done or can do, God has done. He has determined with the utmost nicety the measure and weight of all the constituents and parts of the world, Job 28: 25; he has balanced its masses and forces with a precision, which the investigations of science serve but to disclose more and more: so that the main idea is not the vastness of the universe, nor merely the harmony of its parts, but the infinite superiority of him by whom these vast masses were apportioned with the utmost ease and nicety. He measures and regulates without difficulty material nature, though in itself so vast as to be incomprehensible by us. And hence the measures spoken of in the verse are ordinary and diminutive ones: if the intention had been to enhance the magnitude of the world, measures of large capacity would have been employed, but God can measure the universe by the inch and the ounce. אֵי-מִדָּתוֹ, elsewhere handful, here the hollow of his hand, distinguished from כַּף the palm and יָד the hand. מַיִם indef. water as an element in the constitution of the world. Some have sought to explain the order in which the parts of the universe are mentioned from Gen. 1, water, then heaven or the firmament, then the earth. מִיִּם § 50. 1, to straighten, as the beam of a balance in weighing, thence extended to measurements of length as well as weight. לֵךְ not כֹּל, all, as LXX, but pret. of כָּל § 215. 1. c. שְׁלִישִׁית a third part, probably of an ephah, comp. the English measures quart, tierce. עֲפָרָה not merely superficial dust, but the mass of the earth itself. Note the climax: measure the earth, or if not this, weigh mountains (indefinite), or even hills. מִשְׁכָּלֹת a balance, probably an instrument like a steelyard, and so distinguished from מִשְׁכָּלֹת, whose dual form implies the double dish or scales.

13. A fresh climax; none can measure God's works, still less can any measure their maker, fathom his spirit, and understand his plans, or what is yet more incredible, outdo him in wisdom and suggest plans to him. This unbelief would do, fancying that he has overlooked, ver. 27, what he should have attended to. הִנָּךְ, not directed, but as in the preceding verse measured. אִישׁ זָצוּתִי his man of counsel, or counsellor, so Ps. 119 : 24. This is better than to govern אֶתְּהוּ by the verb, who, a man, will cause him to know his counsel. The combination of the preterite and the future in the verse embraces all time § 263. 5. a; who has done this or who will do it?

14. Expands the last clause of the preceding verse. הִנָּיְהוּהוּ, not that he might instruct him, expressing the design of the consultation, but and he instructed him, its actual result. The subject of the preceding verb is the object of this. בְּאַרְחָהּ prep. has its local sense, taught, i. e. guided in the path. מִשְׁפָּטֵי מִשְׁפָּטֵי rectitude, not merely in a moral sense, but the right way to accomplish a desired end, or judgment, the proper course for him as the universal judge, the ruler and arbiter of all things. הִבְהִינְתָּ, signification heightened by the plural form § 201. 1. c. The future and the preterite employed in different clauses of the verse.

15. To the exhibition of God's infinite superiority to any individual creature now follows his infinite superiority to whole nations, vs. 15–17, and even to all nations combined. הֵן lo! It is impossible for God to be beholden to individuals, for see! whole nations are reckoned as a drop. מִצְּיֹן occurs nowhere else, but without doubt means drop. מִצְּיֹן, to have compared nations to a bucket of water would have implied their insignificance, but it is rather to a drop from a bucket which, when taken out, leaves no appreciable difference in the mass left behind, its abstraction is not noticeable; the contrast thus suggested giving a stronger impression of littleness than simply to have said a drop of water. It does not mean a drop hanging from a bucket. וּבִשְׁמַיִם, primarily a cloud, which might be intended here as an imponderable body; but it is better to take it in its derived sense 'cloud of dust,' then dust, the fine particles left on scales after weighing substances, which have no appreciable effect in disturbing its balance. LXX ῥοπή) ζυγοῦ and Vulg. momentum statera, the turning of the scales, that small quantity which is sufficient to decide the balance. But the figure denotes rather that which is wholly inappreciable. The English Version needlessly supplies the substantive verb in the first clause, 'nations are as a drop, etc. ;' גִּיּוֹם is properly the subject of הִנָּיְהוּהוּ § 262. 3. אֲרָצוֹת מִן הַיָּם, habitable lands as opposed to water, especially of islands, maritime regions, and territories beyond the sea which are distant and little known. (1) Islands are reckoned as an atom which he, any one, or it, the wind, taketh up מִן הַיָּם from אֲרָצוֹת. (2) which is cast away, מִן הַיָּם Ni. of לָבַן. (3) He will, if he chooses, i. e. he can take up islands like an atom.

16. As for Lebanon there is no sufficiency for burning : לָבַן § 215. 1. d, followed by that for which anything is not sufficient. The meaning is not that the vastest sacrifice would be an inadequate expiation for human sin; nor is it an assertion of the inefficiency of the Old Testament ritual offerings; but such is God's infinite superiority that the grandest offerings on the most magnificent scale are unworthy of his acceptance. This is stated not as an abstract proposition, but is exhibited in a striking example. הַר הַצְּבִי, the lofty double range separating Palestine from Syria, the highest mountains with which Israel was familiar, from הַר הַצְּבִי white, so called by reason of the snow resting upon its peaks, or the whitish colour of its limestone rock. הַר הַצְּבִי collective.

17. A still stronger assertion of the truth in ver. 15, not merely nations but all the nations combined are not a drop which, however insignificant, still has existence and a certain magnitude, but כִּי אֵינָם אֵין as nothing: the prep. qualifies the expression, they are not absolutely non-existent, but as if they were nothing. אֵין אֵין before him, not merely in his judgment or esteem, but confronting him or compared with him. אֵין אֵין end, cessation of being, annihilation, while אֵין is absolute negation of being, nonexistence: the former is here strengthened by אֵין emptiness. The prep. is comparative, less than nothing, lit. more of nothing than nothing itself. Others make it partitive, of nothing, or indicative of the material or source, consisting of nothing. אֵין אֵין belongs to both clauses. אֵין, not by him, but in respect to him, or compared with him.

18. Sums up the preceding argument. אֵין אֵין and now, these things being so, to whom, etc. אֵין אֵין poetic form § 172. 1. אֵין, the mighty God, derived from אֵין to be strong. אֵין אֵין, what similar thing will ye compare to him, or what similitude will ye institute in respect to him.

19. The question of ver. 18 suggests the likenesses which men in their folly have dared to make as representations of the infinite God. The puerile absurdity of idolatry is brought out by dwelling on the details of the process of making a god, its materials being selected and put together by human toil. אֵין אֵין may be the direct object of אֵין, or the answer to the previous question with the relative supplied, the image which a workman has wrought! this would better account for the article and for the order of the words. It properly denotes a graven image; some suppose that it here describes the wooden interior over which the metallic surface is cast. But the metallic plating follows: it must therefore be used in a wide sense for idol, irrespective of the mode of its formation. הִטָּה to pour out in the process of casting. $\text{בַּהֲטָה$, with the gold, that allotted for the purpose. $\text{וַיִּרְחֹץ$, to beat into thin plates, then to cover with such plates. $\text{וַיִּתְּקֵן$, silver chains, for ornament, or support. (1) $\text{בַּזִּיָּה$, noun as before and repeat verb of preceding clause, a goldsmith is beating out or preparing silver chains. (2) $\text{בַּזִּיָּה$, participle, melting or casting chains, or, as chains are not made by casting, soldering the chains, melting them so as to make them adhere to the image. The change of tenses represents the image as in process of manufacture; part is completed, part is yet to be performed § 263. 5. a.

20. אֵין אֵין אֵין one poor as to oblation, who cannot afford to offer gold and silver to his god, must make his idol of something less precious. Or impoverished by oblation, but still persisting in his poor way in what has already beggared him. Or $\text{וַיִּבְחַר$ may be in apposition with $\text{וַיִּבְחַר$, chooses as an oblation a tree, etc. $\text{וַיִּבְחַר$ not wood but tree, he selects it while growing in the forest. $\text{וַיִּבְחַר$, as the god cannot preserve itself from rotting, he must be particular as to the quality of the wood. וַיִּבְחַר skilful in his business or profession. $\text{וַיִּבְחַר$, for himself; others for it, i. e. the idol. $\text{וַיִּבְחַר$ to prepare, make, or to erect, set up, so firmly that it cannot move.

21. This description is broken off abruptly by an indignant question and a renewed description of God's infinite superiority, vs. 21-24. וְהֵיכָן תֵּדָע will ye not know? Is this ignorance and stupidity to continue? are you never going to know? וְהֵיכָן תֵּדָע , some distinguish this from the following clause and suppose an allusion here to the revelation of God in his word as there in his works. וְהֵיכָן תֵּדָע , not vaguely of old, but from the beginning, which has been variously explained of the origin of their lives, the origin of Israel as a nation, and the beginning of the world. The last is the most natural and agrees best with the parallel expression which follows. וְהֵיכָן תֵּדָע foundations, not an actual material basis on which the world was imagined to be built, but concrete for abstract, the founding or original construction of the earth, which is here compared to an edifice. It is the object of the verb וְהֵיכָן תֵּדָע .

22. וְהֵיכָן תֵּדָע may be connected with the preceding and governed by וְהֵיכָן תֵּדָע or with what follows, in apposition with the suffix in וְהֵיכָן תֵּדָע , ver. 25, which is however too remote; or the substantive verb may be supplied, as in Eng. Ver. 'It is he that sitteth.' Perhaps it may best be regarded as an abrupt and unconnected exclamation. The presence of the article shows that it is to be understood substantively, and is not a substitute for a finite tense, 'he sitteth.' It may mean dwell, or better, sit as a monarch, enthroned. וְהֵיכָן תֵּדָע occurs in two other passages, Prov. 8:27, Job 22:14, in which it denotes the hemispherical arch of the heavens. The 'circle of the earth' is by some supposed to denote the arch which appears to rest upon the earth, and by others the earth itself, orbis terrarum. לָעֵלְיוֹנִים will in the one case mean upon and in the other over. עֹשֵׂה־עֲלֵיוֹת stands with designed allusion to שֹׁכֵן־עֲלֵיוֹת, he who sits or dwells above the earth being contrasted with those who dwell in or inhabit it. עֲלֵיוֹתֵי־הָעֲלֵיוֹת as locusts, comp. Num. 13 : 33, puny, insignificant; the prep. probably has the article, as is usual in comparisons § 245. 5. d, though the pointing does not determine. לְעֵלְיוֹנִים thin fine material (comp. קַע, ver. 15) variously explained as a veil, awning or curtain. עֹשֵׂה־עֲלֵיוֹת, this part. as the preceding denotes present time, or rather expresses the agent irrespective of time § 266, 'the spreader out' who has done, does, and shall continue to do it. The continuous agency of God in preserving and upholding the universe is implied. The expression shows that the Hebrews did not conceive the vault of heaven as a solid sphere, see on Gen. 1 : 6. It is compared to the thinnest possible material; and even this is not a physical but poetical description. עֹשֵׂה־עֲלֵיוֹת, a construction begun with a participle or infinitive often passes over into a preterite or future, since these are the fundamental tenses and embrace all the divisions of time § 282. c. : עֹשֵׂה־עֲלֵיוֹת, not connected with the preceding verb, spreads them out to dwell in whether for himself, for celestial beings, or for men who dwell under this spacious roof; but with לְעֵלְיוֹנִים tent for dwelling in.

23. עֹשֵׂה־עֲלֵיוֹת. Nations had been described as nothing, so were their rulers. עֹשֵׂה־עֲלֵיוֹת, not the territory over which he places them, gives them to rule over nothing, but the condition to which they are themselves reduced. עֹשֵׂה־עֲלֵיוֹת poetic equiv. of עֹשֵׂה־עֲלֵיוֹת, denoting their official function as this their weight and influence, properly judge, but as this was one of the functions of sovereignty, used in the wider sense of rulers. : עֹשֵׂה־עֲלֵיוֹת, change of construction from participle to preterite § 282. c.

24. לֹא־יָצָא also not. The first clause of this verse may be regarded as a sequel of the preceding, or as introductory to what follows. If the former, the annihilation is so complete that it appears as though they had not even been planted. No vestige remains to show that this had ever been the case; others understand it to mean that they have not been replanted, nor even a seed remaining been sown. If the latter, 'they were not even planted, and he blew upon them,' he can destroy them at any antecedent stage of their power as well as when they have arrived at the height of it. שָׁמַד, ease and completeness of their destruction, with the additional idea of worthlessness. If the figure were to be pressed, earthly rulers are as chaff which serves an important purpose during the maturing of the grain, but when the end for which they were brought into existence is answered, they are blown away as worthless chaff. The oriental method of winnowing was by casting the grain and chaff together up to the wind, that the former might be separated and the latter blown away. הַצֶּהְרֵף , not ordinary wind, but violent storm, whirlwind. : $\text{עָשָׂה$, change of tense; the process is begun but not ended. They have withered and shall be blown away. The verb means either to take up or to carry away.

25. Substantial repetition of the question of ver. 18, but God is here the speaker. $\text{הֲאֵין־לִּי־שָׁוִי}$, no need of the subjunctive rendering, that I may be equal. וַיֹּאמֶר saith, though some insist on future sense, God will continue by his word and works to say, see on 40:1. : שֵׁם , no article, as it assumes somewhat the character of a proper name. The primary idea is that of separation. As applied to things, e. g. the temple, its vessels, etc., it denotes separation from those of ordinary character and uses, setting apart, consecration. As applied to persons, it implies separation in a moral sense likewise, spiritual purity. Used of God, it denotes his separation from his creatures both in exaltation, which is chiefly dwelt upon in the context, and in his moral purity and excellence.

26. An appeal to the stars, and what they declare of the greatness of him who made and controls them, still further to exhibit God's infinite superiority. He who brings forth his heavenly host, calls all by name, and loses none, will not overlook the concerns of his people. אֲבֹרָה , absolutely, see, viz. the heavens, not joined to what follows, see who hath created, etc. הַשָּׁמַיִם , evidently referring to stars, though they have not been expressly mentioned. וַיֹּאמֶר , not the answer to the preceding question, but a continuation of it, 'Who is the one bringing out, etc.' As וַיֹּאמֶר is used of the rising of the sun and stars, some render causing them to rise. But it is rather a military figure, leading forth an army. בְּצִבְעָם (1) by number, denoting orderly arrangement. (2) in full number, completely; or (3) in great number, numerously. $\text{וְעַד־כִּי־יִשָּׁלַח}$, see on Gen. 2:1. אִישׁ may be used as an indef. pron. in relation to things, but is here perhaps suggested by the figure of a host, 'not a man is missing.' Marg. see on Judg. 13:25, 1 Kin. 18:39.

27. The third and last division of the chapter begins here, shewing the unreasonableness of Israel's dejection and distrust. $\text{וְעַד־כִּי־יִשָּׁלַח}$. The demand for a reason implies that there was none. $\text{וְעַד־כִּי־יִשָּׁלַח}$ not merely dost thou say, but wilt thou say, why continue to say or persist in saying. $\text{וְעַד־כִּי־יִשָּׁלַח}$. The original name of the patriarch, never used of his descendants except in poetry. $\text{וְעַד־כִּי־יִשָּׁלַח}$ is distinguished from $\text{וְעַד־כִּי־יִשָּׁלַח}$ Hebrew as the theocratic or sacred from the secular or gentile name. At the time of the schism the ten tribes composing the mass of the people usurped the name of Israel for themselves, leaving the other kingdom to be called Judah, from the dominant tribe. "Israel" is here used in its sacred or theocratic sense, as describing the chosen people, and that although the kingdom of Judah is alone referred to. The ten tribes were apostate, and had been virtually excinded by their overthrow and captivity. Judah was the true Israel in whom the continuity was preserved in spite of the rejection of the unbelieving mass. $\text{הַסְתַּרְתָּ} \text{מֵעֵינַי}$ hidden, out of sight, whether unknown and forgotten or unattended to. $\text{דַּרְכֵי} \text{וַי}$ way, sometimes figuratively denoting course of conduct, but here condition. $\text{מִיְהוָה} \text{מִיְהוָה}$ my cause, in its forensic sense, or my right. $\text{וְיִשְׁכַּח} \text{וְיִשְׁכַּח}$ shall pass away, either my cause shall be neglected, the controversy with my enemies not coming up before God for trial, or being dismissed unsettled; or my right shall pass away, my rightful claim to protection against the injustice of my foes shall fail to be secured. Marg. Haphtarah of $\text{וְיִשְׁכַּח} \text{וְיִשְׁכַּח}$, Gen. 12 : 1.

28. The unreasonableness of this distrust is apparent from what they knew or ought to know. The infinite greatness of God is urged by sceptics as an argument against the salvation of the gospel. He who created and watches over the vast universe would not bestow such extraordinary attention on this speck of earth as the gospel supposes. But the objection is guilty of the very depreciation of God which it deprecates. If this earth is as nothing, is the rest of the universe any greater in comparison with him? To the prophet God's infinite greatness is an invincible ground of trust; no vastness of cares can so distract him that he shall be unable to do all that is needful for the feeblest and the least. $\text{הֲלֹא} \text{—} \text{וְיִשְׁכַּח}$ § 283. 2. Hast thou not known, or hast thou not at least heard? וְיִשְׁכַּח , in apposition with the following divine names which are here emphatically accumulated; others make וְיִשְׁכַּח the subject and $\text{וְיִשְׁכַּח} \text{וְיִשְׁכַּח}$ predicate, Jehovah is the God of eternity § 254. 6. וְיִשְׁכַּח extremities, including all that is between them, the entire earth from one extremity to another. וְיִשְׁכַּח faintness, primarily arising from running, וְיִשְׁכַּח weariness from toil; they are here combined as equivalents to intensify the idea; fut. because this never will occur, involving of course a denial that it ever has occurred or is possible. וְיִשְׁכַּח , the words might mean 'there is no searching to his understanding,' his knowledge is intuitive, not discursive, is not gained by investigation. Their meaning here is, it is impossible for man to investigate the divine understanding, it is limitless. As he cannot desert Israel for lack of power or through exhaustion, neither can he from want of knowledge whether of their wants or of the methods of supplying them.

29. He is not only the possessor of strength but the source of it. He not only never wearies himself but recuperates those who do. וְיִשְׁכַּח

§ 259. 2. וַיִּזְאַרְךָ אֱלֹהִים, not only to the weary but to the powerless. : וַיִּזְבְּחֵהוּ, he not only gives but multiplies, gives abundantly. Who among the powerless shall be thus succoured, is explained in what follows.

30. Human strength, even the most vigorous and active, is inadequate. What has been denied of God is here affirmed of the stoutest men and those in the prime of life. וַיִּבְחַרְתֶּם, the part. בְּחַרְתֶּם has plur. בְּחַרְתֶּם, but in the special sense of choice young men, selected for their fitness for military duty, it has for distinction בְּחַרְתֶּם § 210. a. קָצַץ § 282. a.

31. וַיִּתְּן § 254. 9. b, wait for, expect him with faith and patience, which is also the sense of 'wait upon' in the Eng. Ver., though this phrase in modern English rather suggests the idea of personal attendance. This verb may be construed with the direct object or with לְ and אֵל. וַיִּתְּן exchange, especially for the better, improve, renew. וַיִּשָּׂא, not shall go up into feathers, i. e. put forth feathers, comp. Ps. 103 : 5, nor mount up with wings, but shall raise the pinion. וַיִּשָּׂא and וַיִּשָּׂא, again as in ver. 28 : they who trust in God shall no more faint than God himself.

CHAPTER XLI.

In the preceding chapter the incomparable greatness of Jehovah had been asserted as a ground for Israel's trust in the salvation he had promised. Here the questions of 40 : 18, 25. are as it were resumed, and his supremacy demonstrated against all opposers. This is presented under the figure of a majestic trial, to which Jehovah, as the one party, summons all the nations and the gods whose claims they put forth or defend, challenging them to exhibit proofs of deity compared with his. The chapter consists of two unequal parts, viz. :

1. vs. 1-24, the trial in detail, with its result ;
2. vs. 25-29, a brief recapitulation.

The process of the trial is subdivided into :

(1) The setting forth of the evidences of Jehovah's power and foreknowledge, as these would be conspicuously displayed in what he was about to achieve :

- a. The raising up of Cyrus, vs. 2-7.
- b. Making Israel victorious over all foes, vs. 8-20.

(2) The futility of all other claims to divinity. The claimants can neither foretell anything nor bring anything to pass, vs. 21-24.

1. The summons of the nations and their gods to trial, to vindicate their claim to divinity in comparison with Jehovah. וַיִּתְּנֵם § 272. 3, be silent unto me, i. e. be silent and turn to me. Some understand this of conversion, cease your raging hostility and turn quietly and submissively to me, and thus you shall gain the new strength promised, 40 : 31. Others, be reduced to silence, as the result of the trial which follows, this being already anticipated at the outset. It would then be a summons to be silenced by entering into trial with God, and finding themselves unable to make out their claims. It is better to regard it as a call to attention ; listen silently to me, and then with your utmost vigour maintain your cause. God is the speaker throughout this chapter. אֱלֹהֵינוּ , see on 40 : 15. The summons to the most distant nations implies that those nearer at hand are likewise challenged. $\text{וְהַיְהוָה יִתְקַדֵּשׁ בְּיָמֵינוּ}$, allusion to 40 : 31, where this is asserted of those waiting for Jehovah. Let the nations, who will not wait on him, renew it for themselves, summon all their strength, and, if possible, redouble it. Change of person § 279. The future has an imperative sense, as is shown by the preceding imperative and the cohortative at the end of the verse. לֵאמֹנֵינוּ approach not one another but God, and this not as worshippers but as adversaries. $\text{וְהַיְהוָה יִתְקַדֵּשׁ}$, after the preliminary silence during the presentation of God's claims to divinity, they may set forth their own or those of the idols which they worship. $\text{וְהַיְהוָה יִתְקַדֵּשׁ}$ together, God and his adversaries. בְּיָמֵינוּ (1) judgment or trial, (2) judgment seat, place of trial.

2. The first proof of God's power and foreknowledge adduced is the annunciation of his purpose to raise up Cyrus, whose appearance and correspondence with what is here predicted of him would give evidence both that God controlled human history, and that he foreknew whatever comes to pass. Cyrus is described as, in prophetic vision, already raised up (וְהָיָה) and pursuing his career of conquest (other verbs future). That וְהָיָה is a prophetic preterite § 262. 4, and Cyrus, though ideally present, belongs to the distant future, is apparent from the fact that the announcement of his coming proves God's divinity against the idols. God foretold the coming of Cyrus and brought it to pass, while the idols could do nothing of the kind. He is here spoken of in general terms, simply as a great conqueror from the East, or, as this is supplemented by ver. 25, from the North and East, i. e. Persia, which lay in this direction from Palestine. In the progress of the prophecy he is more fully described, and his very name announced. וְהָיָה . Some suppose Abraham, and others Christ, to be referred to, and make וְהָיָה the object of וְהָיָה , and abstract for concrete = וְהָיָה righteous man, so Eng. Ver. But the object of וְהָיָה is not expressed, and the relative is to be supplied § 285. 3, raised up him whom not victory meets at every step, which gives to וְהָיָה an unauthorized sense, but righteousness calls to its foot as its servant and follower. He is raised up as an instrument of God's righteousness.

יְהוָה, the subject is אֱלֹהֵי, not God, nor he, the conqueror, drives nations before himself, nor אֱמִי. יְהוָה אֱמִי (1) will make his, the conqueror's, swords (collective) as dust, i. e. numerous, and his bows fleet as chaff; but this figure is more appropriate to the subdued than the subjugator. (2) suf. collect. referring to kings, make their sword as dust. (3) יְהוָה אֱמִי may best be regarded as an absolute expression of the manner or instrument § 274. 2. e, make nations and kings as dust by his sword, i. e. that of Cyrus.

3. אֲנִי אֶפְסָה § 274. 2. e. אֲנִי אֶפְסָה (1) a way that he had not gone with his feet, or previously passed over: this violates the tense of the verb. (2) a way that with his feet he shall not come, he shall not be compelled to retrace his steps. (3) the way at his feet, i. e. after him one shall not come, no one shall pursue him. (4) a way he shall not go with his feet, such shall be his speed that he shall rather fly than walk. The last is the best rendering.

4. The question of ver. 2, 3 is resumed. אֲנִי אֶפְסָה (1) an answer to the question he calling the generations from the beginning has done it, he who is the universal controller of providence and history has controlled it in this instance. (2) continues the question and agrees with אֱמִי: this is favoured by the absence of the article. Calling may mean calling into existence, or proclaiming, heralding, announcing beforehand. Who has exhibited this evidence of power and foreknowledge by raising up Cyrus? The answer is—I the Lord; first and with the last—before all and not survived by any. אֲנִי אֶפְסָה (1) I am the same, unchangeable; this gives a supposititious sense to the pronoun; (2) I am he, the one in question who has done this; (3) I am first and with the last § 258. 2.

Vs. 5-7 express the terror of the nations, their endeavours to nerve each other, and to put their gods in the best condition to render effectual help. The sarcasm lies in the fact that idols needing the services of ordinary workmen should be looked to in opposition to the infinite God. The immediate occasion of their terror may be Cyrus, whom God has raised up for the judgment of the nations, or this evidence of divine power and foreknowledge accomplishes their discomfiture in the grand trial which is represented as proceeding, and fills them with dismay. Yet instead of abandoning the contest and renouncing their follies for God's service, they but confirm one another in error and fly more frantically to their senseless idols, that these may establish by counter proofs their equality or superiority.

5. אֲנִי אֶפְסָה, they drew near to one another for mutual consultation and assistance, or to God, taking up the challenge or summons of ver. 1, and engaging in the unequal trial.

6. וַיִּזְדָּבְרוּ , they seek to relieve one another's fears by mutual exhortation to courage and persistence; fut. because descriptive of what is passing. The prophet places himself in the midst of the action; a part is performed and a part to come § 263. 5. a.

7. All who have had to do with making the idol encourage one another, each striving to remove the fears of the rest, and pronouncing his part of the work upon the idol good, or repairing what is yet weak or lacking, so that there may be no failure in this contest from its imperfect manufacture. $\text{וְיִשְׂמַחַתְּ בָּהּ}$, respecting the soldering, it is good, see on Gen. 1 : 28, not it is good i. e. ready for soldering.

8. The second proof of the divine omnipotence and foreknowledge is Israel's deliverance from all his foes, and their utter discomfiture and destruction, notwithstanding the weakness of the former and the power of the latter. This, when effected, as it certainly would be, would afford a grand proof of the divinity of Jehovah. As this is addressed to Israel's despondency, it is largely dwelt upon, and presented first in literal terms, vs. 8-13, then under two distinct figures, a worm threshing the mountains, vs. 14-16, and a supernatural flow of waters for those perishing with thirst, vs. 17-20. Israel is addressed and characterized, vs. 8. 9, his relation to God stated as a ground of confidence in what follows. God could not and would not desert to his foes, those for whom he had done so much, and whom he had destined to so great an end. אַתָּה יִשְׂרָאֵל , the substantive verb is not to be supplied, Thou art Israel, or thou Israel art my servant. The people are again addressed by the two names of their ancestor, used as poetic equivalents; the sacred name, however, is put first and gives its colour to the other, as the relation to God is prominent in his thoughts. In 40 : 27, where the sinful weakness of the people is prominent, the order is the reverse. עַבְדְּךָ servant, one employed to do a certain work. Moses is called God's servant, Deut. 34 : 5, Nebuchadnezzar, Jer. 25 : 9, the material creation, Ps. 119 : 91; here Israel. $\text{אֲנִי יְהוָה אֱלֹהֶיךָ}$, not only engaged in God's service but appointed of God himself to be so, selected from others and rather than others for this special purpose. $\text{זֶרְעֶךָ אֲבְרָהָם}$ seed of Abraham, whom God had promised to bless, and to make a blessing to all nations. אֲנִי אֲהַבְּכָהּ § 102. 3, my lover or who loved me, implying of course reciprocal affection.

9. God designated them as his and brought them from remote parts for his service the pains bestowed upon them making it more sure that he will not desert them now. $\text{וְיִצְרָאֵל אֱלֹהֵי אֲבְרָהָם}$, some refer to Abraham's call from Mesopotamia, others to bringing the people out of Egypt. $\text{וְיִצְרָאֵל אֱלֹהֵי אֲבְרָהָם}$, in Ex. 24 : 11 nobles, here sides or joints, parallel to אֲרָמִים . $\text{וְיִצְרָאֵל אֱלֹהֵי אֲבְרָהָם}$, not only made him his servant, but announced to him that he stood in that relation: 'thou art my servant' par excellence, as no other is. Israel, including the Messiah, who was of the seed of Abraham, as are also all his true people, is God's servant in a peculiar and the highest sense, the one who above all others is appointed by him to do his work in this world. :ךְ-פָּדָאָךְ אֶלְיָי, not I will not reject thee, which violates the tenses, but I have not rejected thee; this choice has never been revoked, implying, though not directly stating, that it never will be.

10. אֶרְאֶה-לִּי. This is the exhortation addressed to the person described in the two preceding verses. It refers not to the victories of Cyrus which, ver. 5, alarmed other nations, but need occasion no fear to them; but to perils foreseen or calamities experienced at any time and from any quarter. -יָ, the ground of exhorted fearlessness is God's presence, which implies his protection. וְלֹא-תִפְּחָד, not be dismayed, but look around with anxiety and perplexity for help. הִיָּחֲזַקְתִּיךָ, not I will strengthen thee, which violates the tense, but I have strengthened thee, either their past experiences of God's protection are appealed to as an argument of confidence for the future, or, I have already provided thee with strength adequate for these future emergencies, as shall be manifested when the trial comes. -אָ, cumulative, though no climax is traceable in the sense of the verbs, yet heaping together equivalent forms of expression gives intensity or emphasis to the thought. יְמִינִי צְדִיקָהּ: my right hand of righteousness § 254. 6, not right hand of my righteousness, the attribute personified and a right hand attributed to it. The right hand is an instrument of action and a symbol of strength.

11. הִנֵּה. Behold! see! pointing as if to an object of sight. וְגַם-שִׁמְתֵךְ, the accumulation of synonymous words makes the statement more emphatic. Shame denotes the frustration of plans and disappointed expectations. וְאַתָּה, see on 40:17. אֲנִי-רִיבֵיךָ § 256, thy men of strife § 256, men striving with thee.

12. Expansion and repetition of the last clause of the preceding verse. אֲנִי-נִשְׁכַּחְתִּיךָ, an expression often used to denote total disappearance. They shall vanish not only to a careless inspection, but the most earnest scrutiny shall detect no trace of their existence. וְאַתָּה, see on 40:17.

13. The reason of Israel's safety and of the destruction of their foes. הִחַזְקֵנִי (1) causative, making strong. This yields a good sense, but is not the usual meaning of the word in Hiphil, and is not its meaning in ver. 9 above. (2) holding fast, or firmly; the idea is not so much that of guidance out of perplexity and danger, as of preservation from falling or sinking. Not will hold, E. V. but am holding or the holder of for all time § 266. אֲנִי-אֹמֵר, not (1) for finite tense I am saying, but (2) I am the one saying to thee, or (3) I the one saying to thee, etc. have helped thee. According to (3) the thing said is simply אָרַח לָא; according to (2) the whole to the end of the verse. According to (3) I who say to thee fear not have actually helped thee, and in this given a pledge that you have no occasion to fear; according to (2) I the Lord am the one saying this, therefore it is no vain word but efficacious, truthful and strength imparting. אָרַח לָא, have helped thee in former times, as a pledge of present and future protection, or, have already granted the aid which you require in this case. The rendering I will help violates the tense.

14. The literal is, as is frequently the case in Isaiah, succeeded by a figurative statement. The first figure, vs. 14-16, is a worm, helpless and despicable, in danger of being crushed by the foot of every passer by, converted into a mighty engine which pulverizes the mountains and scatters them to the winds. The accomplishment of such a result by such an instrument is a clear proof of the omnipotence of God and his control of human history. אָרַח לָא, the frequent repetition of the exhortation not to fear, implies the strong temptation they were under to do so; fem. to agree with אָרַח לָא § 253. 1. or § 254. 3. This verse is a repetition and expansion of the divine voice at the close of ver. 13, the first clause dwelling upon the person addressed, the second on the person of the speaker. אָרַח לָא § 90. (pass.) the only form of the word which occurs, except the future, which is found in combination with it, Jer. 23 : 31. It is used of a divine utterance, almost always in connection with the name of God, more rarely of an inspired man. אָרַח לָא, fem. suf. refers to אָרַח לָא, properly to purchase from the power of another by the payment of a ransom. It is used repeatedly of God's delivering Israel from the bondage of Egypt and the power of other foes, as the converse אָרַח לָא to sell is constantly used of his subjecting them to the bondage of their foes, though no price was paid in either case, so that it may simply mean deliverer. But in the typical institutions of the law this word was used to express one, who as a near kinsman of one impoverished or slain, redeemed his property and restored it to him, or avenged his death. How far אָרַח לָא, as applied to God, have been associated with that type, or how much it may have retained of the radical signification of the word, we cannot tell. But that type teaches what is more fully unfolded in the New Testament, that God is the redeemer of his people from present and eternal evil by the payment of an equivalent, even the life of the Son of God, who is the manifested Jehovah of the Old Testament, though this distinction of persons in the godhead was not clearly revealed to the consciousness of the saints of that economy. אָרַח לָא, see on 40 : 25, includes the ideas of infinitely exalted and perfectly pure, the holy God who is the God of Israel.

15. הָאֵלֹהִים , see on ver. 11. $\text{הָיָתָה לְךָ} I have placed thee for$, converted thee into. This is what God has already made them, as will be shown in due time. $\text{זֶרְזָרִים} threshing instrument, sharp, new, not worn and dulled, possessed of edges or blades.$ פְּמוֹתָם , the reduplicated form is by some supposed to express number, many blades, strictly mouths: the 'edge' of a sword or sharp instrument is called its 'mouth.' $\text{וְאַתָּה תִּשְׁבֹּר הָרִים}$, thou shalt thresh mountains, comp. Mic. 4 : 13, Dan. 2 : 34, 35. עֲרֵבֵם , not specifically a symbol of kingdoms, but belonging to the imagery of the figure, which is that of a worm reducing mountains to powder.

16. The figure is continued ; after the threshing comes the winnowing, which was performed by casting up to the wind ; they shall be dispersed and driven away as completely as chaff from the threshing floor. $\text{וְעָרְפָה} the pronoun is used to indicate the opposition of Israel to the enemies just spoken of § 243. 1. וְ may be conjunctive, and thou shalt rejoice in consequence of the destruction of foes, or adversative, and on other hand, i. e. but, while they perish thou shalt have cause to rejoice. הָיָתָה לְךָ in Jehovah, in virtue of your relation to him, as to rejoice in wealth is in the possession of it or in the advantage it brings. : לְךָ תִּשְׁבַּח תְּהִלָּתוֹ boast, glory : He shall be the ground of triumphant confidence. Marg. see on 40 : 26.$

17. Another figure ; water is given in overflowing abundance to those perishing with thirst, when and where it could be least expected. This similitude is often used by Isaiah, suggested probably by the experience of Israel in the wilderness when coming up from Egypt. First the necessity is described. It is not the literal thirst of the exiles returning from Babylon which is intended, for (1) the language would then be hyperbolic and fanatical ; no such miraculous gift of water occurred on their return ; (2) this is a fresh image of what had been set forth under a different emblem in the preceding verses. There is no more reason for regarding this as literal description than the worm pulverizing mountains. Thirst is a figure for misery and destitution, for which an abundant and unexpected supply shall be provided. It is not to be confined to the suffering of the Babylonish exile, though that is of course included, comp. Amos 8 : 11-13. הָיָתָה לְךָ , the form appears to be from $\text{הָתָה} to place, and so some take it. But as that word has the sense of placing, not of parching or drying up, which the context requires, it is probably from הָתָה with Daghesh-forte emphatic § 24. c. Secondly, the plentiful supply, a. its source, then b. in the next verse the supply itself. הָיָתָה לְךָ, hear prayer favourably, answer them ; no prayer had been mentioned, but it was implied in the wretched-$ ness above described; first affirmatively, then negatively, as is usual with Isaiah, I will not desert them.

18. בְּצִפְרָיִם , not merely high places, but bare, naked cliffs or hills. $\text{וְהַרְקִיעַ$, water shall abound everywhere, in hills and valleys. This is not a description of physical changes which shall be wrought, but figures of abundant blessing. The interpreter must not particularize cliff, valley, desert, and make each a symbol of some distinct individual thing, but take the whole image together as forming one picture of welcome and overflowing supply.

19. The wilderness, בְּאַרְצוֹת , containing only scanty vegetation, and even the desert, בְּעֵרְבֵהֶם , absolutely destitute of verdure, comp. on 40 : 3, shall be made to produce stately trees. This is not a new figure, but a carrying out of that already employed. The trees are not designed to suggest shade and shelter from the heat, nor to delight the eye by beautiful groves, but to evidence the thoroughness of the change produced by this miraculous abundance of water; that is made fruitful which was sterile before.

20. לְמַעַן יֵרְאוּ expresses the design, 'in order that they may see,' either 3 pl. indef. § 243. 2. b, it may be seen, or, the nations opposed to God in this strife. $\text{וְיִצְרְאוּ$, ellipsis of עַל לֵב . $\text{בְּרָאָהוּ$, not only produced it but created it, implying something altogether new and above the operation of natural causes, see on Gen. 1 : 1.

21. The idols and their worshippers are addressed and challenged to exhibit like proofs of divinity. בְּרִבְכֵם produce your cause, i. e. your side in this great contest. עַל מְצִיבֹתֵיכֶם your strengths or strong ones, those on which you rely. Some make it 'your champions,' i. e. idols. The Eng. Ver. better, 'your strong reasons.' $\text{מֶלֶךְ הַמַּלְכִּים}$ the king, both the ruler and defender of Jacob.

22. $\text{וְהִבְיִיאוּ וְהִגִּידוּ}$ § 279; both verbs have the same subject and object, though some translate let them bring near their idols, and let them, the idols, announce to us, etc. $\text{הַבְּאִי... הַבְּאִי...}$. The contrast has been differently understood; either the proximate and the remoter future, or more probably the former things are past predictions already uttered and accomplished, while the coming things are predictions now to be made of what is yet future. $\text{וְהִסְתַּיְמוּ$ the end of them, their issue, whether they are fulfilled or not. We, i. e. God and his people on one side; they, i. e. idols and their followers on the other.

23. Change of person § 279. כִּי אֶלְהִיָּהוּ , this was the thing to be decided. $\text{וְהַיְטִיבוּ וְהַיְטִיבוּ}$, either reward your friends and punish your foes, or do some thing either good or bad, comp. Jer. 10 : 5, Zeph. 1 : 12. וְהַיְטִיבוּ § 172. 3. וְהַיְטִיבוּ § 97. 2. a. וְהַיְטִיבוּ , some connect with the subject we, both parties together ; others with the verbs, look about and see together, or at the same time ; others still with the object, see the good and evil ye have done together.

24. As they are unable to accept the challenge, and to adduce evidence to sustain them in their claim of divinity, sentence is given against them ; they are proved worthless and condemned as such. כִּי־אֵין־לָהֶם nothing, composed of it and equal to it, or less than nothing, see on 40 : 17. עֲשֵׂתֶיךָ your work, your idols which are of human workmanship, or which is better suited to the connection, your deed, what you, the idols, have done. קִבְּצוֹתֶיךָ , abomination, an object of religious abhorrence, comp. Gen. 43 : 32. עֲשֵׂתֶיךָ according to some = רָעָאֵךְ worse than a viper, but the parallel expressions show it to be equivalent to, if not an orthographic variation for עֲשֵׂתֶיךָ .

25. The trial is recapitulated : the two great arguments of Jehovah's deity are repeated, with the failure of the idols to exhibit similar proofs, whereupon sentence is pronounced again. 1st proof : the raising up of Cyrus, ver. 25, the idols neither did it nor predicted it, ver. 26 ; 2nd proof : foretelling and accomplishing Israel's deliverance, ver. 27, the inability of the idols is manifested again, ver. 28, they are worthless, ver. 29. כִּי־יָצָא־יְהוָה , similarity of expressions to ver. 2 : the preterite here, as there, is shown to refer not to what is actually past, by being adduced as a proof of divine foreknowledge. יָצָא־מִן־צָפוֹן . As the Babylonians invaded Palestine from the north, and Chaldea is called the north country, whereas this conqueror is said, ver. 2, to be raised up from the East, some refer the first clause to God's raising up Babylon to be a scourge to Israel, and the next to Cyrus' march to overthrow it. But this assumes a change of subject not intimated in the text. Others combine the North of this clause with the East of the following, and apply it to Cyrus as from both North and East, i. e. the North-East. There may perhaps be an allusion to his twofold origin, as he was descended from both the royal house of Media in the North and that of Persia in the East. $\text{וְיִשְׁמַע־בְּשֵׁם־יְהוָה}$, either he shall call by, i. e. upon my name, or he shall call with, i. e. proclaim my name, see on 1 Kin. 18 : 24 ; for the fulfilment in either case see his edict, Ezra 1 : 2. עָלְמוֹתֵיכֶם § 271. 2, this word is specially applied to Babylonish nobles. $\text{וְיִדְבְּלוּ־בְרַגְלֵיכֶם}$, trample them down, as something utterly worthless and vile, indicating the completeness of the subjugation and their inability to make resistance.

26. מֵרֵאשִׁית from the beginning, not as 40 : 21 from the creation, but either indefinitely of old, or in contrast with אַחֲרַיִם , which means 'after the end of,' Gen. 41 : 1, עַד־רֵאשִׁית may mean 'before the beginning of.' The question will then be, who announced Cyrus' coming before his appearance ?

יָצִיק, may be right, true, or the more exact meaning of the word may be retained, righteous. He in whose favour the judge pronounces is justified in his case, be it what it may ; so in this case, give decision in favour of the idols if they have foretold anything, pronounce them on that ground righteous in the claim which they are putting forth to divinity.

27. יִשְׁאָר, not as Eng. Ver. the first shall say, but I first; either supply 'say,' or introduce give from the last clause, i. e. give them the opportunity and privilege of saying behold them.

28. The incapacity of the idols. הִנֵּה־אֲנִי prep. partitive, I saw of these, i. e. the idols. יִצְוֶינִי, giving advice or information respecting the future. יִשְׁאָר, declarative and they will perhaps return an answer, subjunctive that they may, etc., or interrogative, will they return, etc.

29. As they have failed to make out their claim to divinity, sentence is given against them. אֲנִי, (1) all of them are vanity, their works or deeds are nought, but this violates the accents; (2) as for all of them, their works are vanity, nought.

CHAPTER XLII.

Chap. 40 promised to Israel deliverance and salvation, confirming the certainty of it by an appeal to God's incomparable greatness. In chap. 41 the sole divinity of Jehovah is demonstrated to the confusion of idols and their worshippers by his protection and exaltation of Israel. The idols can neither do good nor do evil, neither be the authors of any salvation to the people, nor retard the salvation God has promised. In this chapter the divinely appointed destiny of Israel, which God's power is pledged to accomplish, and which the idols cannot prevent, is more fully unfolded, and seeming difficulties in the present and past aspect of things are removed.

The chapter consists of 3 parts, viz. :

1. vs. 1-9. Israel is God's chosen servant to extend his kingdom over the earth, and to enlighten and save the nations.

2. vs. 10-17. God's apparent apathy and inaction in the past presents a seeming improbability in the way of the accomplishment of this destiny: but this is to be exchanged for an activity which shall effect the most stupendous results.

3. vs. 18-25. The character and condition of the people add a fresh improbability: but their sins shall not obstruct what God does for his own righteousness' sake and the magnifying of his law: and their sufferings, so far from proving God's inability to protect and bless them, were sent for just reasons by God's own hand.

1. יְהוָה. The most important question connected with this entire prophecy is who is the servant of Jehovah, comp. 41 : 8, who so frequently recurs in it. He cannot be Cyrus, who was not commissioned to spread the true religion, nor Isaiah, or the prophets as a class, who were not sent to the Gentiles, nor Israel in its purely national character, whose sufferings were not vicarious, and from whom he is expressly distinguished, 49 : 6. It is plain from the attributes and works ascribed to him, that the Messiah is prominently referred to: this further appears from frequent applications to Christ, in the New Testament, of language employed respecting this servant here and elsewhere. Yet he is not exclusively intended, for (1) imperfection and sin are attributed to the servant of the Lord, 42 : 19. (2) The servant is repeatedly called Israel or addressed as Israel, 41 : 8, 44 : 1, 49 : 3. (3) The connection here demands not the introduction of a fresh subject, but a statement of what was designed for Israel. (4) What is here said of God's servant is applicable to the people as a whole in its measure. (5) Some of the expressions used respecting the servant of Jehovah are applied to the people of God, Jer. 11 : 19, Acts 13 : 47, 2 Cor. 6 : 2. The proper view seems to be that God's servant is Israel considered as embracing the Messiah, who was to spring from the midst of them, and by whom mainly the task of the world's salvation committed to this people, comp. John 4 : 22, was to be achieved: as we might attribute to France what was performed by Napoleon. This is precisely the sense of 'the seed of Abraham,' and may be further confirmed by the scriptural doctrine of the unity of Christ and his people, comp. 1 Cor. 12 : 12. אֶחָדָם אֶחָדָם I will uphold him or will hold him fast, retain him. There is no necessity for supplying the relative. This is applied to Christ, Mat. 12 : 18, etc., and twice by a voice from heaven, Mat. 3 : 17, 17 : 5, where the changes in the form of expression are for the sake of explanation or more exactly designating the person intended. בְּחֵיבָהּ, not merely choice or excellent, but actually chosen. מֵעַל upon him rather than in him, to denote descent from heaven. מִשְׁפָּט judgment, either the function of a judge, the administration of justice, not here the mere blessings of good government in a worldly sense, but his empire, his spiritual reign, or that which is just and right, his righteous laws, true religion. Israel, instead of being longer lorded over by the nations, shall give law to them in the person of his great representative and ruler. לְגֵנוֹת to the nations, i. e. mankind. יֵצֵא cause to go forth, i. e. from Jerusalem, the centre and seat of this empire, comp. 2 : 3, the facts of the new dispensation being presented under the emblems of the old.

2. This empire was not to be extended by such means as are employed in worldly conquests, not by noise and clamour, ver. 2, nor by violence, ver. 3, but by the truth. אָזְנֵי: lift up, not himself, nor faces אָזְנֵי, i. e. accept persons, but his voice; the true object is contained in the last word of the verse.

3. Figures of gentleness, and so applied by the evangelist Matthew 12 : 20, not merely as descriptive of the personal characteristics of the Redeemer, but of the method of extending his kingdom. נִכְבֵּשׁ, shown by the accompanying adjective dim and verb extinguish to mean wick; its primary sense is flax. מִלְּפָנֶיךָ stands opposed to the methods of extending his empire previously described. The prep. admits of various explanations: (1) according to truth, truly, in a true and proper manner; (2) in reference to truth, i. e. by means of truth; (3) belonging to truth, i. e. in its service, acting as its embodiment and representative; (4) unto truth, so as to secure its triumph and establishment. The rendering in perpetuity gives an unauthorized sense to the noun.

4. הִנֵּה, allusion to הִנֵּה, ver. 3, he shall neither use violence nor suffer it from others, he shall not fail in the performance of his task. יָרֵץ, some derive from יָרַץ run, (1) shall neither be dim nor run, i. e. be precipitate, not too slow nor too hasty; (2) run away, flee, be driven from the successful accomplishment of his work. It is more probably from יָרַץ § 140. 1, with allusion to יָרַץ, ver. 3, be broken, defeated. אֲרָצֹת isles, remote lands, see on 40 : 15. יִחַיְתוּ shall wait for his law, may mean that they must remain deprived of the blessings of his kingdom until his reign comes to be extended over them, or that after their submission to him they shall wait for the utterances of the law from his mouth with a ready disposition to obey them.

5. The accumulation of titles heightens the sense of God's greatness and omnipotence, and thus gives confidence in his ability to effect what is promised in the following verses. אֲדָמָה § 221. 7. a. אֲדָמָה, mankind, not the Jews in contrast with the Gentiles, see on 40 : 7. Marg. Haph-tarah of אֲדָמָה, Gen. 1 : 1.

6. הִנֵּה, summoned thee to this task, called thee to be my servant. יָרֵץ in the exercise of righteousness: this is shown both in faithfulness toward his servant, fulfilling all rightful claims to assistance and support, and in the nature of the work itself to which he is called, a work illustrative of and determined by God's righteousness. יָרֵץ § 97. 2. a, hold thy hand, sustain, uphold. אֲדָמָה, not a covenant people or mediating people, though this might describe Israel's function, but a covenant of the people, the mediator of a covenant with them, as light in the following clause means a dispenser of light. אֲדָמָה may denote the Jewish people in contrast with גוֹיִם , the Gentiles, or more probably is equivalent to it, denoting, as in ver. 5, mankind.

7. Figures of the removal of sin and suffering, which Israel especially through its great representative was appointed to accomplish.

8. Jehovah claims to himself the honour of this glorious result in contrast with graven images whose powerlessness has been previously exhibited.

9. The fulfilment of previous predictions (or, as some say, those of the nearer future, i. e. about Cyrus, when they come to pass) pledges and assures the fulfilment of others made respecting events before they sprout or spring up. How completely the glorious future here heralded was yet buried in the soil and had not even sprouted, appears from what follows. Two great sources of the improbability of what has been announced are considered, (1) God's seeming apathy and inaction; (2) Israel's character and fortunes, so opposite from those described or presupposed. These the prophet now proceeds to dispose of: but first he proclaims a universal jubilee and summons all the world to rejoice.

10. שִׁיר הַיָּם new song, indicating a fresh occasion of praise. מִכָּל אֶרֶץ , the remotest parts of the earth are to utter their joyful thanksgivings at the salvation of the world from sin and misery to be effected by Israel. מִיָּם , object of יֵרֵד , 'going down to the sea and all that it contains,' or parallel to יֵרֵד , and summoned to join in the praise, whether it denotes marine animals or inhabitants of lands in the bosom of the sea.

11. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל , see ver. 2. בְּיָמָיו § 197. d, § 275. 2. b.

13. Jehovah will stir up his zeal on behalf of his people, lay aside the seeming inaction of the past, and accomplish the most stupendous results. לָחֵץ , military phrase for going forth to battle. זֵלַת (1) zeal, excited feeling, (2) jealousy for his own name, or on his people's behalf. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל , the battle-cry or shout to rouse the warrior's ardour.

14. God's past apathy and inaction are contrasted with the new activity to be displayed on his people's behalf. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל , not interrogatively, but expressive of the determination formed during this period of seeming inaction, 'saying, I will be silent.' וְיִשְׂרָאֵל , the comparison has sometimes been referred to the subject, God, as one bringing forth, travelling in birth with Israel, effecting their regeneration and salvation, but it is better and more usual to connect the comparison with the actions described. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל , in the two other places in which it occurs, is a noun, viper; here it is a verb. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל , not from וְיִשְׂרָאֵל destroy, but וְיִשְׂרָאֵל blow, breathe hard. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל , not devour, but pant.

15. The effects produced by this zeal and activity of God metaphorically expressed. They are described as most surprising and stupendous, implying the exercise of almighty power, and of a character precisely the reverse of those in 41:18. They represent mighty judgments on the foes of the people to accomplish the deliverance and welfare of the latter.

16. The result will be the safe guidance of those who could no more see a way of escape from perplexity than the blind. הַשְׁמַדִּים , convert darkness into light, see 41:15. עֲקֻמִּים crooked or uneven, as opposed to יְשׁוּבִים , lineal or superficial straightness, see on 40:4. $\text{עָשִׂיתִּי$ I have done them these things, or for them, the people § 102. 2, § 273. 3. a.

17. וְיָשׁוּבִים , driven back from the execution of their designs. While God's people should be thus favoured and blessed, the worshippers of idols would be utterly discomfited and disappointed, unable to accomplish Israel's destruction. The great temptation of the people was to distrust God's power and grace, and transfer their confidence to the idols whose worshippers had proved so much stronger than they. This is met here and repeatedly in this prophecy. עֲבָדֵי , i. e. both the graven and molten image.

18. The improbability arising from Israel's character and condition: these shall not obstruct his achieving this high destiny on his own behalf and that of the world. עֲבָדֵי § 245. 2, the heathen may be addressed as especially characterized by moral deafness and blindness; or perhaps the deaf and blind as a class, the deaf might be expected to hear and the blind to see these evidences of the folly of idolatry.

19. And yet Israel neither hears nor sees them, or acts as if he did not. וְיָשׁוּבִים , the question implies that his blindness is such that no other deserves the name; all other blindness disappears beside it. This shows that the servant of the Lord here spoken of is not the Messiah exclusively, for this can have no relation to him. עֲבָדֵי has been variously explained, (1) friend of God, (2) perfect, (3) devoted to God, (4) provided with עֲבָדֵי peace or welfare.

20. תִּתְּחִיב K'thibh 2 m. s. pret., K'ri const. inf. תִּתְּחִיב . Israel is addressed in the first clause, and spoken of in the second § 279, thou hast seen many things, i. e. evidences of divine power and grace, but wilt pay no heed to them. תִּתְּחִיב , inf. for finite verb § 268. 1, God has opened his, Israel's, ears by his prophets, etc., or better, comp. ver. 7, it describes the destiny of Israel, set to open ears, and he will not hear himself, whether from indisposition or inability, or both.

21. This guilty incapacity and apparent gross unfitness of the people for their destined task shall not defeat it. God will accomplish this salvation for his own sake, not for theirs. עֲבָדֵי , some refer suf. to Israel, in order to his, Israel's, righteousness; others to Messiah, on account of his, Christ's, righteousness. It must refer to God, on account of his own righteousness. קָדְשׁ cannot mean exactly grace or mercy. It may here denote faithfulness to his promises and engagements, which is one phase of the divine righteousness, or his righteousness in its ordinary sense, which the plan of salvation was designed to illustrate and display by putting away sin and diffusing holiness. וַיְגַדֵּל הַתּוֹרָה, not magnify law by inflicting judgment on those who had violated it, which is inappropriate in this connection: nor give a great and glorious law, but illustrate and honour the law, i. e. the Old Testament dispensation, that system of things which God had ordained to issue in the salvation of the world, and which should so issue in spite of Israel's unfaithfulness. הִרְאֵה from הִרְאֵה to instruct, not mere advice but authoritative guidance, law.

22. The condition of Israel presented as great an apparent obstacle to his achieving this salvation as his character. Can a people who could not save themselves, and whom their God did not rescue, be the saviours of the world? This anomaly is here explained. הִקְפְּזוּ בְּתוֹרָתָם. Some derive the noun from קָפַז, then according as the verb is from קָפַז or from קָפַז it may be rendered, there is a snaring of young men, all of them, all their young men are captured as birds in a snare, or they all are the puffing derision of young men. But it is better to regard כּ as a prep. a snaring them all in holes, they are caught like wild beasts, or panting in holes, i. e. dungeons. וּבְקִפְּזֵיהֶם בְּלִצְמוֹתָם, both members of the compound expression are put in the plural. The terms of this verse are figurative, and describe not merely the Babylonish exile, but the suffering and oppressed condition of the people through a considerable portion of its history. וְשָׁבוּ לְבָרְכֵי וְשָׁבוּ לְבָרְכֵי, allude to וְשָׁבוּ לְבָרְכֵי of the first clause, and are resumed in וְשָׁבוּ לְבָרְכֵי, בְּלִצְמוֹתָם of ver. 24. : הָשִׁב for הָשִׁב § 65. a, restore, bring back, whether to their own land or to their former condition of prosperity.

23. The question implies the prophet's earnest desire that they should give ear, and at the same time his apprehension that few would do so. שָׁמְעוּ does not refer to הִרְאֵה, ver. 21, which is too remote, nor to the preceding verse, but to the verse following, containing the solution of this anomaly, which is the main thing to be attended to. : לֹא-תִשְׁמַע, not hearken to the past but hear for the future, either describing the time of hearing, in time to come, or the object of it, hear with reference to the time to come.

24. Their sufferings do not prove that Jehovah is unable to deliver his people, for he gave them into their enemies' hand, and that for a sufficient cause. וְשָׁבוּ לְבָרְכֵי וְשָׁבוּ לְבָרְכֵי § 279.

25. וַיִּשְׂפֹּךְ , Vav conv. intimates a close connection or dependence, and so he poured §99. 1. $\text{עַל אַנְפֵּי הַיָּם}$ §253, fury, viz. his anger, or his anger as fury. $\text{וְהוֹדִיעַ אֶת הַיָּם}$, the subject is הַיָּם or rather הַיָּם . $\text{וְהוֹדִיעַ אֶת הַיָּם}$, not unawares, unexpectedly, but expressive of stupid unconcern, as is shown by the parallel expression, he will not lay it to heart. The change of tense is significant, and is designed to embrace both periods of time §263. 5. a. Marg. see on Gen. 44:10. 17.

CHAPTER LIII.

That the Messiah is the subject of this chapter is evident from the following considerations:

1. Its terms are exclusively applicable to Christ. A spectacle is presented of extraordinary humiliation and suffering, terminating in a violent death. They, who first beheld it, mistook its real meaning and design, and despised what they should have honoured. This suffering and death were vicarious, due to no personal ill desert of the victim, and to no arbitrary infliction of God, but endured for the sins of others, and procuring for them justification and peace. The sufferer was himself righteous, vs. 9. 11; not in a comparative sense merely, but absolutely so, since what he endured was not on his own account, but wholly for the sake of others. These sufferings were, moreover, voluntarily assumed and borne without complaint, and they were to issue in a glorious reward. This is all strictly true of Christ, but of no other.

2. The subject is expressly stated to be the servant of the LORD, ver. 11, 52:13. To this servant Isaiah ascribes all that work which Israel, including the Messiah, was raised up and appointed to do for the glory of God and the salvation of man; see on 42:1. In some passages the language employed is applicable both to the people as a whole and to their great descendant. In others it is so framed as to refer only to one or the other of the constituents of this complex person. The imperfections charged upon this servant, 42:19, belong to the people alone. In the present chapter the Messiah is alone regarded. In proof of this it may be urged, (1) that what is here said of the servant of the Lord is true only of the Messiah, not of Israel as a people. Their sufferings were not vicarious, but as both Isaiah and other prophets testify, and as the facts declare, the just desert of their own sins. The church here possesses only a remote and distant resemblance to her head in so far as she takes part in the afflictions of Christ, and completes the destined measure of that willing endurance for the good of others, which appertains to her as the body of a suffering head, Col. 1:24. (2) Here, as in 42:6, 49:5. 6, Israel is distinguished from the servant of the Lord. The speakers in the first part of the chapter are not gentile nations in contrast with Israel, with whom the prophet could not identify himself, and whom he could not thus introduce without explanation, but as in 59:9-12, 63:16-64:12, and as is distinctly intimated ver. 8, comp. ver. 4, the people of God. (3) The expressions imply that an individual person is intended. The singular is used throughout; he is called "a man," ver. 3; his "soul" is spoken of, vs. 10. 11. 12, also his imprisonment and death, vs. 8. 9; he is contrasted with the "many," vs. 11. 12, whom he shall justify, and whose sins he bare. This is so convincing, that some of those who reject the Messianic interpretation, have sought to fix upon some other individual as the subject of the prophecy, some prophet, or king, or martyr, otherwise unknown. And the Ethiopian eunuch was led to ask whether the prophet spoke this 'of himself or of some other man.' Acts 8:34.

3. The analogy of prophecy. (1) Although the prophets dwell more upon the glory and blessedness of Messiah's reign than upon his antecedent humiliation, and although it is peculiar to this passage to unfold the vicarious nature of his sufferings, he is yet elsewhere predicted as a sufferer, in whom the acme of human endurance should be reached, and who should rise thence to proportionate exaltation and glory. This is already intimated in the primal promise, Gen. 3:15, and more distinctly set forth in the typical Psalms, e. g. Ps. 22, 69, and in the later prophets, e. g. Daniel 9:26, Zechariah 9:9, 12:10, 13:7. (2) This chapter stands in the relation of climax to others of like character in this same prophecy, see on 40:2, and must refer to the same subject. The declaration, 42:4, 'he shall not fail nor be discouraged,' implies that the servant of the Lord would meet with opposition and obstacles. He is spoken of, 49:4, as 'one whom man despiseth and whom the nation abhorreth;' 50:6, he gave his back to the smiters and his cheeks to them that plucked off the hair. (3) The 'tender plant' and 'root out of a dry ground,' ver. 2, strongly resemble expressions which are used to characterize the Messiah elsewhere. These terms are doubtless identical in meaning with the rod out of the stem of Jesse and the branch growing out of his roots, 11:1, and 'my servant, the Branch,' Zech. 3:8.

4. The authority of the New Testament, which bears testimony to the Messianic character of this passage almost verse by verse; 52:15 is quoted and applied to Christ, Rom. 15:21; so 53:1 in John 12:38,

Rom. 10 : 16 ; ver. 4 in Matt. 8 : 17, and with the following verses in 1 Pet. 2 : 22-25 ; vs. 7. 8 in Acts 8 : 32. 33 ; ver. 12 in Mark 15 : 28, Luke 22 : 37. As a suffering Saviour is more clearly and fully set forth in this chapter than in any other prophecy of the Old Testament, it must be prominently referred to in such general statements as Mark 9 : 12, 'it is written of the Son of Man that he must suffer many things and be set at nought,' and Luke 24 : 25-27, 44-46, Christ ought, agreeably to the prophets, to have suffered these things and to enter into his glory. The terms employed by the writers of the New Testament in stating the doctrine of vicarious atonement are also frequently borrowed from this chapter or contain manifest allusions to it. Thus Rom. 4 : 25, 'who was delivered for our offences,' alludes to ver. 5 ; the 'Lamb' 1 Pet. 1 : 19, the 'Lamb slain' Rev. 5 : 6 ; the 'blood of the Lamb' Rev. 7 : 14 to ver. 7 ; 'the Lamb of God which taketh away (ὁ αἴρων) the sin of the world,' John 1 : 29. 36 to vs. 7. 11 ; 1 John 3 : 5, comp. vs. 9. 11 ; 1 Cor. 15 : 3. 4, 2 Cor. 5 : 21, comp. vs. 8-11.

5. This is the most ancient and the almost universally received interpretation. The oldest Jewish authorities refer it to the Messiah, notwithstanding its contrariety to the carnal expectations of that people. And it was only to escape the necessity of confessing the signal fulfilment of this prophecy in Jesus of Nazareth that the Jews of later times abandoned this traditional explanation. In the Christian church this continued to be the unanimous interpretation for seventeen centuries, unless Grotius be regarded as an exception, who explained it in its primary sense of Jeremiah, but in its fullest and highest sense of Christ. It was not until the prevalence of rationalism, with its bold denials of the reality or possibility of prophetic foresight, that any other subject than the Messiah was imagined or suspected.

6. No other satisfactory explanation ever has been or can be suggested. The perfect righteousness of the subject and his vicarious sufferings are wholly inapplicable to the Jewish people as a whole, to the sacred order of the priesthood, or the collective body of the prophets, as well as to Hezekiah, Josiah, Isaiah, Jeremiah, or any other individual, actual or supposable, but Christ alone.

The chapter may be divided as follows, viz. :

1. vs. 1-9 describe the sufferings of Messiah.
2. vs. 10-12 his consequent reward.

The former of these sections may be subdivided into three stanzas of three verses each :

(1) vs. 1-3, his lowly and suffering condition led to his contemptuous rejection.

(2) vs. 4-6, these sufferings, so grossly misunderstood, were vicarious

(3) vs. 7-9, he dies by a judicial sentence, uncomplainingly, though innocent, for the sins of others.

1. וְהָיָה , While the Gentiles who 'had not heard,' 52:15, shall pay heed to Messiah's claims, the mass of the chosen people will reject him. The question does not necessarily imply that the unbelief was absolutely universal; the few who believed are overlooked beside the vast numbers who did not. מִפִּי suf. may denote the source § 254. 7, the thing heard from us prophets, our report, so Eng. ver.; or the subject § 254. 8, the thing heard by us the people of God; the latter explanation has the advantage of assuming the same speaker here as in the following verses. The prophetic teachings regarding the Messiah are intended in either case. זְרוֹתַי the arm of Jehovah, i. e. his presence and power, which, though manifested in Christ, were discovered by few. עָלֵינוּ , not simply to whom, as if the prep. were עָלֵינוּ or עָלֵינוּ , but over whom, the figure being that of a celestial exhibition.

2. The reason why the Messiah was not recognized in his true character is found in his humble and unattractive exterior. בְּעֵינָיו § 262. 4, the ideal position of the prophet is between Christ's humiliation and his glory, so that what relates to the former is mostly spoken of as past, and what relates to the latter as still future. מִלְּבָבוֹ § 245. 5. d, elsewhere a suckling, here in the sense of מִלְּבָבוֹ a sucker, sprout. לְפָנָיו , some refer the suffix to God, before him, an object of divine attention and care, comp. Gen. 17:18, others to the people, i. e. in their esteem. The objection that this involves a gratuitous change of person, since the people are the speakers throughout the first part of the chapter, may be relieved by understanding it distributively, § 275. 6, in connection with the implied answer to the preceding question, 'Almost every one disbelieved since Messiah grew up before him,' etc. מִלְּבָבוֹ root, or more probably a shoot attached to and springing from it, in which the root as it were reveals itself. מִלְּבָבוֹ , and hence puny and insignificant; the explanations of the dry land, as Galilee, or as the Virgin Mary, show what extravagance results from giving a separate significance to every particular in a figurative or symbolical description. וְהָיָה is by some interpreters connected with what precedes, and rendered that we should behold him in the sense of looking upon him with pleasure; this is recommended by the like construction of the following וְהָיָה . It is forbidden, however, by the accents, as well as by the fact that וְהָיָה has this sense only when followed by וְהָיָה , see on Gen. 1:4. The prophet may here forsake his ideal stand-point, and speak of that as future which is actually so, or the future may be used relatively to the preceding וְהָיָה , § 263. 5. a, because the act described is subsequent to and consequent upon it, and we saw him.

3. זָּרַקָה , either in a passive sense, forsaken of men, or an active, ceasing to be of men, so disfigured by suffering as to be no longer counted a man, comp. Ps. 22:7. זָּרַקָה § 207. 2. e. זָּרַקָה זָּרַקָה , not known by but acquainted with sickness, which may be used here as 1 Kin. 22:34 of the physical effect of wounds, but most probably stands by a poetic individualization for every form of suffering. זָּרַקָה has been explained as an anomalous Hiph. part. like one causing to hide the face from him, or as the sense of the Hiph. in this verb is simply to hide, like one hiding the face from us in grief, 2 Sam. 15:30, or shame, Mic. 3:7, as the lepers, Lev. 13:45. As, however, such a form of the participle would be almost unexampled, § 94. e., it seems better to regard it as a noun, § 191. 4, when זָּרַקָה , § 233, may be 1 pl. with the same sense as before, or 3 m. s. with the relative omitted, § 285. 3, like one from whom there is a hiding of face, whether the meaning be that we or men generally averted our faces to avoid the sight of so shocking a spectacle, or that he resembled one from whom God had hidden his face in anger, comp. 59:2, where זָּרַקָה stands as here without any qualifying expression, also 54:8, 64:6, Ps. 22:25. זָּרַקָה , not 1 pl. fut., but as at the beginning of the verse, Niph. part.

4. These sufferings were not in punishment of any sins of his own, nor were they mere calamities or arbitrary divine inflictions. The true explanation is given in the first clause. זָּרַקָה , as subsequently זָּרַקָה , expressed on account of the emphatic contrast, § 243. 1. זָּרַקָה , not simply took away but bore, as it was only by bearing our sufferings that he could have removed them; this appears further from the parallel expression זָּרַקָה , about whose meaning there can be no question, from the preceding verse where Messiah is characterized by the sickness and griefs which are here identified as 'ours,' and from the usage of this verb זָּרַקָה in the phrase to which there is manifest allusion here, comp. ver. 11, 'to bear iniquity,' Ezek. 18:19. 20, Num. 9:13, i. e. to suffer its penalty. Matthew, 8:17, quotes these words as fulfilled in our Lord's miracles of healing; for, though they did not exhaust the meaning of the prophecy, they were types and incipient fruits of the salvation wrought by his vicarious sufferings. זָּרַקָה § 200. c. זָּרַקָה suf. repeats the noun, § 281. זָּרַקָה , this verb and its cognate noun זָּרַקָה are used of any plague divinely sent, and particularly of the leprosy, 2 Kin. 15:5, Lev. 13:1, whence the Jewish notion that Messiah was to be a leper. זָּרַקָה § 254. 9. b.

5. זָּרַקָה 1 rep. indicates the ground or reason, on account of.

שְׁלוֹמֵנוּ אֲנִי הָיִינוּ, not instruction for our welfare, § 254. 9, since the reference in the context is not to Christ as a teacher but as an atoning sacrifice, and the prep. עָלָיו upon him suggests the idea of bearing suffering, as in ver. 4; but chastisement or punishment of our peace, that by which our peace or welfare is secured.

6. The language of the people of God is still continued. בְּצָרָה § 245. 5. d, figure of sin and the helpless misery resulting from it.

7. אֲנִי נִצְרָה, not 1 pl. fut. Kal, we shall oppress him, but Niph. pret., and not impersonally, it was exacted, viz., the penalty due to our sin, but he was oppressed. אֲנִי נִצְרָה pron. expressed because the participle follows, which does not of itself indicate the person. אֲנִי נִצְרָה may be taken passively, afflicted, a synonymous expression added to strengthen the preceding statement, or reflexively, § 77. 2, humbling himself, suggesting the idea that he voluntarily submitted to this affliction. אֲנִי נִצְרָה fut. relative to the foregoing verbs, § 263. 5. a; in the vividness of the description the scene appears to be transacting before the prophet's eyes, and hence he uses successively the preterite, the participle, and the future to set it forth in its successive stages as in part past, in part present, and in part yet to come, he has been oppressed, and he is being afflicted, and he will not open his mouth. אֲנִי נִצְרָה § 285. 3. Marg. see on Gen. 44 : 10. אֲנִי נִצְרָה agrees not with אֲנִי נִצְרָה which is fem., nor with אֲנִי נִצְרָה which is too remote, but with Messiah, who is the principal subject.

8. אֲנִי נִצְרָה prep. may have its instrumental sense, as Eng. Ver. marg., by oppression and by judgment, i. e. a judicial sentence, or its local sense, from confinement and from judgment, i. e. the tribunal or judgment-seat. אֲנִי נִצְרָה has been referred to his being taken to execution, as Prov. 24 : 11, or taken out of life, as Ezek. 33 : 4. 6, or his assumption to heaven, as Gen. 5 : 24, 2 Kin. 2 : 9, 10. Of the numerous interpretations proposed for the next clause there are but two which are consistent with the true sense and usage of the words. The first, which has the authority of the early versions in its favor, makes אֲנִי נִצְרָה the object of the following verb, who shall speak (or think) his generation, i. e. who can in word or thought recount their multitude? The 'generation' of the Messiah will then mean those who belong to the same class with him, who are assimilated to him in spirit and in life, as in the phrases 'generation of the righteous,' Ps. 14 : 5, 'generation of thy children,' Ps. 73 : 15, 'generation of the upright,' Ps. 112 : 2. It is thus in fact, though not in form, equivalent to his posterity or spiritual seed, אֲנִי נִצְרָה, spoken of ver. 10. The verb אֲנִי נִצְרָה, though commonly followed by the prep. עַל, may nevertheless take a direct object, as is shown by Ps. 145 : 5. This rendering assumes that a preliminary glimpse is here afforded of Messiah's exaltation and the reward of his voluntary endurance, while the entire context relates to his sufferings and the full and proper consideration of their reward does not begin until ver. 10. According to the other view of the clause, יִרְאוּ-הֵם stands absolutely in apposition with the subject of the verb § 271. 4. b, as for his generation, i. e. his contemporaries, who shall think (or say) that, etc., none of them, or comparatively few, shall recognize the fact that his sufferings are vicarious. מָוֶת , most usually and naturally employed of a violent death. יְהוָה , Jehovah may be the speaker, as in vs. 11. 12, or the prophet, or as in the preceding verses the people of God, the singular being employed distributively § 275. 6, as 1 Sam. 5 : 10, Zech. 8 : 21. לְהִיטָא , not an unusual form for 3 m. s. smiting was to him, but 3 m. pl. and paragogic Vav § 104. f, § 233, with the ellipsis of the relative § 285. 3, to whom smiting belonged or was due, or the abstract מָוֶת for the concrete, as a smiting, one smitten, comp. Lev. 13 : 4, etc., for them. The word מָוֶת alludes to מָוֶת ver. 4 ; his contemporaries would think him stricken, but not that the stroke which he bore was one which had been deserved by themselves.

9. נָתַן indef. § 243. 2 and one gave, put, appointed, equivalent to it was given. רָשָׁעִים wicked, distinguished as such by an ignominious burial, hence criminals, malefactors. With this is contrasted in the next clause the honourable burial of the rich. The servant of the Lord was destined to both, of course successively and by different parties. This enigmatical statement finds its explanation in the event. They who crucified Christ with malefactors, marked him out for a malefactor's grave ; but God by his providence ordered it otherwise. He was laid, as Matthew 27 : 57-60 expressly informs us, with special allusion doubtless to this prophecy, in a rich man's tomb. The exactness of the fulfilment has given great trouble to unbelieving interpreters, who have ineffectually tried by every expedient to get rid of the plain sense of the passage. The text has been altered without the slightest warrant of external authority ; עָשָׂר has been declared, in defiance of invariable usage, to mean wicked, and finally it has been said that 'rich' is here equivalent to 'wicked,' inasmuch as riches lead to pride and impiety. It is, however, not the rich man's life, but his burial which is here spoken of, and that manifestly presents not a parallel but a contrast to the grave of the malefactor. Christ had his grave with malefactors in the intention of his murderers, with a rich man in the purpose of God and in actual fact. אַחֲרֵי מָוֶתוֹ , not in the act of dying but in the state of death, equivalent to after his death, comp. 1 Kin. 13 : 31. The plural form has been supposed to express intensity § 201. 2, a death so dreadful that it seemed like many deaths combined in one, or to be purely poetic, as Ezek. 28 : 10, or to be such only in appearance, the suffix after נִי following the analogy of those appended to fem. plur. nouns, comp. Ezek. 6 : 8, 16 : 31, § 173. 2. There is no necessity, therefore, of assuming either that the suffix refers to a collective person, or that the word is the plur. of קִבְרֵי in the sense of a sepulchral mound or tumulus, a meaning which this word never has; this would besides require an arbitrary change of the points to קִבְרֵי יִי , and it would after all leave the plural form unexplained. $\text{בְּ$ prep. governing the following clause and hence equivalent to the conj. בְּכִי $\text{בְּ$, which may mean because, when his innocence will be stated as the reason why his grave was finally assigned him with the rich rather than with the wicked; or although, as in Job 16 : 17, a particular being added of a tenor contrary to the preceding, when the reference will be chiefly to the first clause, his grave was appointed him with the wicked, though he had committed no crime in deed or word.

10. Introduces the second portion of the chapter, descriptive of Messiah's reward. This was the reason why Jehovah permitted his servant to be thus afflicted, nay, why he himself imposed these afflictions upon him. $\text{וְיִשְׁמַח$ § 175. 1 is by some thought to govern and qualify the preceding verb § 269. a, was pleased, crushed him grievously by § 269 for was pleased to crush, etc., comp. Mic. 6 : 13, but it is better to preserve its separate verbal force. אִם in its proper conditional sense, if. $\text{עָשִׂהָ$ put or place, i. e. make, not 2 m. s. referring to Jehovah who is spoken of still in the third person, but 3 f. s. and the subject is נַפְשׁוֹ . This is not a mere periphrasis for the pronoun he, but has the emphatic sense of his soul, his life, which is represented as making the offering, because it was the life which was sacrificed. $\text{עֹשֶׂה$, the legal designation of the trespass-offering, Lev. 5 : 15, 16, a modification of the sin-offering, in which there was not only an expiation for the sin by the shedding of blood, but a pecuniary compensation or amends for the injury committed. An expiation for the forfeited life of the sinner and a full satisfaction to the law and justice of God are combined in the sacrifice of Christ. The mention of the condition is followed by that of the blessings suspended upon it, viz., a numerous posterity, long life, and a successful prosecution of the task which God had been pleased to commit to him. Like blessings were often promised and granted to the righteous, Job 5 : 23-26; they are here pledged to the servant of God in their highest spiritual meaning. $\text{בְּ$ in or by his hand, i. e. by his instrumentality, Lev. 8 : 36.

11. $\text{בְּ$ prep. causal, on account of, not partitive, as though he should see some but not all of the results of his toil. $\text{וְיִשְׂמַח$, the object implied though not expressed is an ample reward, such as had been promised in the preceding verse. יָדָעוּהוּ , not by the knowledge which he possesses, for Messiah is here spoken of as an atoning sacrifice and not as a teacher, but the suf. expresses the object § 254. 9, by the knowledge of him on the part of others, that practical knowledge and right apprehension of him which implies faith in him and reliance upon him. לַעֲשׂוֹת צְדָקָה , not to make inwardly righteous, a sense which the verb has, if at all, only in one passage, Dan. 12 : 3, but in the forensic sense to justify § 272. 2. a. $\text{לְעֵינַי$ adj. contrary to the ordinary rule § 249. 1. a, stands emphatically before its noun and in a significant proximity to its cognate verb. In such cases the article is omitted, the new prominence which the adjective assumes conferring upon it a measure of independence and perhaps something of the character of a proper name, comp. Jer. 3 : 7. 10. אֲנִי יְהוָה , Jehovah is the speaker in this and the following verse.

12. Some render the first clause, I will divide (or apportion, comp. Job 39 : 17) to him the many, and he shall divide strong ones as spoil, i. e. his spiritual conquests shall embrace vast multitudes, and even the most powerful shall own him their victor. Others prefer to translate, I will divide to him among the many, and he shall divide spoil with the strong, comp. Prov. 16 : 19 ; he shall have the success which elsewhere attends multitudes and strength. He, like other great conquerors, shall have abundant spoil and reap large fruits from his victories. That his conquests are of a very different description from theirs, however, appears from the method by which they were gained as detailed in the remainder of the verse. וַיִּפְּסֵהוּ , either poured out or laved, exposed. וַיִּפְּסֵהוּ fut. because not confined to the period of his humiliation, but still performed in his state of exaltation.

EZEKIEL, CHAPTER XXXVII.

This chapter contains,

1. A symbolical vision, vs. 1-10, with its explanation, vs. 11-14.
2. A symbolical action, vs. 15-17, with its explanation, vs. 18-28.

The former, which is a real vision, and not merely an allegory in that form, is not designed to set forth the corporeal resurrection of Israel's dead, as has sometimes been inferred from vs. 12. 13, but as is plain from ver. 11 a glorious change to be wrought in Israel's condition, a change which to human view was as hopeless as that dry bones should be raised to life.

If we could presume that the doctrine of a future resurrection was understood and was a part of the popular faith at the time of the prophet, it would be natural to suppose an allusion to it here. God, who shall hereafter raise the dead, will restore Israel to a new life. Perhaps, however, it may better be conceived to be preparatory to the doctrine than built upon it, an obscure hint of what was afterwards to be more fully disclosed than an evidence that it was already familiarly known. Such premonitory intimations occur with frequency in the Old Testament. A method often employed for this purpose, and it is singularly adapted to the end, is the use of figures, which, beside their obvious figurative interpretation, shall also have accomplishment as literal verities, see on Isa. 40 : 3. This view of the case is confirmed by the fact that the principle here asserted is the very one upon which the doctrine of the resurrection of the righteous rests. Israel's relation to God as his people gave assurance that though dead he must rise again. If this was true of the people as a whole, it was applicable likewise to the individuals composing it so far as they personally sustained this vital and vivifying relation to God. If it was true of the death and ruin which had overtaken Israel as a body, it was also applicable to the corporeal death of individual believers. Death cannot annihilate or destroy those who belong to God. This is in fact the point of view from which the Old Testament chiefly develops the doctrine of the future state and of the corporeal resurrection. And this is urged by our Lord against the Sadducees as underlying even the earliest periods of divine revelation, Luke 20 : 37. 38.

1. $\text{--} \text{חַד}$ the hand, as the organ chiefly employed in action, is used as a symbol of power, and here denotes that mighty spiritual influence, by which the prophet's ordinary consciousness was suppressed and the condition of ecstasy produced, comp. 1 : 3, 8 : 1, 40 : 1. $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$ in the Spirit, i. e. intimately united with this divine agent and under his control; חַד may be in const. before $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$ or as the accentuators seem to have judged in the absolute, when it will be definite without the article, as 8 : 3, § 246. 1, and $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$ will be the subject of the preceding verb. $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$ verbal adj. governing a direct object like the verb from which it is derived § 271. 1, see on Gen. 42 : 18.

2. $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$ § 280. 3.

3. $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$ expresses not possibility only, but futurity, shall they live? $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$ § 199. c. $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$ § 47.

4. $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$ § 275. 5; so $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$, comp. ver. 5, etc. $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$ § 245. 2.

7. $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$... $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$, possibly thunder and earthquake, betokening the divine presence and agency, but more probably noise and shaking of the bones. $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$ § 88 (3 f. pl.)

8. $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$, see on Gen. 40 : 8.

11. $\text{חַד} \text{בְּרוּחַ הַקּוֹדֵשׁ}$, a pleonastic use of the dative of advantage, for ourselves, so far as we are concerned, Eng. Ver. 'for our parts;' others render to ourselves, i. e. cut off from all hope or help and left to ourselves.

He had ambitiously grasped in his own hand as many tribes as he could bring beneath his own control; but all would be hereafter united in the hand of the Lord. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל suf. refers to Judah, and the following words are explanatory, upon or along with him, viz., with the stick of Judah. Others render, I will put them, the tribes of Israel, together with him, Ephraim, with the stick of Judah.

OBADIAH.

This prophecy is divisible into three parts, viz.:

(1) vs. 1-9, the utter destruction to which Edom is destined.

(2) vs. 10-16, the reason of it, viz. : Edom's unbrotherly conduct at the time of Jerusalem's calamity.

(3) vs. 17-21, the contrasted deliverance and enlargement of Jacob.

1. Marg. The Haphtarah of וְיִשְׂרָאֵל Gen. 32:4, etc. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל vision, not in the specific sense of an appearance beheld in an ecstatic state, but in the more general sense of a divine revelation or prophecy, affording an insight into the will and purposes of God. $\text{וְיִשְׂרָאֵל} \S 195. 3.$ After this brief title the nations are summoned to arise and make war upon Edom. $\text{וְיִשְׂרָאֵל} \text{---} \text{וְיִשְׂרָאֵל}$. This introductory formula is elsewhere invariably followed by language in which God is himself the speaker; here, however, it is used to denote that what comes after is a communication from God, even though he does not throughout speak in the first person.

This is simpler than to enclose the remainder of the verse in a parenthesis and connect this formula directly with ver. 2; or to assume an anacoluthon, 'we have heard tidings from Jehovah,' when the construction with which the sentence began would have required instead, 'I, Jehovah, have caused you to hear tidings;' or, more violent still, to resort to the hypothesis of an interpolation, which is commonly a mere cover of ignorance or unbelief, and is here peculiarly unfortunate, for if the words 'Thus saith the Lord concerning Edom' be stricken from the text, there will be nothing to intimate against whom war is to be prepared, nor who is addressed vs. 2-5, nor what is the subject of the prophecy, until it is learned from ver. 6. It would be better to allow the text to remain as it is, and confess the difficulty to be insoluble, than to get rid of it in such an unwarrantable manner. The pret. רָאָה does not here denote an action wholly past, as though the prophet were repeating what God had said at some former time, perhaps through the medium of a preceding prophet, but in accordance with the constant usage of this formula an action belonging to the present, already begun but not yet finished, § 262. 2. And hence the fut. רָאָה may with equal propriety be used in the same phrase, Isa. 40 : 1. לְאֵדוֹם in respect to, concerning Edom, or, if the remainder of the verse is parenthetical, to Edom, see on Gen. 1 : 28. $\text{וְעַמְּנוּ$ we, not the nations who are in the next clause spoken of in the third person, but the people of God who heard this in the prophet as their representative, or through him as their medium of communication with the Lord; the plural would then intimate that these tidings were received by the prophet not as an individual, but as a member and organ of the chosen people, and for the sake of the whole. Or he may possibly speak in the name of the prophets, to others of whom like disclosures were made, comp. Isa. 53 : 1. וְעַמְּנוּ . This clause may be explanatory of the preceding, the tidings being that a messenger had been sent, etc. Or if the tidings have a more general relation to all that follows respecting Edom's overthrow, it may be confirmatory, showing that measures were already taken to effect this end. It does not form an opposition to the preceding clause, as though the meaning were, We, the chosen people, have heard a summons (which is not the sense of וְעַמְּנוּ), and a messenger has also been despatched among the heathen that both Jews and Gentiles might be united in the war upon Edom. The messenger, if an ideal one sent by God to gather the nations, simply expresses the thought that the Lord would certainly bring about this result. The same idea is elsewhere conveyed under the image of calling distant nations by a hiss or whistle, or setting up a signal for them to congregate, Isa. 5 : 26, 7 : 18. Or the messenger may be a real one, sent by one nation to solicit the aid of others. מַלְאָכָי, Marg. see on Gen. 44:10. מַלְאָכָי, the language of the messenger addressed to the nations, which is simpler than to regard it as the mutual exhortations of the nations, roused by the messenger sent to them. It is quite unnatural, and contrary to the whole tenor of the following prediction, to suppose that the chosen people are in these words exhorting one another to engage in a war to which the heathen had already been divinely invited. מַלְאָכָי we, i. e. both the party represented by the messenger and the nations addressed. If he has been sent by God, then by a bold figure God is represented as taking the initiative in the war against Edom, and inviting the nations to coöperate with him. Comp. Isa. 13:4, 5, Joel 2:11. מַלְאָכָי § 275. 2. b.

2. This gathering of the nations to war against Edom is in pursuance of the divine intention to reduce him to insignificance and to a despicable condition. מַלְאָכָי I have in purpose given, made thee small, § 262. 1. b; the preterite is used because the purpose was already formed, though not yet executed in actual fact. It is not necessary, therefore, to refer this to something wholly belonging to the past, to the position which God originally assigned to Edom among the nations, as though it were intended by its contrast with what follows to set his arrogance in a more glaring light; God had made him a small, despised people, but his pride led him to fancy himself invincible. מַלְאָכָי, this result, divinely resolved upon, is spoken of as if it were already effected.

3. The confidence which he had entertained and still continued to cherish in his inaccessible position, was a delusion. מַלְאָכָי § 218, § 255. 1. מַלְאָכָי. This word is of rare occurrence, and interpreters are not agreed as to its precise sense. Gesenius renders it asylums: others clefts or excavations, which is more aptly descriptive, has the ancient versions in its favour, and admits of an equally satisfactory derivation. מַלְאָכָי § 279, the lofty place of his inhabiting, i. e. which he inhabits; this may be in apposition to מַלְאָכָי, from which the prep. מַ is to be repeated, or it may be governed immediately by מַלְאָכָי, which sometimes takes a direct object, inhabiting his lofty dwelling in the clefts of the rocks. מַלְאָכָי, the question implies that no one could.

4. Though his habitations were more difficult of access than they were, or than it was possible for them to be, God would dislodge him. מַלְאָכָי may be taken absolutely, if thou shalt mount high as the eagle; or מַלְאָכָי may be supplied from the next clause, if thou make thy nest high as the eagle, in which case the infin. מַלְאָכָי will be assimilated to it in tense, number, and person, § 268. 1, though others regard it as a passive participle, § 158. 3; or better still, מַלְאָכָי may govern מַלְאָכָי directly, if thou make high the putting of thy nest, i. e. put thy nest high, § 269. a, comp. Ps. 113:5, Job 5:7. מִן־הַשָּׁמַיִם , not apparently, i. e. upon summits so lofty that, viewed from beneath, they might seem to be among the stars, but really. This is of course an impossible supposition, but its very absurdity only shows more clearly how inevitable was their doom. Comp. Amos 9:2, etc.

5. Transported in idea to the event which he was predicting, the prophet exclaims at the completeness of the ruin and the pillage, such as the ordinary causes and images of desolation were inadequate to effect or to represent. מִן־הַשָּׁמַיִם § 187. 1. a, thieves abstracting stealthily, מִן־הַשָּׁמַיִם § 35. 1, robbers using violence to accomplish their purpose. If thieves came to thee, etc., would they not steal (מִן־הַשָּׁמַיִם fut. because subsequent to מִן־הַשָּׁמַיִם § 263. 5. a) enough for them, as much as they wanted, could lay their hands on, or were able to carry away; still they would have left something, they could not have plundered thee of every thing. That it was not ordinary thieves from whom Edom had suffered, but something far worse, appeared from their having stripped him of all and ruined him utterly, as is suggested by the interjected exclamation, how hast thou been destroyed! § 86. b (2 m. s.), § 262. 4. A similar sense may be obtained by rendering מִן־הַשָּׁמַיִם interrogatively in both clauses of the verse, though this meaning of the particle is mostly confined to disjunctive questions, § 283. 2: Have thieves come to thee, etc.? it might seem as if they had, and yet this would not account for such extreme desolation; do they not steal (fut. in habitual sense, § 263. 4) enough for them? they do not despoil of every thing, as has been done in this case. Or מִן־הַשָּׁמַיִם both here and in ver. 6 may introduce an interrogation, though this is less forcible than the exclamation: If thieves had come to thee, etc., how couldst thou have been destroyed (pret. modified by the preceding condition, § 262. 1) as thou hast been? The least satisfactory of all the interpretations which have been proposed, supposes that the prophet does not contrast the 'thieves,' etc. with the actual plunderers of Edom, but identifies them. If thieves come to thee (prop. shall have come, pret. in relation to the following future, § 262. 1) as they certainly shall, etc., will they not steal their fill? the implication being not that they will leave something, but that they will take every thing that they can get. If grape gatherers, etc., will they not leave mere gleanings, i. e. the least possible remnant?

6. מִן־הַשָּׁמַיִם agrees with מִן־הַשָּׁמַיִם as a collective noun, § 275. 2. מִן־הַשָּׁמַיִם secret places, § 191. 3, or hidden things, concealed treasures, § 191. 5.

7. Edom's impregnable position could not protect him against this unsparing pillage. His other grounds of dependence, the friendly disposition of allied nations and his own wisdom and valour would be equally unavailing. From the description of this desolation the prophet now reverts to the circumstances which preceded it. $\text{אֲנֹכִי וְאֵלֵי מְנַחֵם}$ men of thy covenant, i. e. those in covenant with thee; and as the relations spoken of are those of a nation, allied nations and not merely individuals must be intended. These have so far violated their engagements and disappointed thy reasonable expectations, that they have sent thee (pret. § 262. 4) to the border. When thou hast gone to them to obtain the stipulated aid against invading foes, they have conducted thee, in the person of thy representatives or ambassadors sent for this purpose, to the borders of their territory, not in token of respect and honour, as though the meaning were, they lavish every attention upon thee, and make fair promises which they never fulfil; because upon this understanding of their act, the most essential thought, the non-fulfilment of their promises, is not expressed. Their sending thee to the border is simply equivalent to dismissing thee, refusing the solicited aid, and sending thee out of the country. It has also with less probability been understood to mean that they refuse to harbour the fugitives escaped from the devastation before described; they sent thee, i. e. this fleeing remnant which alone survived, to the border; or to denote active hostility, the border upon this hypothesis being not the limit of their own territory, but that of Edom, they sent thee to thy border, i. e. expelled thee to it and beyond it. This, however, would more naturally be attributed to the nations spoken of in ver. 1. The allies of Edom refuse in his extremity to grant him aid; and what is yet more unexpected and trying, $\text{אֲנֹכִי וְאֵלֵי מְנַחֵם}$ the men of thy peace, the nations at peace with thee, and upon whose neutrality, at least, if not assistance, thou couldest count, have deceived thee, have prevailed with respect to thee, i. e. over thee. They have by open force, or secret treachery, taken the side of thy foes to their advantage and thy hurt. And most astounding of all, $\text{אֲנֹכִי וְאֵלֵי מְנַחֵם}$, either by a bold figure, or by an unusual ellipsis, although it is one easily supplied from the preceding words, for men of thy bread, befriended by thee in their times of want, or deriving their subsistence from thee, requite thy kindness with perfidy and injury. $\text{אֲנֹכִי וְאֵלֵי מְנַחֵם}$, fut. because the prophet speaks as if in the midst of what he is describing, § 263. 5. a. Edom has found himself disappointed in two classes, the nations with whom he was in alliance, and those with whom he was at peace; one class yet remains, those who had eaten his bread, and there a similar disappointment awaits him. It may be observed here, that these classes need not be exclusive of each other: the same nation might perhaps belong to one or to another, according to the aspect under which it is contemplated. But all, upon whom Edom could have reposed any reliance, failed to meet his natural and legitimate expectations. רִשְׁתָּהּ , variously rendered snare, falsehood, and wound. The construction above proposed is on the one hand preferable to that which violates the accents by connecting אֲנֹכִי with the preceding clause, the men of thy peace and of thy bread have, etc.; and on the other to that which governs אֲנֹכִי by וְעָלְתָּ they, indef., § 243. 2, will make thy bread a snare under thee, whether this be understood to mean that they treacherously entrap the fleeing remnant of Edom under pretence of affording them subsistence, or that they ungratefully replace or requite the bread which they have received from Edom by setting a snare for him. לֹא יֵדָע suf. refers not to רִשְׁתָּהּ snare, there is no perceiving it, Edom does not perceive the snare set for him, which gives a wrong sense to אֲנֹכִי ; but it refers to Edom § 279, there is no understanding in him. This is not here stated as an explanation of the ill-usage just recited, as though he had brought it upon himself by his own folly; nor as a deduction from it, as though his being so deceived and ensnared evidenced a lack of intelligence; nor as a consequence of it, as though the perplexities resulting from the treachery of his supposed friends induced an entire confusion of counsels. It is rather a fresh particular in the hopelessness of his condition. Every resource fails him. He is not only deserted by others on whom he relied, but his own wisdom, in which he prided himself, and for which he was famed, Jer. 49 : 7, forsakes him.

8. This is not accidental or unexplained, but due to a special divine infliction. וְעָלְתָּ expects an affirmative answer. וְעָלְתָּ § 112. 3, § 287. 3.

9. They should be deprived of courage as well as of sagacity. וְעָלְתָּ § 100. 2. a (2). וְעָלְתָּ expresses not simply the result, so that, but the design, in order that. Their bravery is taken from them with the view of giving them up to helpless slaughter. כָּל־אֶחָד , used as an indefinite pronoun, every one. בְּלִי מִלְחָמָה , the sense of the prep. is not negative, without a battle, which does not give the noun its proper signification; nor causal, on account of slaughter, thy slaughter of Jacob, for this was chargeable not upon Edom, but upon 'the strangers,' ver. 11; but instrumental, by slaughter. It violates the accents to connect this with the next verse, and read, on account of the slaughter and on account of the violence, etc.

10. The crime by which Edom has incurred so terrible a retribution. בְּלִי מִלְחָמָה , prep. causal, noun constr. before its object, § 254. 9. a, on account of violence, wrong, done to thy brother. וְעָלְתָּ , not in allusion to blushes covering the countenance, nor to the disposition of those who are ashamed to conceal or veil the face, but shame shall cover, overspread or overwhelm thee. עֲרֹבֶנָּה alludes to עֲרֹבֶנָּה ver. 9. Marg. see on Judg. 13:18; other copies accent ע , in which case the Vav must be regarded as simply conjunctive, or else the accent remains on the penult contrary to the ordinary rule after Vav Conversive, § 100. 2.

11. The time and circumstances of the commission of this crime. Esau's hostility toward Jacob was transmitted to his descendants, and revealed itself in the whole course of their history. It culminated at the overthrow of Jerusalem by the Chaldeans. In this hour of Judah's calamity, Edom, instead of burying his rancour, and showing the commiseration which might have been expected from a kindred people, displayed a malicious joy at the downfall of his ancient rival. He made common cause with the foreign invader, and added his insults and outrages to those of the merciless enemy, Ps. 137:7, Lam. 4:21. 22. Passing by all inferior manifestations of this long cherished animosity, the prophet singles out this most glaring and wanton exhibition of it, which he was enabled to foresee. עַל־כֵּן connects not with what precedes, 'On account of the violence, etc. in the day;' but with what follows, 'In the day, etc., thou too wast as one of them;' indefinitely, as in Gen. 2:4. עָלַיְכֶם § 106. a. עָלַיְכֶם over against, opposite, whether as a spectator or as an enemy. עִיְכֶם , coördinate with the preceding עָלַיְכֶם . עִיְכֶם forces, host, as in ver. 20, or wealth, substance, as in ver. 13. עָלַיְכֶם , change of construction from the infin. to the pret. § 282. c. with a direct object, § 271. 2, though it is commonly followed by the prep. עַל into, or עָלַיְכֶם to. עָלַיְכֶם § 255. 1, comp. on Gen. 3:22.

12. Instead of proceeding to describe the conduct of Edom at this time of Judah's sore distress, the prophet appears to be a witness of its atrocity, and in impassioned terms begs Edom not to commit the crimes which he is on the point or in the act of committing, viz., not to indulge in malicious joy at Judah's downfall, ver. 12, not to take part in the sack and plunder of Jerusalem, ver. 13, and not to slaughter or betray Judah's hapless fugitives, ver. 14. עָלַיְכֶם § 264, § 171. 1, cannot mean, thou shouldest not have looked, but must be rendered look not. As it would be unnatural and contrary to analogy to dissuade from that which had already been committed, the conduct of Edom here complained of must have been still future, and hence the preterites of ver. 11 are prophetic like those of vs. 2. 6. 7. The prophecy must accordingly have been delivered prior to the destruction of Jerusalem by Nebuchadnezzar, and we thus have an incidental corroboration of its date as inferred from its position among the minor prophets after Amos and before Jonah and Micah. עָלַיְכֶם may express the time of the action, in which case הִנֵּה must stand absolutely without an object, look not at what may offer itself to your sight in the day, etc.; or coördinating still the second עַד of this clause with the first, וְ may connect the verb with its object, denoting that the sight dwells upon it and rests in it with satisfaction, see on Gen. 44 : 34, Judg. 16 : 27, look, gaze not at the day of thy brother, i. e. the period of his calamity, comp. Ps. 137 : 7, at the day of, etc.; or, which the regular structure of the following clauses seems to require, the first עַד may express the object of the verb, and the second the time of the action, gaze not at the day of thy brother in the day, etc. וְהָיָה , Ges., his strange fate, calamity; others, his being treated as a stranger, his rejection. $\text{וְהָיָה לְפִיךָ$ enlarge thy mouth, as a gesture of derision, Ps. 22 : 8, 35 : 21, Isa. 57 : 4, Lam. 2 : 16, or make great thy mouth, as the organ of speech, i. e. utter proud and insolent things, comp. Ezek. 35 : 13.

13. $\text{הִנֵּה הִנֵּה עֲשֵׂה לְכַף$. This difficult form has been variously explained. Some make it 2 f. pl., the Edomites being addressed as women on account of the dastardly conduct ascribed to them, comp. Nah. 3 : 13; others 2 m. s. with וְ added for the particle of entreaty וְ , but this is never written as one word with the verb, never has ו in place of כ , and when connected with a dissuasion its proper place is between לְכַף and the verb, comp. Gen. 18 : 3, the only exception is Judg. 19 : 23; others conceive וְ to be ו , paragogic preceded by ו epenthetic, a combination which never occurs. Perhaps the simplest and best explanation, though it is not free from difficulties, is to regard וְהִנֵּה עֲשֵׂה as an unusual form for וְהִנֵּה עֲשֵׂה with 3 f. s. suffix and ו epenthetic, § 88 (3 f. pl.), put it not forth, viz., thy hand, which the prophet has in mind without distinctly naming it. Like instances of the employment of a suffix with reference to an object not mentioned in the context, but easily deducible from it, occur elsewhere, Isa. 1 : 6, 8 : 21, Ps. 18 : 15, 68 : 11. 15. Comp. 1 Sam. 24 : 11.

15. וְהָיָה הַיּוֹם introduces the reason by which the preceding exhortations are enforced, for a time of recompense is coming shortly. וְהָיָה הַיּוֹם the day of Jehovah, which belongs especially to him, inasmuch as he shall then manifest himself in his true character, particularly in his attributes of mercy and of justice. It shall be a day of gracious reward to his own people and of righteous retribution to his and their foes. In contrast with the day of Judah, ver. 12, the period of his humiliation and defeat, it is the period of Jehovah's exaltation and triumph, which his oppressed people shall share, but which shall bring ruin upon all who oppress them or oppose him. This day is further characterized by the words וְהָיָה הַיּוֹם , which are to be connected with וְהָיָה הַיּוֹם , not with וְהָיָה הַיּוֹם , to denote the universality of the judgment then to be executed. By the day of the Lord, of which the prophets speak, is manifestly meant not merely the final period of judgment to be executed simultaneously upon the whole world, from which the representation takes its form and colour; but they likewise include under it the entire series of particular and partial judgments wrought successively on each of the nations in the course of God's providence. All spring from one source, and possess the same character. They form one work of divine retribution. The punishment of Edom is not viewed correctly, if it is regarded as an isolated fact. It is really a part of God's universal work of judgment, wrought in the course of human history, and consummated at its close. This day, which expands itself thus into a protracted period, is further said to be נֶאֱרָבָה near, because punishment would swiftly follow the offence which has been described. When that time arrives, to which the prophet has in idea been transported, and out of the midst of which he has been speaking, when Jerusalem shall fall and Edom shall insult over its ruins, his own doom shall not be long delayed. That portion of 'the day of the Lord upon all the nations,' to which Edom's punishment is assigned, shall then be near, at the very doors. וְהָיָה § 35. 1. וְהָיָה, divine punishment is not an arbitrary infliction, but simply the recoil of sin, the return of one's own deeds upon himself. וְהָיָה, prep., denotes conjunction or contact, see on Gen. 2:24, 3:3. The head, as the most prominent and important member, is the representative of the person. Hence the symbolical acts of crowning, Zech. 6:11, or anointing the head, Ps. 23:5, uncovering the head, Lev. 13:45, 21:10, casting dust on the head, Josh. 7:6, laying hands on the head, Lev. 1:4. Hence, too, the head is spoken of as bearing good, Isa. 35:10, Prov. 10:6; and evil, Jer. 23:19; guilt and punishment, Josh. 2:19, Joel 3:4. 7; this last is particularly appropriate when, as in the present instance, the offence is a capital one, and is to be capitally punished.

16. This verse confirms the statement of the preceding, that in the day of the Lord upon all nations an exact retribution shall be meted out to Edom. He has been guilty of drinking, indulging in festive carousals in his insolent exultation over Judah's calamity: and he shall be punished by having to drink, in common with other nations, a draught which shall cause his destruction. The sin of Edom is not, of course, the ground of the punishment of all nations, each of which is to suffer for its own crimes; but it suggests the figure under which the doom of all is set forth. As the experience of pleasure or pain may be aptly represented by tasting or drinking what is agreeable, Ps. 36:9, or the reverse, Jer. 23:15, the endurance of divine wrath finds its appropriate emblem in a bitter and deadly draught which men are compelled to swallow, Job 21 : 20, Ps. 75 : 9, Isa. 51 : 17. 22, Jer. 25 : 15, etc. עַל־הַיַּיִן, Edom is addressed as in the preceding verses. -עַל upon, indicating the place of their revelry, which is more natural in the connection than over, indicating its subject or occasion. הַר־קֹדֶשׁ § 254. 6, § 256, my mountain of holiness, i. e. my holy mountain. רַק־עַל־הַיַּיִן continually, not of course that each nation should continue for ever drinking, for the draughts are, as is immediately added, productive of speedy extinction; but they should drink in unending series until the entire number was exhausted, comp. the phrase continual burnt-offering, Ex. 29 : 42, continual shew-bread, Ex. 25 : 30, 2 Chron. 2 : 3. Several manuscripts, and a few of the early printed editions, substitute for this word אֶרְבֵּב around or in turn, which, though preferred by some commentators, is doubtless a gloss at first inserted in the margin by way of explanation, and subsequently transferred to the text. The common text has in its favour the best and most accurate manuscripts and all the ancient versions. It is an illustration of the tendency to substitute an easier reading in place of one which involves a real or fancied difficulty. The rendering of this phrase in the Septuagint may also serve to illustrate, on the one hand, how errors may arise from the eye, transcribers or translators not seeing accurately what is before them, and on the other, how even the errors of a version may be turned to account by the critic, and afford him data from which to conclude upon the true form of the original text. For עַל־הַיַּיִן הַר־קֹדֶשׁ הַיַּיִן הַר־קֹדֶשׁ the LXX. have πίνονται πάντα τὰ ἔθνη οἶνον. It is plain that the translator, misled by the similarity of the letters, has mistaken the תַּמִּיר for הַמִּיר = הַמֵּר wine. וְעַל־הַיַּיִן, emphatic repetition of the finite form of the verb, § 282. b, drink and drink, i. e. continue drinking until the whole is exhausted. וְעַל־הַיַּיִן § 100. 2. a (2). אֶרְבֵּב § 285. 3, as those who, etc. In the exposition of this verse already given, the word drink is taken in its literal sense in the first clause, and figuratively in the second. Other constructions have been proposed, which preserve the same sense in both clauses. Thus literally in both: 1. As ye Edomites have drunk upon my holy mountain, exulting over the ruin of Jerusalem, all nations shall drink, exulting over your ruin. But all nations were not to be combined against Edom, ver. 1; the essential thing in this interpretation, that the drinking of all the nations had relation to Edom, or expressed their joy at his destruction, is not in the text, but must be supplied; and the kind of drinking intended is shown by its effect, they shall be as those who have not been, who have never existed. Or, 2. As ye Edomites have drunk upon my holy mountain, all nations shall do the same, shall inflict similar injuries and insults, shall drink there and perish in consequence, be as those who have not been. But this is inappropriate to the connection; the particle כִּי for, with which the verse begins, must be followed by a confirmation of the preceding statement that, as Edom has done it shall be done to him. The same objection may be made to those constructions in which drink is understood figuratively in both clauses, viz., 3. As ye, Edomites, have drunk the cup of divine wrath, the preterite prophetic § 262. 4, on account of my holy mountain, i. e. for your injurious treatment of God's people, all nations shall drink the same. And, 4. As ye, Jews (who are, however, nowhere addressed throughout the prophecy, and whom there is nothing in the context to suggest), have drunk of the divine wrath upon my holy mountain, all nations shall drink the same, but more copiously, and for a longer term. Thus understood, the verse would be parallel to Jer. 25 : 29, 49 : 12.

17. In contrast with the perdition of Edom and the nations, in contrast, too, with the injurious treatment that Judah shall experience at their hands, the concluding section of this prophecy dwells upon the ultimate salvation, victory, and enlargement of God's people. יִבְרָךְ § 254. 3. בְּיָמֵי is by some regarded as an abstract, escape, deliverance, by others as a collective, an escaped, or delivered band, § 198. While the nations, who are enemies of God, are doomed to extinction, God's kingdom, of which Zion is the centre and seat, shall be preserved. It must pass through sore trials, such as that referred to vs. 11-14, and others beside, but there shall still be a remnant surviving them all, comp. Joel 3 : 5. שְׁתִּיבָה may either be the subject, and there shall be holiness, viz. in mount Zion, or the predicate, and it, the body of those who have escaped, shall be holiness, or holy. This denotes not merely inward purity, but sacredness and inviolability. They belong to God, and are consequently under his special protection, comp. Joel 4 : 17, Jer. 2 : 3. $\text{בְּיָמֵי הַבְּרִית}$, the entire covenant people. This expression is not to be restricted to Judah, either here or in the next verse. $\text{בְּיָמֵי הַבְּרִית}$ § 216. 1. a, their own possessions, from which they had previously been driven, see ver. 11; or it may mean the possessions of all the nations, ver. 16. The people of God shall not only be protected from further injury from other nations, but they shall conquer and possess the world, comp. ver. 21, Dan. 7 : 27. Upon the latter view of its meaning, the idea is here expressed in the general, of which an individual application is made in the following verses appropriate to the subject of this prophecy.

18. בְּיַת יוֹסֵף , the house of Joseph properly denotes the tribes of Ephraim and Manasseh, who were descended from him, Josh. 16 : 4, but is here applied to the kingdom of the ten tribes, which was under the leadership of Ephraim, see on Ezek. 37 : 19. Although included in the house of Jacob already spoken of, they are separately mentioned to preclude all doubt as to their interest in what is here declared, and to give greater prominence to the reunion of the sundered tribes against the common enemy, comp. Isa. 11 : 13. 14. The figure employed suggests the idea of easy and complete destruction, comp. Isa. 5 : 24, 10 : 17.

19. The territorial enlargement of the covenant people in all directions. $\text{וְיִשְׁבְּנוּ} \S 275. 2. b.$ The inhabitants of the southern part of Judah, contiguous to Edom, should remove southward and occupy this vacated territory. The dwellers in the vale, the low country in the west of Judah, should spread westward over the territory of the Philistines. וְיִשְׁבְּנוּ . The subject is not expressed. Judah is evidently intended, as may readily be inferred from the previous mention of the south and the vale which were parts of that tribe. Judah shall expand not only southward and westward, but northward into the territory of Ephraim and Samaria, thus dispossessing Benjamin, who shall in turn occupy Gilead on the east of Jordan.

20. The ten tribes will thus be pushed northward into Phenicia. וְיִשְׁבְּנוּ and the captivity of this host, this captive host of the children of Israel, the ten tribes which, it is here presupposed, shall have been carried into captivity, shall possess what Canaanites do, the territory of the Canaanites or Phenicians, comp. Isa. 23 : 11, unto Zarephath. This yields a better sense than to make וְיִשְׁבְּנוּ descriptive of וְיִשְׁבְּנוּ , which must then be coördinated with the following וְיִשְׁבְּנוּ as the subject of וְיִשְׁבְּנוּ in the last clause: the captivity, etc., who are Canaanites, etc., i. e. are captives in Phenicia and reside there, and the captivity of Jerusalem, etc., shall possess, etc. וְיִשְׁבְּנוּ , some remote locality known only from this passage: it may perhaps be used in a general sense to denote a distant region. Some suppose it to be an appellative noun meaning dispersion, comp. root וְיִשְׁבְּנוּ . Jerome identifies it with the Bosphorus, which may be a mere conjecture, from the sound of the name with the preposition prefixed. The rabbins give this name to Spain, Ἐσπερία, and make וְיִשְׁבְּנוּ to be France, though this latter is manifestly the town of Sarepta. וְיִשְׁבְּנוּ , as the restored inhabitants of Jerusalem more than fill their former residence, they spread over the cities of the south vacated by the occupation of Edom, ver. 19.

21. וְיִשְׁבְּנוּ , an allusion to the judges whom God had at a former period raised up to deliver his people and punish their oppressors, comp. Judg. 2 : 16, Neh. 9 : 27. Such divinely commissioned champions should again ascend mount Zion, or perhaps, as the captivity is alluded to in the preceding verse, come up out of exile to mount Zion, see on Gen.

39 : 1. The people restored from exile should be provided with deliverers and saviours, including and culminating in the great antitype of all. $\text{נְשִׂימָה} \S 22. a (5)$, see on Judg. 15 : 20. Marg. see on Judg. 13 : 25.

NAHUM. CHAPTER I.

This prophecy is appropriately divided into three chapters, of which Chap. i. announces the divine purpose to destroy Nineveh.

Chap. ii. describes its overthrow.

Chap. iii. assigns the reason for it, and declares its inevitable certainty.

1. The opening verse contains the title to the book, the first clause of which explains its subject, and the second names its author. Like the titles prefixed to other prophecies, it forms part of the original and authentic text, and is to be regarded as written by the prophet himself. נְשִׂימָה is by some rendered utterance, prophecy, by others burden. In favour of the latter may be urged, (1) the uniform usage of the word when employed as it is here. It is not applied to prophecies indiscriminately, but only to such as are of a grievous and threatening import, which impose a burden of woe upon those who are the objects of them. (2) This is also its constant meaning, when not used in this technical sense; and it springs most directly from the radical signification of the verb נָשָׂא to lift up, to bear: to lift up the voice is a secondary application. The other meanings attributed to it by Gesenius, viz., song, in 1 Chron. 15 : 22. 27, and proverb, in Prov. 30 : 1, 31 : 1, are supposititious. See Hengstenberg's remarks on Zech. 9 : 1, in his Christology. (3) It never stands in the construct before the author of the prophecy, as it might be expected to do if it meant the utterance of, but (with the exception of Zech. 12 : 1, Mal. 1 : 1, where it is in the construct of apposition) only before its object, as here, the burden of Nineveh, the load which Nineveh must sustain. בְּנִינְוֶה , see on Obad. ver. 1. בְּנִינְוֶה has been explained as a patronymic, descended from Elkosh, but more probably denotes the place of the prophet's birth or residence, § 194. 1.

The chapter consists of two parts, viz. :

vs. 2-8, a majestic description of Jehovah in those attributes which determine him to destroy Nineveh.

vs. 9-14, the completeness of the destruction which he has resolved to effect.

2. This is not a general account of the greatness and glory of the divine nature, but the prophecy is appropriately introduced by an exhibition of the basis upon which it rests. The overthrow of Nineveh is grounded upon the immutable perfections of Jehovah, his jealousy and avenging wrath. זָּנָה from זָּנָה to be strong § 186. c (זָּנָה root) in the usage of prose differs from זָּנָה in never standing alone, but always associated with a qualifying adjective, or another divine name, or in the construct before a following noun. In poetry, on the contrary, this rule does not hold, and זָּנָה is often used without any adjunct, where the more prosaic זָּנָה might have been expected. It is in prose never joined with suffixes, and in poetry only with that of the first pers. sing. The rule of poetry might here be applied, and זָּנָה taken separately as the subject, God is jealous. But the symmetry of the verse, which consists of three clauses with Jehovah as the subject, and a double attribute in in each, the collocation of the words, § 249. 1, and the comparison of the parallel passages, Ex. 20:5, 34:14, Deut. 4:24, 5:9, 6:15, Josh. 24:19, make it preferable to translate Jehovah is a jealous and avenging God, or a jealous God and an avenger. זָּנָה § 187. 1, as in Josh. 24:19, elsewhere זָּנָה zealous, denoting the energy of the divine nature, so that his love and hatred are not inoperative, as in the case of heathen deities, but active and efficient; and still more specifically jealous, indicating the actuating motive of this divine zeal and its twofold direction, as it springs from a regard to his own honour and worship, wherein he cannot endure a rival, Ex. 34:14, or from affection for his people, whom none may harm with impunity, Joel 2:18. Injuries suffered in either of these respects his jealousy leads him to avenge. זָּנָה זָּנָה זָּנָה , the triple repetition of these words is not designed to suggest an allusion to the trinity, nor to three successive injuries inflicted by the Assyrians or to be inflicted upon them, but emphasizes and renders prominent the idea expressed, § 280. 3. b. The first clause deduces God's avenging or revenging from its primary source, the zeal or jealousy of the divine nature; the second reveals its ardour or intensity as attended by the heat of his wrath; the third indicates its objects, his enemies. זָּנָה זָּנָה זָּנָה , comp. Gen. 37:19; the divine wrath is not a transient fervour, but that settled indignation against evil and determination to punish it, which is inseparable from God's holiness. זָּנָה keeping, retaining wrath, which is easily supplied from זָּנָה in the preceding clause, though the same ellipsis occurs elsewhere, Ps. 103:9, Jer. 3:5. 12; others render watching with a view to punishment, comp. Job 10:14. The two verbs of this clause are likewise combined in Lev. 19:18.

3. This avenging jealousy is not discredited by the long delay of judgment, for it is associated, as the prophet adds, with the attribute of forbearance or long-suffering (זָּנָה § 216. 1. e, § 254. 10), which is here particularly mentioned, as it had been so remarkably exhibited in the case of Nineveh, Jon. 4 : 2. This, however, it is immediately declared, involves neither weakness nor a relaxation of his purpose to punish. עֲזָב־לֹא־יָצָא § 13. a, § 215. 1. c, Marg. see on Judg. 13 : 17 ; power, in its ordinary sense, as exercised in the production of effects ab extra, not power of endurance or self-restraint, as has needlessly been assumed with the view of finding an exact parallel to the words immediately preceding. הִנֵּנִי § 92. d, § 174. 3. הִנֵּנִי § 172. 3, the phrase is drawn from Ex. 34 : 7, Num. 14 : 18. הִנֵּנִי , emphatically prefixed to its clause, and repeated in the suffix at the end, § 281 ; the LXX connect it with what precedes, but this violates the accents. This name occurs five times in this and the foregoing verse, and ten times in the course of this chapter. The recital of the attributes of Jehovah is followed by a sublime description of his going forth in wrath to punish his enemies. This is not the description of a thunder storm or of other natural phenomena, which were conceived to indicate the presence of the deity. Nor is it a prediction that the overthrow of Nineveh would be accompanied by great catastrophes in the physical world. It is a poetical representation of the wrath and power of Jehovah, whose vengeance is here denounced. At the same time, the figures employed here and in other passages of a similar nature, have not only a symbolical fitness, but, to a certain extent, a real basis. Like phenomena have attended the manifestations of God's presence, as the cloud, tempest, and earthquake of the descent on Sinai, the drying up of the Red sea and of the Jordan, etc. ; and they shall in vastly increased potency attend his final coming to judge the world. These occasional and transient occurrences in the past and in the future are manifestations of a permanent fact, which is valid for all time, the infinite superiority of Jehovah, and his absolute control over all the works of his hand, so that such majestic displays of his omnipotence are imminent every where, and might at any time be exhibited if such were his pleasure. The prophet consequently pictures to us the God who has convulsed external nature by his presence and coming, who shall hereafter do so on a far grander scale, and who is able to do so to any extent at all times. עָנָן , storm and cloud, as natural emblems of what is dark and threatening, are fit accompaniments or symbols of the wrath of God. The cloud, which envelopes or attends the advancing deity, is beautifully likened to the dust raised by a warrior marching to battle.

4. The wrathful and avenging march of God spreads desolation and terror. Grand and conspicuous objects of nature feel the weight of his displeasure, or tremble in dread of it. רָעַד , see on Gen. 37 : 10. The vividness of the description is heightened by the use of the participle, which denotes present time, § 266. 2, and places the action, as it were, before the eyes, He is rebuking. The following future with Vav Con- versive is also to be rendered as a present, and denotes an action imme- diately consequent upon the preceding, § 265. a. The preterites that come after, announce in quick succession the further effects of this dis- play of wrath, as it seizes upon one object after another. אֲשֶׁר־עָלָה § 150. 2 (p. 182). אֲשֶׁר־עָלָה § 115. וְעָלָה. The highlands of Bashan in the east, the promontory of Carmel in the west, and the lofty range of Lebanon in the north, were the most conspicuous objects in Palestine, and distin- guished for their fertility and verdure. They instantly wither at the rebuke of God. The mention of them here affords an incidental proof that the prophet was himself in the holy land, and not, as some have imagined, in exile in Assyria.

5. אֲשֶׁר־עָלָה, prep. in its causal sense, on account of him, at him. אֲשֶׁר־עָלָה, intrans., lifted itself up, heaved, as in an earthquake. This is better than the explanation, raised itself, i. e. went up in smoke, the figure being suggested by the melting of the hills before the fire of God's wrath, or the rendering lifted up its voice, cried out in terror. אֲשֶׁר־עָלָה, from the root אָלָה to come forth, § 190. b, the productive or habitable earth, the world. It is used exclusively in poetry, and never occurs with the article, § 247. The repeated conjunction וְ—וְ, like the Latin et—et, signifies both—and. אֲשֶׁר־עָלָה § 35. 1, § 255. 1.

6. Such being the fearful consequences of his displeasure, none can resist it or stand before it. אֲשֶׁר־עָלָה poured out, like fire rained down from heaven, perhaps with allusion to the judgment sent upon Sodom. אֲשֶׁר־עָלָה, singled out as a type of what is strongest and most enduring.

7. Another feature of the divine character, which, so far from being inconsistent with the preceding, is in reality but another side of the same essential attribute of righteousness. While to his enemies this be- tokens vengeance, it assures those who trust in him of love and protec- tion. The obverse side of this divine perfection is here presented, be- cause it contains an additional ground for the judgment upon Nineveh. אֲשֶׁר־עָלָה know, may be taken in an emphatic sense, involving acquaintance, intimacy, and friendship, comp. Ps. 144 : 3, Amos 3 : 2, Mat. 7 : 23 ; or it may be restricted to its ordinary meaning of simple intelligence, it being sufficient to assert that he knows who they are who trust in him ; his blessing and favour follow from that as a matter of course.

8. אֲשֶׁר־עָלָה, the conjunction may be adversative, introducing a con- trast to what immediately precedes, and on the other hand, but ; or it may be copulative, the destruction of Nineveh being a sequence of God's regard of his injured people, and consequently, etc. Isaiah, 8 : 8, had likened the Assyrian invasion of Judah to an inundation (אֲשֶׁר־עָלָה).

Nahum declares that Nineveh herself shall be inundated; the figure is not to be restricted to an invading army, but includes the entire flood of evils by which she was to be visited and destroyed. Some commentators have supposed, that in addition to this figurative fulfilment, the words of the prophet were literally accomplished in an actual overflow of the Tigris, which, as Diodorus Siculus, ii, 27, narrates (he calls it the Euphrates), threw down twenty furlongs of the city wall, and thus gave entrance to the besiegers, in fulfilment of an ancient prophecy, that the city could never be taken till the river became its enemy. This would accord with the analogy of other prophecies, see on Isa. 40 : 3. The only doubt arises from the uncertainty as to the actual facts of the case. It has been made a question whether the narrative of Diodorus is entirely reliable; and if so, whether the overthrow which he describes was subsequent to the time of Nahum, and was the same that is here predicted. נִזְרָה might agree with Jehovah passing with a flood, but is more naturally connected with נִזְרָה with an overrunning flood, i. e. passing its bounds. נִזְרָה , the suffix refers not to נִזְרָה , he will cause destruction in its place, i. e. in the place allotted to it, but to Nineveh, 1 : 1, which is prominent in the prophet's mind as the theme of his discourse. This is an additional proof that the title forms an original and integral part of the text of the prophecy, since otherwise the subject would be unexplained, and the reader left in doubt until 2 : 9. Interpreters have needlessly perplexed themselves about the form of expression here employed, as though the place of the city, or the soil on which it stood, was to be an object of destruction distinct from the city itself. If Nineveh were destroyed, of course its site would be made a desolation. It is unnecessary, therefore, to assume that Nineveh is personified as a queen, comp. Isa. 47 : 1, etc., and that her place or residence is the city itself. This passage affords an illustration of the manner in which various readings and wrong interpretations have arisen from a false view of the parallelism of clauses. Of the old Greek versions, Symmachus alone gives נִזְרָה its proper rendering; the rest, assuming that it should correspond in sense exactly with נִזְרָה of the following clause, translate, of those rising up against him, as if the reading were, or were equivalent to, נִזְרָה . נִזְרָה darkness, a frequent figure of calamity; it may either be the subject of the verb, or stand absolutely after it to denote the place, into darkness, or instrument, with darkness, comp. on Isa. 41 : 2.

9. The second division of the chapter opens with a direct address to the Assyrians. נִזְרָה § 88 (2 and 3 m.) what will ye devise in reference to Jehovah? his nature and purpose being what has just been described, how do you propose to resist him, or avert the destruction which he is resolved to bring upon you? Or the reference may be to offensive rather than defensive measures, as לְעַלְמָהּ , ver. 11; what are ye devising in reference to, against Jehovah? i. e. what new assault are you meditating upon his people? You shall fail in your design; you shall not be allowed to afflict them again. Either of these explanations is better than to suppose Judah addressed, what think ye in reference to Jehovah? what do you imagine that he will do? לֹא־תִשָּׁבַע affliction shall not arise twice; the allusion to ver. 7, where this same word is used of the distress endured by God's people, determines this clause to mean, that Judah has suffered the oppression of Nineveh, but shall never be exposed to it again, see also 2 : 1. Another interpretation is, that God would make such thorough work in his destruction of Nineveh, that he would have no occasion to afflict it a second time, comp. 1 Sam. 26 : 8, 2 Sam. 20 : 10; another still, the adversary (הַרְגָּץ , as in 1 Sam. 1 : 6), i. e. Nineveh shall not arise twice, shall not recover from this as from its previous overthrow by Arbaces, comp. Jer. 51 : 64.

10. וְלֹא־יִשָּׁבַע confirms the statement just made, that the Assyrians shall never afflict Judah again; the reason is, for they shall have been themselves devoured, consumed as stubble, a figure of easy, speedy, and total destruction. וְלֹא־יִשָּׁבַע , pret. relative to the future וְלֹא־יִשָּׁבַע § 262. 1. Its subject is qualified by the preceding participial clause, which has been variously understood according to the signification attributed to the figures employed, and the sense put upon some of the terms. The simplest view appears to be that which finds in these words the circumstances or manner of their destruction. Entangled unto the extent of thorns, to the degree that thorns are, like thorns, comp. 1 Chron. 4 : 27, i. e. joined together in an inextricable mass, and thus affording the readier and surer fuel to the flames, and drunken as by their drink (וְלֹא־יִשָּׁבַע , absolutely to denote the manner or instrument, § 274. 2. e), or, according to their drink, with no other limitation than the amount of wine they have, that is to say, either in a state of literal intoxication, as Diodorus Siculus records, or by a figure for the helplessness of drunken men, who are unable to resist or flee. Others resolve the participles into verbal forms, to which they are often equivalent. Thus, if being interwoven be taken to mean, because they are interwoven, etc., this clause will suggest the reason why the Assyrians are to be destroyed, thorns, from their noxious character, being an emblem of wicked men, Ezek. 2 : 6, Mic. 7 : 4, and their drunkenness being singled out as an evidence of their luxurious, abandoned lives. On the assumption that וְלֹא־יִשָּׁבַע has the sense of וְלֹא־יִשָּׁבַע stupefied (the senses entangled and confused) by flesh-pots might also be referred to luxurious living. Or, if it mean, although they are inter- woven, etc., it will represent their real or fancied security, which nevertheless shall not protect them; though their phalanx presents an impenetrable front, as firmly knit together as thorns, and though they have all the confident security of merry drinkers, they are yet doomed to destruction. Or the participles may be connected not directly with the Assyrians but with נִרְיָס , and the clause describe the futility of resistance to their divinely ordained fate: even to, though they be like thorns woven together, which defy all attempts to handle them, and drenched as their drink, wet as wine itself, so that fire cannot burn them, they shall nevertheless be consumed, etc. : מִלֵּב , not an adj. qualifying מִלֵּב full, mature and therefore burning more readily, but an adverb, § 235. 3 (3), qualifying מִלֵּב , or more probably מִלֵּב .

11. This is confirmed by the example of Sennacherib, whose doom foreshadowed that of Nineveh itself. מִלֵּב , the suf. is by the majority of interpreters referred to Nineveh, out of thee proceeded or went forth. In the context, however, vs. 12. 13, 2:1, the 2 f. s. suffix (except in מִלֵּב 2:2) refers to Judah personified as a virgin, Isa. 37:22; in addressing Assyria the 2 masc. is used for the sake of distinction either in the sing., ver. 14, or plur., ver. 9. If this analogy be observed here, Judah must be intended, from thee has gone out, or gone away, retreated. מִלֵּב , Sennacherib, though it might also be taken collectively of all the Assyrian monarchs who had oppressed or would oppress the people of God, in which case מִלֵּב , like מִלֵּב , ver. 10, must be under the influence of the preceding future. : מִלֵּב § 195. 3, worthlessness, or as the negation of what is morally good implies that which is morally bad, wickedness, here used in its abstract sense; among the later Jews it came to be a name of Satan as the impersonation of wickedness, 2 Cor. 6:15.

12. The completeness of his overthrow in the height of his power, coupled with the assurance that Assyria should never be used to afflict Judah again. מִלֵּב , the conditional clause, extends through מִלֵּב , the apodosis beginning with מִלֵּב § 287. 2; if they, the Assyrian army under Sennacherib, were complete in full strength and vigour, and so numerous, as they are well known to have been, and were so mown down, § 140. 2, the figure perhaps suggested by the stubble, ver. 10 (others render shorn, comp. Isa. 7:20), and he, Sennacherib, or the singular may have a collective or distributive force, the whole, or every one of them, passed away, perished, § 275. 6, then, by this be assured, I have afflicted thee, O Judah, and I will not afflict thee again. As certainly as Sennacherib and his host were overthrown, so certainly shall Assyria be humbled and prevented from trampling upon Judah again. Or the apodosis might begin with $\text{יְשֵׁנָהּ יְשֵׁנָהּ}$ if, even if, although, as Isa. 1 : 18, they were complete, etc., yet so, in the manner well known, or thus, in this condition of completeness and numbers, were they mown down, etc. Those who find no special allusion to the fall of Sennacherib, of which the terms are so aptly descriptive, understand this verse also collectively, and refer it to the future complete destruction of the Assyrian power, by placing these preterites, as well as that of ver. 11, under the influence of the preceding future. The suf. in יְשֵׁנָהּ is by some commentators referred to Nineveh, and the sense supposed to be, that such a blow should be struck as would not require to be repeated; see on ver. 9.

13. הָיָה , what God was about to do now, contrasted with what he had already done to the host of Sennacherib. יְשֵׁנָהּ § 220. 1. b (3 pers.) his yoke, that of the Assyrians represented by Sennacherib; the reference of the suffix is to בְּיָדָהּ , ver. 11.

14. יְשֵׁנָהּ , the oppressor spoken of in the immediately preceding verses is now addressed, § 279; the prep. indicates the subject of the command, concerning thee, see on Gen. 41 : 15, though it sometimes also denotes the person commanded, see on Gen. 2 : 16. יְשֵׁנָהּ , prep. in a partitive sense. The race shall be extinguished, not that of the monarch alone, but of the empire; the Assyrian name shall cease to be perpetuated. יְשֵׁנָהּ , the idols cannot even protect themselves, much less their worshippers. The Medes, who overturned Nineveh, and the Persians, with whom they were associated in the capture of Babylon, were the great iconoclasts of antiquity, comp. Isa. 21 : 9. יְשֵׁנָהּ § 65. b, I will make thy grave, i. e. cause thee to be slain and buried. Or יְשֵׁנָהּ may, as it often does, govern a double object, I will make it, viz., the house of thy gods, thy grave; this had a general fulfilment in a figurative sense, in so far as the idols of the Assyrians proved their ruin instead of their salvation, and a specific literal fulfilment in the murder of Sennacherib in an idol temple, Isa. 37 : 38. This event occurred several years after his invasion of Judah, and it is in this interval that the prophecy of Nahum was most probably uttered. Such a combination of the figurative and the literal is not unusual in the prophets, see on ver. 8. יְשֵׁנָהּ § 262. 2, thou hast been and art light, in a moral sense, equivalent to the sentence passed upon the Babylonish monarch, Dan. 5 : 27, ‘weighed in the balances and found wanting.’ Others render, thou art become insignificant, thy power is broken; but this could not be a reason for the divine order just recited, except upon the forced assumption that ‘I will make thy grave’ means, thou shalt receive a dishonoured in place of a regal funeral.

CHAPTER II.

The divine purpose to destroy Nineveh has been announced, and traced to its source in God's immutable attributes. The actual execution of this purpose is now exhibited to view. This chapter, besides an introduction, ver. 1, announcing the fall of the great oppressor, and a conclusion, ver. 14, in which Jehovah pledges himself to effect it, is mainly devoted, vs. 2-13, to a vivid description of the overthrow of Nineveh. This may be further subdivided into,

(1) the preliminaries of the siege, by which the wrongs of Israel shall be avenged, vs. 2. 3.

(2) the assault, vs. 4. 5.

(3) the ineffectual defence, vs. 6. 7.

(4) the sack of the city, vs. 8-11.

(5) the resulting desolation, vs. 12. 13.

1. A messenger is seen coming in the distance with the tidings of Nineveh's fall. That this is the subject of his message rather than the disaster to Sennacherib, is evident, since it is the former and not the latter which is detailed in the following chapter, and is the principal theme of the prophecy, and Judah was once successfully invaded by Assyria after the time of Sennacherib, when king Manasseh was taken prisoner, 2 Chr. 33 : 11. This verse, which forms a kind of intermediate link between the first and second chapters, is attached to the former in the English and other modern versions, as a sequel to the divine purpose therein declared, but to the latter in the Hebrew and in the ancient versions, as preliminary to the more detailed account of its execution. The existing division of the sacred text into chapters and verses, it should be remembered, is altogether of recent origin, and is purely conventional. It is in the majority of instances, though not always, skillfully made ; yet, however valuable for purposes of convenience, it is never to be regarded as authoritative, and should not be suffered to destroy the sense of the unity of that which, as originally prepared, formed one continuous composition, with no breaks or pauses other than the subject itself suggests. וְהִנֵּה lo! as if pointing to an object of sight, and one that was unexpected and surprising. בְּהַרְהוֹרָה, the art. may be generic, § 245. 5, or it may specify the mountains in the direction of Nineveh, to which all eyes were directed. Mountains are spoken of, not as points from which a proclamation could be more extensively heard, as Isa. 40 : 9, but where a coming messenger could first be seen. בְּרַגְלֵי, the feet are particularly mentioned, as the organs used in running, comp. Acts 5 : 9. לְבַרְבָּרִים , with the single exception of 1 Sam. 4 : 17, used only of a bearer of good tidings, see on Isa. 40 : 9. לְבַרְבָּרִים § 141. 1 (p. 174), § 271. 3. The meaning of this exhortation, which may be uttered either by the messenger or by the prophet, is not that the annual gatherings at Jerusalem, and the attendance upon the services of the temple, which had been interrupted by invasion or the fear of it, might now with safety be resumed. But this distinguished benefit on the part of God demands a new and strenuous devotion to his service, and calls especially for a celebration of the joyful festivals commemorative of deliverances which were themselves types for all future time (see on Ex. 20 : 8), and have now had a fresh fulfilment, and for a performance of the vows made in entreating relief from the recent oppression. הָאָרֶץ § 275. 2. b. $\text{הָאָרֶץ$ § 269. a. לְבַרְבָּרִים , marg. as 1 : 3. הָאָרֶץ in thee, the land of Judah, for which, after the verb 'pass,' our idiom substitutes through thee. לְבַרְבָּרִים , abstract for concrete, wicked, here used as a significant name of the monarch or empire of Assyria, comp. the enigmatical designations Jareb, Hos. 5 : 13, 10 : 6; Sheshach, Jer. 25 : 26, 51 : 41; Merathaim and Pekod, Jer. 50 : 21; Rahab, Isa. 51 : 9. This generic name shows that the person or object so designated is not viewed simply as an individual, but as the representative of a class or the embodiment of a principle. He is the type of the wicked foes of God and his people. It is in this character that he is cut off, and for reasons grounded in those attributes of God which determine him to destroy all such. The fall of Nineveh is, therefore, a typical fact. The principles of the divine administration, which it illustrates, as these are exhibited in this prophecy, secure the fall of every other power of wickedness, the complete and final deliverance of the true people of God, and the establishment of the reign of righteousness and peace. Nahum's prophecy, and that of Obadiah (see particularly ver. 21), may thus be said to be negatively predictive of the kingdom of the Messiah. The opening words of this verse are found again in Isa. 52 : 7, where they are used generically of the good things in store for the people of God, of which the deliverance from the Babylonish exile was a type and pledge. The apostle Paul, Rom. 10 : 15, repeats them in application to the glad tidings of the gospel. This triple repetition of the same language is not to be regarded as a casual and undesigned coincidence, nor an accommodation of what was originally spoken in reference to one subject to another wholly different. But the identity in expression directs attention to a real identity in subject. The destruction of Nineveh and the return from Babylon foreshadowed the salvation from sin, which is proclaimed in the gospel. לְבַרְבָּרִים § 220. 1. b (3 pers.), not from הָאָרֶץ as the LXX seem to have explained it.

2. The advance of the invader, in view of which Nineveh is admonished to take every possible precaution. הִצִּיז , used technically of military expeditions, 1 Kin. 15:17, 20:22. רִצְצָה may be a noun, as in Prov. 25:18, hammer, maul, but is more probably a part. dispersing, or, as others render, dashing in pieces. In either case it denotes the assailant of Nineveh, who is represented as already on his march against it, not the Messiah, though a name somewhat similar is applied to him Mic. 2:13, still less the Assyrians themselves, in their invasion of Judah. הִצִּיז־לְפָנַי , not against thy face, the hardness of which, Ezek. 3:7-9, i. e. thy obstinacy this hammer shall break, but before, in front of thee, see on Ex. 20:3, with the implication of hostile intent. The 2 f. s. suf. refers not to Judah, as in the preceding verses, as though this verse were designed to encourage Jerusalem to hold out against Sennacherib, but to Nineveh. הִצִּיז־לְפָנַי according to the accents belongs to the first clause of the verse; the abs. inf. may, therefore, be modified by the preceding verb, § 268. 1, he has besieged a siege, הִצִּיז־לְפָנַי as הִצִּיז־לְפָנַי , 3:14, or the fortress; the majority of interpreters, however, regard it as a substitute for the imperative, § 268. 2, and addressed to Nineveh. וְהִצִּיז־לְפָנַי , this and the following verbs may either be imperatives, or abs. infin. used for the imper. If the former, as is more probable, the masc. is employed because the admonition is directed to the king or people, not to the city as such, as in וְהִצִּיז־לְפָנַי . A careful watch must be maintained upon the ways leading to the city, to guard against surprise. וְהִצִּיז־לְפָנַי strengthen, i. e. by means of the girdle, as Isa. 22:21. This is equivalent to a command to address himself or themselves to energetic action, inasmuch as girding up the loose oriental dress was a necessary preparation for activity.

3. וְהִצִּיז־לְפָנַי introduces the reason why such formidable foes were gathering against Nineveh. It was because Jehovah had returned to his long-forsaken people, and was taking their part against their oppressors. וְהִצִּיז־לְפָנַי , from the root הִצִּיז to be exalted, § 193, denotes exaltation, and may be applied either to an inward feeling, pride, or to that which produces it, that of which one is proud, or by which he is exalted, excellency, distinction; 'the excellency of Jacob' would then mean the advantages of which this people was possessed, and which formed their chief boast and glory, Ps. 47:5, Am. 6:8; in Am. 8:7 this expression is applied to God himself. וְהִצִּיז־לְפָנַי , pret. or part. The transitive sense assigned to the Kal of this verb in this and some other places by lexicons and commentators is entirely supposititious, see Hengstenberg Beiträge, II. p. 104. It accordingly does not mean, the Lord has turned away, whether the excellency of Jacob, i. e. removed his privileges and advantages, or the pride of Jacob, if const. before the subject, § 254. 8, sufficiently humbled his arrogance, the pride which he has himself indulged, if const. before the object, § 254. 9, is humbling the pride from which Jacob has suffered, viz., that of Assyria. Nor, for the same reason, does it mean, Jehovah is restoring the excellency of Jacob, bringing back to him his ancient privileges and prerogatives. The only meaning which the words can have, is, Jehovah has returned or is returning to § 271. 2 the exaltation or excellency of Jacob, i. e. to Jacob himself, who is exalted or possessed of eminent advantages, § 254. 2. a, comp. Ps. 5 : 8, 'the multitude of thy mercy' for 'thy abundant mercy.' מְלֶכֶת־מַלְכוּת, not the kingdom of the ten tribes in distinction from Judah, who is then supposed to be denoted by Jacob, as though the meaning were, God is returning in love and grace to both branches of the covenant people, to one as well as to the other. This interpretation finds no warrant in the contrast between Jacob and Joseph, Obad. ver. 18, as was shown in the exposition of that verse. Jacob was the ordinary name of the patriarch. Israel was imposed by God himself, and was significant of his relation to God and his prevalence with him. Transferred to his descendants, the former describes them simply on their natural side as a nation sprung from a common ancestor, the latter describes them as in covenant with God, and the objects of his favour and love, see on Isa. 40 : 27, 41 : 8. Jehovah is returning to the exaltation of Jacob as to the exaltation of Israel, i. e. He will deal with Jacob in the manner implied in the name of Israel, his own chosen, peculiar people. יָשׁוּב explains the reason; God returned to Jacob because his oppressors had reduced him to such a miserable condition, comp. Judg. 2 : 18. מְלֶכֶת־מַלְכוּת, indefinite. מְלֶכֶת־מַלְכוּת, suf. here and in מְלֶכֶת־מַלְכוּת refers not to the Ninevites, but to Israel; their vine-branches, not in a literal sense simply, of the desolation of their vineyards, but figuratively; Israel is a vine which has not merely been emptied or robbed of its clusters, but mutilated and broken. The specific explanation of vine-branches as towns and cities, or as individual Israelites, is at fault only in making too definite and precise what might better have a more general sense.

4. The attacking army and its fierce onset are described vs. 4. 5. מְלֶכֶת § 216. 1. a (3). מְלֶכֶת־מַלְכוּת § 220. 2. c (3 pers.), suf. refers to מְלֶכֶת, ver. 2; some connect it with מְלֶכֶת, ver. 3, comp. Isa. 13 : 3, Joel 2 : 11. מְלֶכֶת־מַלְכוּת § 93. a, either because covered with leather or copper, or stained with blood. מְלֶכֶת־מַלְכוּת־שֶׁשׁ־בָּרְזֶל with fire, flashing of irons, perhaps scythes with which chariots were armed, although it has been remarked that none have been found on the monuments of Nineveh. Or it may denote their polished armature or ornaments, or the weapons of those whom they carried. מְלֶכֶת־מַלְכוּת § 102. 3 suf. not the object referring to מְלֶכֶת, but the subject, and refers to the assailant of Nineveh; his preparing, i. e. arranging them for battle. עֲצֵי צִדְדִּים cypresses, i. e. spears made of this wood.

5. $\text{אֲרָצוֹת פְּתוּחוֹת}$ fields, the open country outside of the city walls. דְּרָגוֹת רָחֵב the broad ways or spacious areas in the suburbs. לְמַעַן יִפְּצוּ , the suf. has been referred to וְהָרְחִיבוּ and to וְיִפְּצוּ ; but the simplest reference is to וְיִפְּצוּ , which is masc., but as it describes inanimate objects, the fem. suf. may have the sense of a neuter, § 196. a.

6. The measures of defence. וְיִפְּצוּ , the subject is the king or people of Nineveh, comp. ver. 2. וְיִפְּצוּ , some understand satraps commanding in the different provinces, who are summoned to the relief of the capital, but stumble in their march to it, being cut off by the invading army; others, with greater probability, nobles within the walls, who stumble in their eager haste or from trepidation. $\text{מִן־הַתְּיָבִיבִים}$, K'thibh § 46, § 220. 2. a, for which the K'ri substitutes the sing. $\text{מִן־הַתְּיָבִיבִים}$. וְיִפְּצוּ suf. refers to Nineveh, see on 1 : 8. וְיִפְּצוּ , prop. the covering, though its precise sense as a military term is uncertain. Some understand by it the testudo or vinea, under shelter of which the besiegers approached to undermine or batter down the city wall. Others think it to be a structure erected for the protection of the besieged, or a body of men charged with the defence of the wall. Jerome renders it umbraculum, a roof by which the besieged were sheltered from the rays of the sun as well as from the darts of the enemy. The tense of the verb וְיִפְּצוּ , which is not a preterite but a secondary future, § 265, appears to favour the opinion, that this like the preceding belongs to the measures of the besieged, not of the besiegers. But while they are thus actively engaged, the city, ver. 7, has already been attacked and carried in a different and unexpected quarter. The verbs of the next verse are accordingly preterites, while those in this are futures.

7. וְיִפְּצוּ . In addition to the Tigris and a small stream which still flows through the ruins, there were artificial moats and channels probably surrounding the city, some indications of which yet exist. The gates opening upon these may have been left open, as in the case of Babylon, Isa. 45 : 1, through negligence or treachery, or else they were forced. This is simpler than to explain the gates of the rivers to mean breaches in the walls made by an inundation of the river, see on 1 : 8, or the gates of the city through which the streams of its population or of invaders pour, or sluices by which the city might be flooded, and even the palace submerged (וְיִפְּצוּ) as a measure of defence, or in a metaphorical sense, sluices through which the streams of calamity were let in upon the devoted city. וְיִפְּצוּ melting or dissolved with terror, the palace being put for its occupants, the royal household.

8. Then follows the sack of the captured city; the captivity, ver. 8, or flight of its inhabitants, ver. 9, the plunder of its treasures, ver. 10, the terror which possesses all hearts, ver. 11. בַּחֲרָבָה , this word has greatly embarrassed interpreters, and has been very variously explained. Gesenius derives it from בָּחַץ , and connects it with the last clause of the preceding verse literally understood, the palace is dissolved and liquefied, the unburnt bricks, of which it was built, crumbling by the action of the water. Others regard it as a proper name, whether of the queen of Nineveh or symbolically applied to Nineveh itself. It is best explained as the Hoph. of בָּחַץ taken impersonally, § 243. 3, it is fixed, determined, either it was so decreed of God or it is now decided by the event. נִגְזָלָה , not is led away captive, which is the sense of the Hoph., but is uncovered, stripped of her clothing, comp. 3 : 5, Isa. 47 : 2. Nineveh is personified as a queen or lady of rank, fallen into the hands of her enemies and subjected to every indignity, amidst the impotent lamentations of her maids, which belong to the figure, and need not be too definitely explained, see on ver. 3, either as the women of the city or its dependent towns, comp. Num. 21 : 25. 32. The tense of the verb should be preserved; the prophet describes the scene as if it had been transacted before his eyes. $\text{וְהָיָה כְּעֵתֵינוּ}$ § 60. 3. l (2), § 112. 2. $\text{וְהָיָה כְּעֵתֵינוּ}$ § 211. a. $\text{וְהָיָה כְּעֵתֵינוּ}$, not leading but moaning: the part. expresses a time contemporaneous with the preceding preterites, § 266. 3. $\text{וְהָיָה כְּעֵתֵינוּ}$, here referred to not merely as timid and helpless, but chiefly on account of their mournful note.

9. In the abundance of its wealth and the multitude of its inhabitants, Nineveh is compared to a pool of water, comp. Rev. 17 : 15, swelled by an influx from all quarters, which yet, when its banks are pierced or broken, speedily empties itself, and the outflow cannot be checked. $\text{וְהָיָה כְּעֵתֵינוּ}$ § 220. 1. a, § 35. 1, from her days, or the relative may be supplied, § 255. 2, from the days that she has been, i. e. from her origin, during the entire period of her existence. $\text{וְהָיָה כְּעֵתֵינוּ}$ refers to $\text{וְהָיָה כְּעֵתֵינוּ}$, or as the figurative are immediately exchanged for literal terms, to what these denote, the inhabitants laden with their wealth. $\text{וְהָיָה כְּעֵתֵינוּ}$, emphatic pausal form § 112. 4, not the language of the enemy, but of those who would reassure the frightened fugitives and rally them again for the defence of the city. $\text{וְהָיָה כְּעֵתֵינוּ}$ turning, either intrans., pausing in his own flight, or trans., arresting the flight of others.

10. While upon one side is heard the ineffectual cry, Stop! stop! upon the other resound the loud cries of the victors inciting each other to the spoil. $\text{וְהָיָה כְּעֵתֵינוּ}$, supply the substantive verb, there is an abundance, or it may be in apposition to the preceding noun, to the store, the abundance of every precious article: the absence of the art. favours the former construction. לְּ, the prep. indicates the material from which the abundance is derived, or of which it consists. Comp. עָנָה 3:8.

11. The absence of verbs converts the greater portion of this verse into a series of exclamations, and the energy of the original will be marred if its form is changed in this particular by the supply even of the substantive verb. יִצְרָה וַיִּבְרָא וַיִּבְרָא, the paronomasia, see on Gen. 1:2 הָאֵלֵּי וְהָאֵלֵּי, here extended to three terms of increasing length from the same or kindred roots, may be feebly represented by vacancy and vacuity and evacuated! מִן הַלֵּב § 140. 2, not pret. but part., and melted heart! Like mental and physical effects are often ascribed to terror, e. g. Josh. 2:11, 7:5, Isa. 13:7. 8, Ezek. 21:12. : אֲדָמָה, the old interpretation, blackness, as of a pot, אֲדָמָה, is quite superseded by the derivation from אָדָה § 187. 2. c, in the sense of a glow, flush. It may then be rendered gather a glow, are flushed with excitement and agitation; or gather in, withdraw from the surface, lose colour, become pale, comp. Joel 2:10, 4:15.

12. הֲלֵּי, the question implies that it no longer exists. The figurative terms, by which its former power and conquests are described, imply the justice of the retribution which has at length overtaken it. The robber city has itself been robbed. Nineveh, enriched with the spoils of other nations, is compared to a den of lions filled with slaughtered prey. This image is sufficiently distinct, without insisting upon a specific meaning for each of the details, as though the lion denoted the king, the lioness the queen, and the young lions the nobles, citizens or soldiers, see on 2:3. 8.

13. Some supply אֲדָמָה, or אֲדָמָה-אֲדָמָה from ver. 12, but this is unnecessary. : אֲדָמָה ... אֲדָמָה § 280. a.

14. The declaration of God, that he would destroy Nineveh, couched partly in literal and partly in figurative terms. אֲדָמָה, commonly rendered against thee, as if it were אֲדָמָה; but the prep. properly indicates motion to, towards; lo! I unto thee, i. e. am coming to thee. That this is with a hostile intent is suggested not by the prep. but by the context; so also 3:5, Jer. 50:31; and hence the same phrase is used, where the design of the coming is gracious, Ezek. 36:9. Comp. 'I'll to Fife' for I will go to Fife. אֲדָמָה אֲדָמָה § 253. b. The entire universe is marshalled under God's command, terrestrial persons and things and celestial beings and bodies constitute his hosts, see on Gen. 2:1. This title is particularly appropriate to Jehovah as the God of battles and the author of Nineveh's destruction. אֲדָמָה, the meaning is not that this should be done in a conspicuous manner, in a fire emitting a great smoke, and consequently visible at a great distance, but so that they should be converted into smoke, Ps. 37:20, and vanish away. מִן־הַיָּמִין § 279. מִן־הַיָּמִין thy prey, treasures accumulated by extortion and conquest, or as a noun of action, thy preying, plundering, thou shalt not be allowed to prey upon the rest of the world any longer. מִן־הַיָּמִין § 220. 2. c, bearers of royal edicts, Esth. 3:13, or sent to denounce war and demand the submission of the nations, Isa. 37:9. The paraphrase of vs. 9–14, given by Josephus, Ant. IX. 11. 2, is interesting, as showing that he followed the Hebrew text rather than that of the Septuagint.

CHAPTER III.

This is not a second overthrow, distinct from that already described, as those have imagined who refer ch. ii. to the taking of Nineveh by Arbaces, and ch. iii. to its final capture by Cyaxares. But the prophet recurs to the same subject for the sake of exhibiting more distinctly the grounds of it, fortifying it by a striking example, and declaring its un-failing certainty.

1. vs. 1–7, the crimes of Nineveh and their penalty.

2. vs. 8–11, the fate of No-Ammon shall be hers.

3. vs. 12–19, notwithstanding her strength and resources, her destruction shall be sudden, complete, and unlamented.

1. The sin of Nineveh and its punishment are first stated in literal, vs. 1–3, and then in figurative terms, vs. 4–6. In her lust of dominion she scrupled not to extend it by every measure of fraud and violence. וְיָדָע is denunciatory, Wo! כַּדְּמָיִם , plur. denotes drops of blood; hence blood as shed, and the guilt of shedding it. שֹׁמֵרֵי־חַיִּים , governed by מִן־הַיָּמִין , the adj. taking a direct object like the verb from which it is derived, § 271. 1, see on Gen. 42:18; though others read, contrary to the accents, all of it is deceit, and full of violence. שֹׁמֵרֵי־חַיִּים might be transitive, it will not let go the prey, restore it to its rightful owners; some suppose a particular allusion to Israel retained in captivity. But as חַיִּים is fem., and this form is mostly intrans., it is probably so here, the prey departeth not, or שֹׁמֵרֵי־חַיִּים as a noun of action, 2:14, plundering will not cease.

2. This and the following verse describe not the bustle of the great city and the crimes perpetrated there, but the onset of the attacking army and the resulting slaughter. The absence of verbs converts them into a series of abrupt exclamations, comp. 2:11. שֹׁמֵרֵי־חַיִּים the sound of, equivalent to Hark! see on Isa. 40:3. Some supply this throughout the verse, and even in the first clause of ver. 3, but without necessity. עָלָה , collective.

3. הִרְמָה , the object of this participle is not the following nouns, as in the common version; nor is it to be rendered lifting up himself, i. e. mounting his horse, but causing his horse to rear or spring, making him bound along at a high speed. עָלָה , the number of the slain in the city is so great as to impede the advance of the assailants. The K'thibh is עָלָה , the future of this verb being supplied from the Niphal, since the Kal future is not in use, § 80. a (3).

4. Nineveh is figuratively charged with whoredom, which does not here denote idolatry and desertion of the true God, as when it is imputed to Israel, Hos. 1:2, but is tantamount to the deceit, violence and blood already charged upon her in literal terms, ver. 1. It refers, as in Isa. 23:17, Rev. 17:2, to promiscuous intercourse with other nations, whether in the way of trade or political alliances, which was of itself abhorrent to Jewish laws and usages, but became more offensive from the selfish ends pursued by means of these entanglements and artful solicitations. Under the pretence of love and friendship she was covertly but incessantly aiming at her own aggrandizement and the extension of her empire. To enhance her power and complete her conquests, this harlot relied not only upon her personal charms, the magnificence and attractiveness of Nineveh in the eyes of surrounding nations, but also upon sorceries. The allusion (comp. a like combination of עָלָה and עָלָה , 2 Kin. 9:22) is to the use of philters, love-potions, and magic incantations, to secure the attachment of lovers and gain control over them. The crafty, designing schemes of Nineveh, and the supernatural aid invoked in giving them effect, are doubtless intended by these occult arts. בְּיָמֶיךָ , prep. causal, as in Isa. 53:5; the connection is not with what precedes but with the following verse, on account of the multitude, etc. lo! I am coming to thee. מָכְרָה selling, reducing to bondage to herself, as when God is said to sell his people into the hand of their enemies, Judg. 2:14, possibly with the accessory idea of a literal sale of captives into slavery to her own citizens or to other nations, comp. Joel 4:6. Some have, from an Arabic analogy, given to this word in this place the sense of entangling, ensnaring; but its constant meaning in Hebrew renders this alike unnecessary and inadmissible.

5. This shameless conduct shall be punished by a shameful exposure. She shall be stripped of her ornamental attire, and converted into a loathsome and revolting spectacle, to shock and disgust all beholders. From this and like figurative passages, e. g. Hos. 2:5, 12, Isa. 47:3, Jer. 13:26, Ezek. 16:37-39, it cannot be inferred that harlots were actually punished in this way. $\text{קָרְבָּן} \text{—} \text{לְפָנֶיךָ}$, as 2 : 2 ; she shall be thus ignominiously treated to her face, seeing it, but unable to prevent it. $\text{וְיִשְׂרָאֵל} \text{—} \text{לְפָנֶיךָ}$ § 112. 3, § 114.

6. $\text{עֲבֹרֹת} \text{—} \text{לְפָנֶיךָ}$ abominable things, not idols, to which this term is frequently applied, as if the meaning were, she shall be buried beneath the objects of her idolatrous worship, comp. 1 : 14, but whatever is filthy and offensive.

7. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל agrees in form with לְפָנֶיךָ § 277. a, or sing. with a distributive sense § 275. 6. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל , the language of the spectators extends to וְיִשְׂרָאֵל . וְיִשְׂרָאֵל , Jehovah is again the speaker, or rather continues to be the speaker from ver. 5 to the close of this verse, for it is he who declares what all who behold her will say. The question implies that there would be none to pity or console her.

8. That the overthrow of so magnificent and powerful a city is not to be esteemed incredible, is shown by the fate of No-Ammon, or the Egyptian Thebes, one of the most famous cities of antiquity for its strength and resources. With our imperfect and fragmentary knowledge of its history, it is difficult to determine to what event the prophet here alludes. It is not improbable that Thebes may have been reduced by Sargon, king of Assyria, see Isa. ch. 20, though this is nowhere explicitly recorded. Another opinion is, that a capture by some other power, African or Asiatic, is intended ; and another, the least probable of any, that the event referred to had not yet taken place, but that its capture by Cambyses is here predicted. $\text{וְיִשְׂרָאֵל} \text{—} \text{לְפָנֶיךָ}$ § 147. 4, § 260. a, art thou better, § 263. 2, not in moral character, but in condition, more impregnable or better defended, or shalt thou be better in the destiny that awaits thee. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל , not as in Jer. 52 : 15, equivalent to וְיִשְׂרָאֵל multitude, but as in Jer. 46 : 25, the name of an Egyptian deity ; whence וְיִשְׂרָאֵל $\text{—} \text{לְפָנֶיךָ}$, in the LXX. μερίδα Ἀμμών, part or portion of Ammon, must have been a city sacred to that god. It is more exactly identified by the LXX., Ezek. 30 : 14. 16, as Διόσπολις, not of course the place of inferior magnitude so called in Lower Egypt, which would not have afforded a fitting parallel to Nineveh, but that which by way of distinction received the name of Diospolis the Great, or Thebes, the magnificent metropolis of Upper Egypt, whose splendour and greatness are not only attested by ancient writers, but by the magnitude of its ruins. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל , the Egyptian word for river, appropriated to the Nile and the artificial canals branching from it, constructed for irrigation or defence. $\text{וְיִשְׂרָאֵל} \text{—} \text{לְפָנֶיךָ}$, the rendering whose wall was a rampart to sea from sea, Mic. 7 : 12, i. e. extending to the Red sea from the Mediterranean, violates the accents ; which was a fortress of the sea, i. e. a place fortified by the sea, gives an unproved meaning to לִיָּהּ; the suf. is to be supplied to לִיָּהּ from : אֲנִיָּהּ in the next clause, comp. § 247. b, whose rampart was a sea, i. e. the broad Nile, as in Isa. 19 : 5 ; the same term is applied to the Euphrates, Isa. 21 : 1 ; comp. the language of Isocrates respecting Egypt, in Busiris, C. 6, ἀθανάτω δὲ τείχει τῷ Νείλω τετραχισμίνην. אֲנִיָּהּ, not extending from the sea landward, nor rising out of the sea, but the prep. indicates the material, consisting of the sea ; see a like use of the prep. 2 : 10, Ps. 16 : 4.

9. This city, so strong in its natural position, was stoutly defended by numerous and powerful auxiliaries. אֲנִיָּהּ אֲנִיָּהּ אֲנִיָּהּ. These may be different tribes inhabiting Libya ; or Lubim may be the general name and Phut a subordinate division. : אֲנִיָּהּ אֲנִיָּהּ § 279, the prep. may be explained as the Beth essentialis, in the character or capacity of thy help, comp. Ex. 18 : 4, Deut. 33 : 26, Prov. 3 : 26. See on Isa. 40 : 10 ; or it may be read, among thy help, i. e. helpers, auxiliaries.

10. אֲנִיָּהּ even. אֲנִיָּהּ was to, became, see on Gen. 2 : 7, exiles, her inhabitants were exiled ; or this word may be dependent on אֲנִיָּהּ went for exiles, as exiles, into captivity. אֲנִיָּהּ, fut. relative to and consequent upon the preceding pret. § 263. 5. a. אֲנִיָּהּ § 207. 2. b.

11. אֲנִיָּהּ אֲנִיָּהּ, twice corresponding to the repeated אֲנִיָּהּ, ver. 10, thou too. אֲנִיָּהּ, drink deeply of divine wrath, see Ob. ver. 16. אֲנִיָּהּ, not in a reflexive sense, hiding thyself for fear, but hidden, reduced to obscurity, or completely destroyed. : אֲנִיָּהּ, to be connected, not with אֲנִיָּהּ, as though in her extremity she would be obliged to apply to her very enemies for protection, but with אֲנִיָּהּ a defence from, against the enemy.

12. Against the fate thus foretold and illustrated every reliance would be unavailing. אֲנִיָּהּ אֲנִיָּהּ, either the fortifications of Nineveh itself or other fortified places guarding the access to the capital. אֲנִיָּהּ, figure of easy capture, comp. Rev. 6 : 13. אֲנִיָּהּ, the early ripe figs were especially prized, Isa. 28 : 4. אֲנִיָּהּ § 287. 2.

13. Her population, and especially her armies, should be destitute of manly courage, comp. Homer, Il. 2. 235, Ἀχαιῶδες, οὐκ' ἔτ' Ἀχαιοί, and Virgil's imitation, Æn. 9. 617, Phrygiae, neque enim Phryges. אֲנִיָּהּ אֲנִיָּהּ may be connected with what precedes, but better with what follows. אֲנִיָּהּ § 282. a. אֲנִיָּהּ, passages affording entrance to the land and egress from it, comp. Jer. 15 : 7, Zech. 11 : 1 ; others understand the gates of the various cities of the empire. : אֲנִיָּהּ bars by which the gates were fastened. This is a continuation of the figure of the preceding clause. Every obstruction is removed to the advance of the enemy, who penetrates even to the capital. The change of the text to אֲנִיָּהּ thy fugitives is without authority, and is of no advantage to the sense.

14. As the outposts have fallen, the people have shown unmanly weakness, and the passes opening free admission to the heart of the empire have been forced, the siege of the capital cannot be much longer delayed. Every preparation should therefore be made to meet it. בְּלִלְכָן § 191. 3, the walls of Nineveh were chiefly of brick.

15. These efforts would be vain. עַתָּה is never an adverb of time, then, though this sense has been attributed to it here and in a few other passages, but always of place, there, i. e. on the very spot where they are engaged in these defensive preparations. Others explain it demonstratively, as though the prophet was pointing to what he saw in prophetic vision, there! קִרְיָאֵן, not the object, as though the allusion were to swarms of locusts checked by fires or combated with swords, but the subject, since locusts are more naturally and frequently contemplated as agents of destruction than as themselves liable to be destroyed. The devastation should resemble that effected by these devouring insects. The mention of locusts as an emblem of the invaders suggests the employment of the same emblem in the next clause, under another aspect, to represent the vast numbers of the Ninevites, and their sudden disappearance. לִלְכָן, from לָקַח to lick up, devour, is a poetical name of the locust, while הַרְבֵּה from רָבַח to be numerous, is its ordinary name. הַרְבֵּה, addressed in the masc. to the people, and in the fem. to the city, see on 2 : 2.

16. עַתָּה spreads itself, or better, as in the text of the common version, spoileth. They commit their ravages and fly away; so the traders, and all the busy multitudes that frequented Nineveh, should suddenly take flight. There is no good ground for the opinion that לִלְכָן denotes the locust unwinged and not yet full grown, which must cast its skin before it attains its proper size and capacity of flight, and that the clause is to be translated, larval locusts cast their skin and fly away.

17. יָמֵי § 199. c, § 280. a. יָמֵי day, indefinitely for time, see Gen. 2 : 4. יָמֵי § 142. 1. יָמֵי, one suf. agrees formally with יָמֵי in the sing., the other logically in the plur. § 275. 2, their place is not known, where they were, no trace remains of their former presence; or where they are, no one can tell whither they have gone; or preserving more exactly the sense of the interrogative, their place is not known; where are they?

18. יָמֵי, not a figure for negligent security, but the sleep of death. יָמֵי, a frequent figure for rulers; so Homer, ποιμένα λαῶν. יָמֵי, mark the change of tense, have fallen asleep, shall continue to lie. יָמֵי, as the shepherds have perished, the flock is scattered. Comp. 1 Kin. 22 : 17

19. יָמֵי, gesture of joy, Ps. 47 : 2.

PSALM I.

This Psalm may be divided into two parts, vs. 1-3 describing the blessedness of the righteous, and vs. 4-6 the misery of the wicked, or better, perhaps, into three parts, in which the righteous and the wicked are successively contrasted in character, vs. 1. 2; condition, vs. 3. 4; and destiny, vs. 5. 6.

1. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל § 201. 1, § 221. 5. d, an exclamation, O the felicities of the man! which is more natural as well as forcible than to supply the substantive verb, there are felicities. The person referred to is first described negatively, then in ver. 2 positively. He avoids all who are evil. Walk, stand, sit, "the three postures of a waking man express the whole course of life or conduct;" they also suggest a climax, or "successive stages of deterioration; first, occasional conformity, then fixed association, then established residence." ALEXANDER. There may also be a progression in the three names of the wicked, impii corde, peccatores opere, illusores ore. וְעֵצָה counsel, not here in the sense of advice given to another, but plan or purpose which one forms for himself. וְיִשְׂרָאֵל § 156. 2. The verbs of this verse are in the preterite, those of ver. 2 in the future, but neither exclude the present; combined they embrace all time, § 263. 5. a. It is first stated what he never has done, then what he designs and endeavours always to do; evil is abandoned and past, that which is good alone remains before him in perpetual validity. In the freedom with which the conjunctive accents are used in the poetic consecution, § 40. 1, it will be sufficient to note the order of the disjunctives. This verse consists of three clauses, the first of which is limited at וְיִשְׂרָאֵל by Merka-Mahpakh, the second at וְעֵצָה by Athnabh, the third at וְיִשְׂרָאֵל by Silluk. The first is subdivided by R'bhia over וְיִשְׂרָאֵל . Merka-Mahpakh is preceded by the disjunctive Zarka over וְיִשְׂרָאֵל , Athnabh by Tiphhha initial under וְעֵצָה , and Silluk by R'bhia-Geresh over וְיִשְׂרָאֵל .

3. The happy estate, which was the subject of exclamation, ver. 1, is set forth by the expressive figure of a flourishing tree. וְעֵצָה , not wild, but planted, and that in a most favourable position. וְעֵצָה over, overhanging, or by, see on Gen. 41 : 1. וְעֵצָה § 42. 5, plur. does not express largeness or incessant flow, § 201. 2, nor intimate that וְעֵצָה is collective, but artificial channels for irrigation are intended, and the same tree might overhang several. וְעֵצָה , not here a figure of good works, but belongs to the emblem of a prosperous, happy condition. וְעֵצָה , the figure is exchanged for literal expressions. וְעֵצָה , intrans. shall prosper, or more probably trans. he shall cause to prosper, conduct to a successful termination.

4. In contrast with this vigorous growth, the wicked are compared to a lifeless vegetable product, not to a dead tree, which would be too exalted an image, but to chaff, which is utterly insignificant and worthless, and which therefore the wind is allowed to sweep away; an allusion to the oriental mode of winnowing, by casting the grain up to the wind. וְהַיִּתְּרָה , fut. denoting customary action, § 263. 4. רוּחַ , indef. a wind, or art. omitted by poetic license, § 247.

5. וְלֹא יִשְׁתָּבֵר , see on Gen. 2:24; from this opposition of character and condition the Psalmist infers their opposite destiny. וְהַיִּתְּרָה , indef. because no longer spoken of as a class, but as individuals. It is not merely said that the wicked as a body shall not stand, endure the test, be vindicated, but no wicked men whatever shall do so. וְהַיִּתְּרָה the judgment, not of men but of God, whether temporal or eternal, see on Obad. ver. 15. וְהַיִּתְּרָה congregation, the body or class of the righteous. The term is commonly used of the congregation of Israel, the church. Sinners shall not remain forever mingled with it, undistinguished from its true and faithful members.

6. וְיָדָע . That such a distinction shall be made is proved by the divine omniscience. God knows the way of righteous men, i. e. either he is acquainted with the course of conduct which they pursue, it being implied, though not expressly stated, that he will deal with it as it deserves. Or way may, as in Isa. 40:27, Ps. 37:5, include the destiny as determined by the character and conduct; the meaning will then be, God knows the issue of their course, and it shall be as he has declared it to be. וְהַיִּתְּרָה , the way shall perish with all who are upon it, i. e. it leads to destruction.

PSALM II.

The first Psalm exhibits it as a permanent fact in the moral government of God, in spite of contrary appearances and seeming contradictions, that the righteous are blessed and the wicked shall perish; the one is as the flourishing and fruitful tree, the other as the dry and driven chaff. The same idea meets us again in the second Psalm, which is thus a sort of sequel or counterpart of the first. We find here the same contrast presented in the first place of two opposing characters and courses of conduct, viz.: resistance or submission to the authority and government of God, and in the second place of the issues that attend them, the perdition of the one, וְהַיִּתְּרָה , ver. 12, comp. 1:6, and the blessedness of the other, וְהַיִּתְּרָה , ver. 12, comp. 1:1.

This common idea is, however, transferred to another sphere and exhibited upon a different theatre. 1. What was in Psalm 1 asserted of individuals is here declared of nations and their rulers. 2. What was there asserted as a general moral truth is here prophetically declared: the prophet foresees the mad resistance of the nations to the kingdom of the Messiah, and predicts its calamitous result. Three different views have been taken of the subject of this remarkable Psalm.

1. Naturalistic, that it describes the unsuccessful attempt at revolt on the part of certain subject nations.

2. Typical, that while primarily describing such a revolt from some one of the kings of Israel, it at the same time has a secondary relation to the kingdom of Messiah.

3. Messianic, that it is primarily and directly prophetic of Messiah's kingdom.

Of the naturalistic interpreters, some have referred the Psalm to one or other of the wars in the reign of David. Apart from other difficulties which press this view, however, none of his wars can be found which answer the requirements of the Psalm, even as interpreted by themselves. His wars with the Philistines, 2 Sam. 5: 17-25, were before Zion could be called God's holy mountain, ver. 6. His wars, 2 Sam. 8, with Syrians, Edom, Moab, and others, were not against nations previously subdued, and who now threw off the yoke of Israel. His wars with Absalom and Ishbosheth were not against foreign but domestic enemies. Others refer it to a supposed revolt against Solomon, whereas, the history not only fails to record any such revolt, but expressly describes his reign as one of peace and quietness, 1 Chron. 22: 9. Others, with still less probability, have referred it to later periods of the history, until the climax of absurdity was reached by Hitzig, who places it in the times of the Maccabees, and finds the occasion to be Alexander Jannaeus imposing circumcision on the Edomites.

The decisive objections to this view, however modified, are,

1. The universal and resistless sway of this prince, which belongs only to Messiah, and is always a characteristic of his reign among the prophets: this could be said of no actual monarch but by the grossest hyperbole.

2. The authority of the New Testament. In Acts 4: 25, 26, it is quoted by the assembled apostles and applied to Herod and Pilate, the Gentiles and the Jews combining in the crucifixion of Jesus. In Acts 13: 33 Paul quotes "Thou art my son," etc., in application to Christ; so in Heb. 1: 5; so "thou shalt rule them with a rod of iron," in Rev. 2: 27, 12: 5, 19: 15. This Psalm is also the basis of some of the characteristic names of Jesus, (1) the anointed, Messiah or Christ, only found here and Dan 9 : 25, and (2) Son of God, used even by Nathanael, John 1 : 49, before he had been under Christ's instruction, so that it must have been prevalently adopted as a name of the coming Redeemer.

3. The history of interpretation : the ancient authorities among the Jews always explained it of the Messiah, the later Jews abandoning this view only to avoid the arguments thence drawn by Christians in favour of the claims of Jesus of Nazareth. This interpretation has always been the prevalent one among Christians.

The typical view may be presented under two different phases. The first supposes that the writer had primarily in mind some revolt of subjugated nations from the sway of an Israelitish king, but that his language was so framed, consciously or unconsciously, under the guidance of the Spirit, as to adapt it to the higher subject of Messiah's reign.

This would accord with the analogy of many of the Psalms which are typical in this sense ; it would also be consistent with the authority of the New Testament, which, in applying this Psalm to Christ, does not necessarily deny its applicability also to a lower subject. It is, however, forbidden, (1) by the terms of the Psalm, which cannot, without the most strained exaggeration, have been meant to apply to any actually reigning king of Israel. Dominion over all nations was never claimed, much less exercised by any of them ; and the kings and nations of the whole earth were never combined against any of them. (2) The subjection demanded is not a political but a religious one. Rebellion is directed against the Lord as much as against his anointed, and the thing demanded of the nations and rulers of the earth is, that they should serve the Lord as well as submit to his Son. It is on this ground that Hitzig has based his conceit that a religious war, backing the demand for the circumcision of the Edomites, is the one intended. His view may be accepted as a confession that no war for political freedom or subjugation meets the conditions of the case.

The second phase of the typical view supposes that the prerogatives and powers of the kingdom of Israel, as such, are here intended, and that no one historical event is particularly alluded to. The kingdom of Israel was divinely established and an object of divine protection ; its monarchs of the line of David stood in a filial relation to God, 2 Sam. 7 : 14, as the objects of his love and favour. This kingdom was destined ultimately to cover the earth, and he who is the Son of God in the highest sense was to be also a son of David, and to sit upon his throne. This view supposes the kingdom here to be regarded as a whole, corresponding to its divine ideal, and the king to embrace all the monarchs of David's line, including the greatest and the last.

This would accord with the analogy of prophecy, e. g. with Deut. 18, which predicts the entire line of prophets, as well as Christ, the seal of the prophets, with the prediction 2 Sam. 7, of the kingdom of the son of David, etc. The objection to it is, that the terms of the Psalm suggest no other than the direct application to Messiah. Its language is all applicable to him, and to him alone, in its strict and proper sense, and seems to exclude all reference to any lower subject. Messiah is presented, indeed, as the ideal king of Israel, but the gaze of the seer is directed to him alone in whom the kingdom would find its consummation, not to him merely as one of a line of monarchs, who are all equally regarded. This Psalm is, therefore, not merely typical of Christ, but is directly and exclusively messianic.

The absence of a title deprives us of the usual means of settling authoritatively the date and author of this Psalm. This lack is supplied, however, by the New Testament, which in express language, Acts 4 : 25, refers it to David. It has been replied to this, that such a statement is merely a reproduction of the current belief of the time, and is not intended to vouch for its accuracy; just as we familiarly call the whole book the Psalms of David, though he did not write every individual Psalm. It would, however, be time enough to resort to such an explanation as this, if it could first be proved that the statement of the sacred writer is not strictly true in this case. But, on the other hand, all the probabilities are in favour of, not against its composition by David.

1. The other Psalms of the first book, Ps. 1-41, almost without exception, are in their titles referred to him, whence the probability that this is likewise his.

2. The impression made by the tone of the Psalm is, that it was written at a time when the kingdom was undivided, and was in its highest strength and glory. At such a time the devout mind would naturally pass, as is here done, from the type to the contemplation of its antitype.

3. The prophetic basis of this Psalm is found in a communication to David by the prophet Nathan, 2 Sam. 7 : 12-16, where the perpetuity of his kingdom is promised; the very words of that promise are here alluded to, and the sonship promised applied to Messiah in its highest sense. David no doubt understood the promise to be, that Messiah should spring from his seed, and we have here the lyric reproduction of the revelations he received.

4. Its typical basis is found in the life of David, and in the kingdom as it was under his reign. He was a man of war, to whom God had granted victory over all his foes. It is under the figures of successful war and a throne established in Zion, that he describes Messiah's sway.

vs. 1-3, the vain rebellion of the nations and their rulers.

vs. 4-6, the Lord derides their impotent attempts.

vs. 7-9, the relation which this king bears to Jehovah, and the authority based upon it.

vs. 10-12, all rulers counselled to timely submission.

In each of these sections there is a different speaker: in the last verse of the first, the nations and their kings; in the last verse of the second, the Lord; throughout the third, the Messiah; in the fourth, the Psalmist himself gives the lessons of the prophetic scene which he has been surveying.

1. The Psalmist beholds the nations of the world in the tumult of actual revolt against the Lord, and expresses his astonishment and indignation at their wickedness and folly. $\text{לָמָּה} \text{ } \text{לָמָּה}$ why, for what reason? The question implies that no good reason exists. The question probably extends through the verse, though some confine it to the first clause, and others extend it to the second verse likewise. רָעָם , applied to the noise of a tumultuous crowd; the verb, though used both in the Biblical and later Chaldee, occurs in Hebrew only in this place; the corresponding noun is found twice in the Psalms, meaning 'noise' or 'tumult.' The past tense shows that the Psalmist is describing a point of time after the revolt has begun, though, as the following futures show, it is not yet consummated. גוֹיִם nations, mostly foreign, gentile nations, though the application to the Gentiles and people of Israel, Acts 4:27, combined in the crucifixion of Christ, shows that it may include the nominal Israel when they have ceased to be God's true people, and put themselves on a par with heathen in their mad rebellion. This word, as well as its synonym לְגוֹיִם , is without the article. It is not yet brought to view that the revolt is absolutely universal, but only that it is one of vast dimensions, one of whole nations, not of petty neighbourhoods or individuals. The particular fact to which it is applied, Acts 4:27, though an instance of the hostility here referred to, does not exhaust it. וְהָיָה , fut. why will they go on to meditate, i. e. plan or plot. וְהָיָה vain, not in the conception of the plotters, of course, but in reality and actual fact.

2. וְהָיָה are setting themselves, taking their stand of hostility, comp. 1 Sam. 17:16. וְהָיָה § 247, shows the universality of the rebellion, and at the same time, as they are merely earthly kings, prepares for the contrast to follow with 'him who sits in heaven.' The masses already seen in revolt have the countenance and aid of their legitimately constituted authorities. וְהָיָה stands absolutely, the qualification being understood from the parallel clause. וְהָיָה from וְהָיָה to lay a foundation, to spread a bed as a base or foundation to rest upon; Niph. to spread a bed for themselves, to lie down together upon a divan or oriental sofa, as was the custom for purposes of deliberation or consultation. The preterite is used because this mutual consultation has already taken place, and the resolve been formed. $\text{הָיָה אֲנִי כְּיָמֶיךָ}$, even though in the intent of the actors (as in the crucifixion) only against Christ, it was still against the Lord. אֲנִי מְשִׁיחַ , kings were anointed to symbolize the communication of spiritual gifts. Hence 'the Lord's anointed,' 2 Sam. 24 : 6, is synonymous with 'king.' The king of Israel, by way of eminence, receives the name Messiah, as anointed by the Spirit above measure.

3. The language of the nations and their rulers abruptly introduced. $\text{הִנֵּנוּ כְּעַבְדֶיךָ}$, paragogic form, § 97. 1, expresses strong resolve, we will, or mutual exhortation, let us. They will submit to this slavery no longer. אֲנִי מְשִׁיחַ § 221. 2. c.

4. While on the earth all is turmoil and confusion, in heaven the almighty object of this impotent hostility is perfectly serene, and derides these vain attempts. יָשָׁב , the posture of a king on his throne, indicative of authority as well as of repose. אֲנִי מְשִׁיחַ , § 51. 2 ; the LXX and Vulgate supply אֲנִי מְשִׁיחַ from the next clause, laughs at them, which is possible, but not necessary. It may better be taken absolutely, the laughter indicating perfect security from threatened evil, comp. Job 5 : 22. אֲנִי מְשִׁיחַ mocks or derides them ; by a strong figure God is represented as employing insulting gestures to indicate the absurdity of their attempt, and the utter contempt in which he holds it and them.

5. אֲנִי מְשִׁיחַ , not indefinitely, at some time, but then ; after he has first derided them, and allowed them for a while to make their impotent attempts, he will then speak. אֲנִי מְשִׁיחַ , not in thunder, but the words that follow. אֲנִי מְשִׁיחַ terrify, throw into consternation and confusion, used of the rout of armies by a divinely inspired terror. The fright is produced by the announcement now to be made.

6. The words of God are introduced as abruptly as those of the nations and their rulers had previously been. אֲנִי מְשִׁיחַ and, connects with a thought suggested by what precedes ; 'You rebel against my anointed, and I have established him king ;' the pronoun is expressed on account of this implied opposition, § 243. 1. אֲנִי מְשִׁיחַ , not anoint, but pour out in casting metals ; hence constitute, establish. אֲנִי מְשִׁיחַ my king, ruling in my name and by my authority. אֲנִי מְשִׁיחַ , not over, to indicate the territory ruled, but upon, as the seat of empire, its centre and capital : those who render the verb anoint, understand the place of anointing. אֲנִי מְשִׁיחַ Zion, the eminence in the southwest of Jerusalem, where the palace and stronghold of David were, and where the ark and tabernacle were placed during his reign ; the place of God's manifested presence, consequently as well the residence of the earthly king. It is in later times, even after the building of the temple, spoken of as the centre of the theocracy, Moriah being regarded as a part of Zion, an additional summit of the same mountain. Old Testament language is here employed as usual in describing New Testament things. As Zion was the seat of the theocracy, and the residence of its kings, Christ, in whom this kingdom is perpetuated, is said to be established on Zion, though he never locally sat on a throne there. We familiarly use "Zion" in like manner in religious language, without thinking of the locality so called. הַר־יְהוָה קָדְשׁ : § 256, my mountain of holiness, consecrated, hallowed by God's residence there.

7. כִּי הוּא הוּא § 42. 5, not in accordance with nor unto a decree, so as to become a fixed law, but in reference to. הוּא is indefinite; some connect it with הוּא הוּא the decree of Jehovah, but the accents forbid. וַיִּקְרָא , God calls Israel his son because he was the author of his national existence, and regarded him with tender love; the kings of David's line were also sons of God, 2 Sam. 7; so were the angels, Job 38:7. But the expression is here used in an emphatic sense, as appears from its being a ground of universal empire, vs. 8. 9, and from the peculiar intimacy and relation to God shown in the words 'my king,' and in the rebellion being directed alike against 'the Lord and his anointed.' We learn from Heb. 1:5 that it involves community of nature with God. הוּא הוּא , the point of time designated by this expression depends upon the date of the decree referred to, and the determination of that will depend upon the substance of the decree itself. If 'I have begotten thee' denotes the eternal generation of the son, then the decree must date back from all eternity. It seems more probable, however, that this phrase does not denote the origin of the filial relation, but rather its solemn recognition, and is equivalent to 'I am thy father,' I this day declare myself to be such. If this be so, it belongs to some point of time at which this relation was thus prominently manifested. His resurrection is generally assumed on the basis of Acts 13:33, Rom. 1:4, though the former passage may refer to his being raised up or brought into being as a man; this relation was also publicly recognized by a voice from heaven at the baptism and the transfiguration of Christ. Perhaps it is not necessary to decide in favour of any one of these times and against the others, as the point of time may be an ideal one, the coronation of Christ, his recognition as the divinely constituted king, which was accomplished with increasing distinctness at several different times. $\text{וַיִּקְרָא הוּא הוּא}$ § 150. 1 (p. 182).

8. On the ground of this relation of sonship he had a right to universal dominion. וְהוּא הוּא thy inheritance, thy portion as my son.

ⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛ ends of the earth, including all that is between them ; not the extreme limits of the land, a sense which the expression never has. This gift is suspended on his simply asking for it : that he had asked and obtained it, appears from his being in fact possessed of universal sway, against which the nations rebelled, and to which they are exhorted to submit.

9. His power to punish refractory subjects. ⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛ from ⲉⲛⲉ to break, LXX as if ⲉⲛⲉⲛ from ⲉⲛⲉ to feed or rule, ποιμαίνεις. ⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛ § 193. c, sceptre of iron, the hardest of metals, expressing his power and severity. ⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛ, easily, utterly and remedilessly.

10. ⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛ and now, in these circumstances, seeing these things are so. ⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛ be wise, prop. act wisely, § 79. 2. ⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛ § 35. 1, judges, parallel to kings, since judging was a regal function, and the Hebrew judges were supreme magistrates.

11. ⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛ with fear, religious awe ; not merely political subjection. ⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛ shout, in acknowledgment of the sovereign, or rejoice, as you have reason with such a sovereign to rejoice and tremble too : not quake, a sense which Gesenius and others attribute to the word, but which it never has.

12. ⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛ kiss, an act of loyal homage, see on Gen. 41 : 40, comp. 1 Sam. 10 : 1 ; or of religious worship, 1 Kin. 19 : 18, Hos. 13 : 2, Job 31 : 27. ⲉⲛⲉ § 51. 3, Aramaic for son, as in Simon Bar-Jonas. It occurs three times in Prov. 31 : 2. Forms common in the other dialects, but rare in Hebrew, are often used in poetry. An additional motive in this instance may have been to avoid the conjunction of like sounds, ⲉⲛⲉ and ⲉⲛⲉ. This is the only rendering consistent with the connection. The LXX and Vulg. render Embrace instruction ; this gives false meanings to both verb and noun. Symmachus and Jerome render ⲉⲛⲉ purely, and resolve the figure of the verb, adore pure. Others take ⲉⲛⲉ as an adjective, kiss the pure one, or the chosen one. ⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛ he, the son, be angry ; not Jehovah, which is more remote, and the son has the iron sceptre, to dash in pieces. ⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛ, not perish on the way, as they are marching against the anointed, without arriving at the capital ; nor lose the way, wander from the right road of virtue and blessedness, but perish as to the way, comp. 1 : 6, find that your way leads to perdition, and you go to perdition in and with it. ⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛ, not, when his wrath is kindled but a little, but for his wrath will soon burn, is almost burning, or hypothetically, might easily burn. ⲉⲛⲉⲛⲉⲛ § 255. 1, trust in him, though it is sinful to trust in princes or in the son of man, a proof of his superhuman nature. Some refer the suffix to Jehovah ; but that is too remote, and only to be admitted, if Messiah could not properly be an object of religious trust, or if the Psalmist could not have contemplated him in that light.

PSALM III.

This Psalm is closely connected in subject with the preceding. Psalm 1 exhibits the contrast between the righteous and the wicked in their character and destiny. In Psalm 2 all nations are combined in vain rebellion against God's constituted king, the Messiah. In Psalm 3 we find the same struggle on a smaller scale and in a preliminary form, the wicked and causeless rebellion against David, the divinely appointed head of the theocracy, and his assurance of protection.

1. The titles of the Psalms are of different sorts, sometimes containing merely musical directions, sometimes, as here, a statement of the author and the occasion of the composition. These titles are doubtless entirely reliable, for (1) they are part of the text, and are to be ascribed to the authors of the several Psalms, there being the same external authority for their genuineness and correctness as that of the Psalms themselves. (2) Even if they were prefixed by others at a later time, their being admitted and suffered to remain could only be accounted for on the assumption of their correctness. (3) Nothing in the Psalms is inconsistent with these inscriptions. רָנַן לְפָנֶיךָ § 191. 5, occurs only in the titles of the Psalms, and is prefixed to fifty-seven. The verb רָנַן is applied to instrumental music, or to vocal with an instrumental accompaniment, whence, like $\psiαλμός$ from $\psiάλλω$, it denotes a composition designed for instrumental performance, as רָנַן , which is also frequent in the titles of Psalms, means one designed to be sung. רָנַן לְפָנֶיךָ § 257, belonging to David, as its author. The occasion stated is when he fled from Absalom his son; and the language of the Psalm is quite in accordance with the circumstances of that time. That the author was a monarch, may be inferred (1) from the vast numbers of his opposers, ver. 6; (2) from his pious prayer for the people as identified in fortunes with himself, ver. 8; and perhaps also (3) from his calling God 'his glory,' i. e. the source of his official elevation and distinction. Hence it cannot be the effusion of a godly man in a private station, surrounded by enemies. If then the author was a king, he must have been either David or Solomon, as these are the only two kings to whom Psalms are ever referred. It could not have been Solomon, for it does not agree with the characteristics of his reign, which was a peaceful one. If David was its author, it must, from its tone, have been at one of the most perilous crises of his life. Of these there were principally two, which might be thought of as furnishing an occasion for such a psalm, the persecution by Saul and the revolt of Absalom. That it could not be the former appears (1) from the reference to former trials and persecutions, ver. 7, from which he had been delivered, which must include the hostility of Saul. (2) Zion was not God's 'holy hill,' ver. 4, till David was king, and removed the ark to that place; no other mountain ever received that name. It cannot mean Sinai, for often as this expression occurs in Scripture, and especially in the Psalms, it always means Zion: and help is always sought from the present dwelling-place of God, not from the scene of a past revelation. Kimchi fixes the moment of the Psalm when David and the people went weeping, barefoot, and with the head covered, up mount Olivet, 2 Sam. 15 : 30. Hengstenberg refers it to the evening of that day; but if it is possible to determine its time precisely, this may more naturally be the next morning after he had safely slept through that first night of most immediate peril, ver. 5, and in this protection found a pledge of future deliverance. The Psalm describes his peril, vs. 2, 3; protector, vs. 4, 5; confidence, vs. 6, 7; and prayer, vs. 8, 9.

2. אֶנְי, exclamation, how, the force of which may extend through the verse, or only through the first clause. אֶנְי might be from אָנִי assaulting me, but is usually taken from אֶנְי my adversaries. אֶנְי אֶנְי, a general expression, equivalent to 'enemies,' Deut. 28 : 7; here it refers to rebels, insurgents.

3. אֶנְי, these may be his enemies before spoken of, or false friends, or disheartened followers. אֶנְי, not a mere periphrasis of the pronoun me, for this periphrasis, though frequent in Arabic, is always emphatically used in Hebrew, either where the life is in question, as Ps. 7 : 3, 'lest he rend my soul,' i. e. destroy my life. If it were so understood here, the meaning would be—say of my life, there is no help for it in God; but since אֶנְי is fem. the following אֶנְי must refer, not to it, but to the person himself. Or where the feelings are concerned, say so as to affect his feelings deeply, cut him to the heart; this is the sense here. The preposition may be rendered in reference to, as Gen. 20 : 13, Isa. 41 : 7, or perhaps better to. Although this was not addressed to him, as is shown by the use of the third person in the next clause, it is yet said to his soul, goes to his heart. אֶנְי § 258. b. אֶנְי § 219. 2, § 196. b. If the ending have the sense of He directive, § 219. 1, there is not to salvation for him, i. e. he cannot come to salvation. But as this appears forced, it is better to regard the sense of the ending as weakened or lost, as in אֶנְי by night, also night. It is here used for euphony, or at most as a poetic and emphatic form. אֶנְי אֶנְי, God will not help him because he is such a sinner, comp. 2 Sam. 16 : 7. 8, or his condition is so desperate that even God cannot help him. Though the former is doubtless to be included, yet the latter was also in his mind, as is shown by the counter assertion of ver. 9, 'salvation belongs to God,' he is able to save, and does save. הַלְלוּ occurs in the Psalms seventy-one times, and three times in Habakkuk, chap. 3. It has been variously explained. (1.) It is accented as though it belonged to the preceding sentence: the Targum renders it לְעוֹלָמְדָּבָר for ever; so Aquila, ἀεί; Symmachus, εἰς τὸν αἰῶνα. This is now universally abandoned. (2.) It is regarded as a musical term. a. Some make it an abbreviation, e. g. $\text{רָצוּן לְעוֹלָמְדָּבָר}$ return above singer, equivalent to da capo. But this leaves too much to conjecture, and there is no evidence of such abbreviations in Scripture. It is most probably derived either, b. from הַלְלוּ to be silent, rest, denoting a pause in the singing to be filled up by the instruments, or c. from $\text{הַלְלוּ} = \text{הַלְלוּ}$ to lift up, meaning elevation, loud tone, i. e. FORTE, and intended as a direction to the orchestra to play with new force while the singers are silent, or repeat the stanza just sung. In spite of the double derivation and opposite sense deduced, it amounts therefore to the same thing. As to the form of the word, some regard it as imp. Kal with הַ parag. in pause הַלְלוּ for הַלְלוּ from הַלְלוּ : others as a noun הַלְלוּ with הַ parag. Though designed primarily for musical direction, it stands related to the sense of the passage, as the music was intended to conform to and express the sense. It occurs only after an important sentiment, which is thus emphasized, and commonly after some triumphant statement, which is thus celebrated and finds expression.

4. But though men considered his situation desperate, it was not so; he had a helper and one who regarded his prayers. וְאַתָּה and thou, in contrast with the conduct or the expectations of his enemies. מִלְחָמָה shield, from לָמַח to protect, a source of protection and defence, Gen. 15 : 1. לְפָנָי , not only before him, but around him; the primary sense of the preposition, according to Gesenius, is, close to me, on all sides of me; according to Hupfeld, between me and everything else. וְיָבוֹהוּ my glory or honour, i. e. the source and permanent ground of it, comp. Ps. 27 : 1, 'the Lord is my light and my salvation:' not merely the one who will now vindicate my honour by saving me from my enemies, but the original source of my honour, or regal dignity. As he has originally bestowed this royal authority, he will not suffer me to be thus violently despoiled of it. $\text{וַיִּצְרֹחַ רֹאשׁוֹ}$, grief bows the head, deliverance from sorrow lifts it up again.

5. וְקוֹלִי , the immediate instrument of an action, instead of being preceded by a preposition, may be subordinated to the proper subject, either in apposition with it, "my voice, viz. : I cry," or as an accusative, "I as to my voice cry." This is no pleonasm, but is equivalent to cry loudly. וְקוֹלִי , habitual action, § 263. 4, as the English present, I cry. וְקוֹלִי ,

Vav conversive after a future does not make a preterite, but indicates a consequent of the preceding verb, § 265. b, and he hears me; the future in the same habitual sense as the preceding. Whenever I call, he hears me, or answers me, not merely in the sense of listening or speaking, but of granting the solicited and effectual aid.

6. God being thus his protector and helper, had already begun his work of protection from the present peril, and he had perfect confidence in him for the future. אָנֹכִי, the pronoun, when not necessary to perspicuity, is always emphatic, § 243. 1, even I, whose case men regard as desperate, have been thus marvellously preserved. אֶרְצָה וְאֶשָׁן have lain down and slept, indicating his sense of security as well as his safety. אֶתְעוֹרֵר I have awaked: some understand this of the past generally, God has always protected me in the darkness and perils of the night, and granted me slumber and safety, I can therefore trust him now. But it seems better to explain it from existing circumstances and of a definite time, the night after his flight. The culmination of his danger and hour of his most extreme peril was, when Ahithophel counselled, 2 Sam. 17 : 1, to pursue David with a large force that night and cut him off at once. The failure of Absalom to adopt that advice, which was an answer (one of those referred to in ver. 5) to David's prayer, 2 Sam 15 : 31, and the consequent salvation of that night, was really the beginning of deliverance from the entire danger. יְהוָה יִסְמְנֵנִי Jehovah will ever sustain me, fut. in habitual sense, § 263. 4, sustains me, is my protector then, now and always. The meaning is either, I was protected that night because God is always my protector; or, I had this sense of security because of my consciousness that God always will sustain me.

7. Cheered not only by his knowledge that God is his protector in the general, but by this particular instance of marked and surprising deliverance, he would not be afraid, however great his perils. אֶלֶּיךָ, here and Ps. 27 : 1, followed by אֶלְּךָ, commonly with a direct object. אֶתְעוֹרֵר, with allusion to רָבִיחַ, רָבִיחַ, vs. 2. 3. עַמֶּךָ people in a collective sense, persons; or nation, the people, viz., Israel, the article omitted as it often is in poetry. אֶתְּוֹצֵא, not who have set themselves, since this verb is never used in a reflexive or intransitive sense, but whom they, indef., referring to his enemies, § 243. 2, have set against me. This is the language of calm and quiet confidence rather than loud triumph; hence there is no Selah to dwell upon and celebrate it in jubilant strains of instrumental melody. That this is the temper in which it is spoken is further shown by the following prayer for the granting of a deliverance not yet accomplished.

8. Having such a helper and such confidence, he does not intermit or discontinue prayer, but is enabled to pray with earnestness and hope.

וְיִצְרָח arise from seeming inaction and inattention to the case of the suppliant; assume an attitude of action, address thyself to my case. יְיָ אֱלֹהֵי מִי my God, expressive of a personal relation. -כָּרֵךְ, save me now by shaming and destroying my enemies, for thou hast been my deliverer in previous perils. כָּרַעְתָּהֶם thou hast smitten all my enemies as to the cheek, § 273. 2, treated them with deserved contumely, and by an anticipation of the following figure of beasts of prey, rendered them powerless by destroying their weapon of attack. -בָּזָה. Some interpreters have needlessly stumbled at the fact that he says all, though enemies were now surrounding him. It is all his enemies on the former occasions to which he refers. בָּזָהוּ, both the persecution of David by Saul and this revolt of Absalom were characterized by opposition against the legitimate and divinely constituted king. They were attempts to overthrow a divine ordinance, and defeat what was of divine appointment. Accordingly, the godly among the people were for David, and the ungodly against him. שָׁבַרְתָּם, broken the teeth, as of wild beasts, destroyed their power of offence, thus rendering them harmless. Marg., see on 1 Sam. 17 : 45.

9. יְיָ אֱלֹהֵי, belongs to him as its author and source; see on ver. 3. הִשְׁמַחְתָּהֶם § 245. 5. שְׂמַחֲתָה, not a declaration, is upon thy people, but a prayer, be upon thy people. Their special relation to God is indicated by the use of the pronoun, and is the ground upon which the petition rests. David here, as often elsewhere, solicits not only individual blessings for himself, but rises from these to embrace in his petitions the whole people of God, of whom he was the head, in whose behalf he was so deeply interested, and whose welfare was so intimately connected with his own. His petition, it has been suggested, embraces even that misguided portion of the people, who were then in revolt.

PSALM IV.

This Psalm bears an external resemblance to Psalm 3; in length, 9 verses, in Selah at the end of the third and fifth verses, and in some of its expressions, viz.: רַבִּים אֲנָרִים ver. 7, comp. 3 : 3; וְאֵשׁוּךְ וְאֵשׁוּךְ ver. 9, comp. 3 : 6. With this corresponds an inward resemblance in the identity of situation. The Psalmist is surrounded by foes who would rob him of his official dignity which he had by God's gracious choice, vs. 3. 4. So that it is probably to be referred to the same occasion, the revolt of Absalom. The absence of distinct mention of Absalom interposes no objection any more than in the preceding psalm: that his adversaries are addressed by the general term "sons of men," is readily accounted for, if Absalom is regarded as a tool in the hands of more designing men rather than himself the leading spirit in the rebellion.

1. This title has relation to the musical performance of the Psalm and its authorship. לְמַנְצֵחַ occurs 55 times in the Psalms, and once in Hab. 3 : 19. In this last instance it stands at the end of a metrical composition, but with that exception always at the beginning, and it is invariably the first word of the title in which it occurs, except in Ps. 88 ; belonging to the leader or chief musician, i. e. committed to him as the one charged with its musical performance. לְמַנְצֵחַ not dependent on the preceding participle, to the leader in the music of stringed instruments, but a distinct direction respecting the mode of the performance of the Psalm, with stringed instruments.

The Psalmist utters,

1. ver. 2, a prayer to God for deliverance.

2. vs. 3-6, a warning to his enemies to desist from their vain and wicked course, and to return to the true service of God, whom they were opposing.

3. vs. 7-9, his own joy and confidence in God.

2. יְהוָה יֵשׁוּעַ , either, my righteous God, an appeal to God as the possessor and source of righteousness, and righteous in his dealings, and as standing in an intimate relation to the Psalmist ; or, God of my righteousness, vindicator of my righteous cause, as 'God of my life' means, not my living God, but the author and preserver of my life. קַו never means simply 'salvation.' The first argument of his prayer is found in the title applied to God, who, as a righteous Being, could not but favour his servant and his righteous cause ; the next is found in God's past deliverances. יָצַדְתָּ , the article is equivalent to an unemphatic possessive, § 245. 3. a, in my distress, or is generic, § 245. 5, in distress. לֹא יָצַדְתָּנִי , not to be rendered as an imperative, which would require יָצַדְתָּנִי conversive, but as a preterite, and not probably as referring to some single definite fact, but to the past generally ; not 'thou deliveredst' at some well-remembered time, but thou hast delivered in every previous trouble. It mars the simplicity of the Hebrew style to supply the relative, 'thou, who hast delivered, etc.' יְהוָה יֵשׁוּעַ . Though he appeals to God's righteousness as the vindicator of his just cause, it is still only for grace or undeserved favour that he sues.

3. בְּנֵי אֲדָמָה sons of men, i. e. men, to whom he now turns from speaking to God. God was his helper, his enemies were only men. Or, if בְּנֵי אֲדָמָה involves a tacit opposition to בְּנֵי אֲדָמָה nobles, men of high station, many of whom were engaged on the side of Absalom in this revolt. כַּחַשׁ of time, how long, or degree, how far, to what extent. לְפָנֶיךָ official dignity, not merely personal honour: it was the former of which the conspirators sought to rob him, and which they aimed to bring to disgrace. The question extends through the verse, and is not confined to its first clause. $\text{וְיִשְׁׁוּׁוּ} \dots \text{וְיִקְרָא}$ may either characterize their design as vain, and deceptive, one which could not be accomplished, but would disappoint their expectations; or their measures and course of policy: they sought to advance their aims by falsehood and unworthy deeds.

4. וְיָדָע , Vav is adversative, § 287. 1, yet know; you are attempting the overthrow of my royal authority, but know that it is of divine origin, and cannot be overthrown. Or it may be copulative; the previous verse is dissuasive, as though he said, ‘cease from your vain attempt and know,’ or recognize the truth of the divine right of David to rule. וְיִבְרָךְ , the roots בָּרַךְ and בָּרַךְ , though cognate, are not to be confounded. Some would give this word the sense of בָּרַךְ , ‘to treat in a marvellous manner,’ and apply it to the great benefits granted to David, but its proper meaning is to separate, select, distinguish. וְיִיָּרֵךְ § 185. 2, adj. derived from יָרַךְ , which denotes, see on Isa. 40 : 6, the love of God to man, or of man to God, or to one another. It may have the passive sense of an object of divine regard, or the active sense of pious; both may here be combined, with special prominence to the former, though without excluding the latter. That God had selected him and made him the recipient of so great a benefit, ought to convince his foes that they cannot wrest it from him.

5. וְיִזָּעַף (1) be angry, so the LXX cited Eph. 4 : 26, ‘be angry and sin not:’ be angry if you can do so without sin, but this, especially in this case, in which it is directed against the Lord’s anointed, being impossible, see to it that you do not sin by anger. (2) tremble before God my protector and avenger, and in consequence avoid sinning longer by your hostility to me. וְיִשְׁׁוּׁוּ , not merely speak, but say, viz. : that you will discontinue your sinful course, in your heart, in private meditation and reflection. $\text{בְּמִטָּה בְּמִטָּה בְּלַיְלָה}$, not upon couches used as seats, or divans, i. e. in their meeting for consultation, but upon your beds, in the night, which upon the supposition of this being an evening psalm, was at hand, a time favourable to still reflection and reconsideration of their course. וְיִשְׁׁוּׁוּ be still, quietly reflect, ponder, or desist from your undertaking.

6. וְיִזְבְּחוּ sacrifices of righteousness, not merely externally right, agreeing in number and character with the legal prescriptions, but offered in a righteous spirit, which alone could make them acceptable. However profuse their sacrifices, while they continued in their present godless undertaking, they were sacrifices of wickedness. An allusion possibly to Absalom’s pretext, 2 Sam. 15 : 7, etc. וְיִבְטְחוּ and trust, a second exhortation, trust in God, not in yourselves and your own powers; or, after the analogy of 'do this and live,' the second verb may denote a sequence of the first. Your present trust is presumptuous; but offer the sacrifices of righteousness, then you may trust in the Lord. The Psalmist, in this address to his enemies, which, though in form directed to them, was really designed for himself, reviews the two leading grounds of his confidence that God would interfere on his behalf, (1) that the royal dignity of which they would deprive him was God's gift to him; (2) that they were ungodly men, while he feared and trusted God.

7. אֲנִי־וְעַמִּי , men in general, or David's desponding followers. $\text{אֲנִי־וְעַמִּי־יִרְאוּ־נֶעְמָד}$, regarded by some as an idiomatic optative, like $\text{אֲנִי־וְעַמִּי־יִרְאוּ־נֶעְמָד}$, O that we might see. More probably it is the language of despondency, the question implying a negative answer; no one can show us good. To 'see good' is to experience it; comp. Luke 2:26, 'see death.' $\text{אֲנִי־וְעַמִּי־יִרְאוּ־נֶעְמָד}$ = $\text{אֲנִי־וְעַמִּי־יִרְאוּ־נֶעְמָד}$, the unusual orthography is perhaps designed to suggest an allusion to נֶעְמָד , comp. Ex. 17:15 lift up as a banner, display conspicuously, that we may rally beneath it. There is here a combined allusion to two parts of the sacerdotal blessing, 'the Lord lift up his face upon thee,' and 'the Lord cause his face to shine.' The light of the countenance is a token of favour. It was not outward good, but the Lord's favour, which the Psalmist desired.

8. This light of God's countenance, in fact, the Psalmist already possessed in the midst of his troubles, to such an extent that it gave him more joy than others found in the greatest outward prosperity. $\text{אֲנִי־וְעַמִּי־יִרְאוּ־נֶעְמָד}$, prep. in comparative sense. $\text{אֲנִי־וְעַמִּי־יִרְאוּ־נֶעְמָד}$, suf. might refer to men in general, as Ps. 65:10, and then the proverbial joy of harvest is intended. More probably it relates to his foes in their times of abundance, which is tacitly contrasted with David's own destitution. Corn and wine are often combined to express agricultural products generally. $\text{אֲנִי־וְעַמִּי־יִרְאוּ־נֶעְמָד}$ may agree directly with the preceding nouns, or a relative may be supplied, time of their corn and wine which abounded, or in which they abounded.

9. $\text{אֲנִי־וְעַמִּי־יִרְאוּ־נֶעְמָד}$, state of perfect safety or security, nothing to injure or awaken apprehension. $\text{אֲנִי־וְעַמִּי־יִרְאוּ־נֶעְמָד}$, one act coincident in time with the other; no protracted wakefulness from anxiety, but fall asleep immediately on lying down. $\text{אֲנִי־וְעַמִּי־יִרְאוּ־נֶעְמָד}$ thou alone or dwell alone, not only separated from all foes, but, as it was Israel's distinction, Num. 23:9, Deut. 33:28, separated from other nations, enjoying special protection and peculiar privileges.

PSALM V.

1. This Psalm presents another phase of the same great conflict between the righteous and the wicked. The hostility which in Psalm 2 was directed against Messiah, and in Psalms 3 and 4 against the king of the theocracy, his type and representative, is here in Psalm 5 expressed in terms applicable even to its humblest members, when the objects of wicked persecution by deed or word. An external point of connection with the two preceding Psalms is, that this is a morning Psalm, ver. 4, following morning and evening Psalms; also $\text{בְּרִי אֱלֹהִים הַיּוֹם}$, last verses of 4th and 5th Psalms. $\text{לְכֹלֵנוּ אֲזַנְנוּ לְךָ יְיָ}$, a doubtful expression, variously explained as denoting the musical instrument, unto, i. e. to be sung as an accompaniment to, the pipes or flutes; the tune to the air or tune of Nehiloth, which must then be the name of some well-known melody, or a leading word in some composition associated with such a melody; or the subject in reference to inheritances, i. e. the respective lots or fortunes of the righteous and the wicked. LXX. $\epsilon\pi\epsilon\rho\ \tau\eta\varsigma\ \kappa\lambda\eta\rho\nu\omicron\mu\acute{o}\sigma\eta\varsigma$. Vulg. pro ea quae hereditatem consequitur. The Psalm consists of two parts or stanzas, vs. 2-8 and vs. 9-13, each containing a prayer, an argument, and an expression of confident assurance. These divisions, though counterparts, are not, however, exactly equivalent; the second being an advance upon the first in every respect, and not a mere repetition of it. The supplication uttered in general terms in the first stanza, vs. 2-4, becomes in the second a specific prayer for protection from enemies and for the removal of difficulties. The wicked, who are spoken of generally in the first stanza, are seen in the second to be the foes of the Psalmist, and their wickedness is described with more exactness and detail. In the first stanza he anticipates protection and favour for himself; in the second all the righteous are sharers in the benefit.

2. The ideas of this verse are very simple, but the words are all poetic. אָזְנֵי from אָזַר or אָזַר , the equivalent of which in prose is דָּבַר ; הֶאֱזִינָה , most frequently found in poetry, answers to שָׁמַע ; הֶאֱזִינָה occurs only here and in Ps. 39 : 4; from the context there, and from an Arabic analogy, Gesenius explains it to mean ferveur, applied to the heat of inward excitement or intense emotion; more probably, however, הֶאֱזִינָה = הֶאֱזִינָה , which is used both of speech, and thought as inward speech addressed to one's self; most frequently the latter, so here. Then אָזְנֵי , as the more general term, describing all he said to God in prayer, is divided into inaudible, my thoughts, known to God only, and audible, the voice of my cry, ver. 3. $\text{שְׁמַע$, both attend to and understand. The two imperatives of this verse and that in the next verse have the paragogic π , § 98. 1, converting them into earnest requests.

3. הִשְׁמַע־נָא , properly make attentive; its proper object is 'the ear,' which is often expressed, and is here understood. בְּקוֹלִי voice of my cry, i. e. my loud cry. The noun in every other place but this has a feminine form, קוֹלֵךְ , whence some have explained בְּקוֹלִי as a Piel infin.: it is more usual, however, to assume the existence of a noun with the corresponding masculine form קוֹלֵךְ . יְהוָה . The titles by which God is addressed contain a plea for his being heard, expressing as they do the character under which the Psalmist looked to him in this emergency. My king, not only as the great providential and moral governor of the world, who would redress wrong and vindicate the right, but specially as the immediate ruler of Israel, whose king he was in a peculiar sense. It was one of his own people, one of his immediate subjects, who appealed to him for protection and redress, which he surely would not withhold. יְהוָה my God, expressing an intimate personal relation. כִּי for, not causal, as though the hearing must necessarily follow because he prayed, but explanatory of the circumstances under which the request is made. I ask to be heard, for there is something to hear, I will pray. וְיִשְׁמַע־נָא to thee I will, perhaps also inclusive of the present, I do pray, as opposed to brooding sullenly over his grief, and to seeking relief from other sources.

4. בְּבֹקֶר , time when, § 274. 2. a, in the morning, as the first thing in the day, showing his zeal and earnestness in it. This is a natural and appropriate time for prayer, and has been employed for this purpose among all nations. That it was so among the Jews appears from many passages in the Psalms. It was specially recommended in their case as the time of the morning sacrifice, which the people accompanied by the spiritual oblation of praise. In later times it was stereotyped among the canonical hours of prayer, of which mention is made in the New Testament, Acts 3 : 1. Perhaps it is here to be taken in a collective sense, every morning. וְיִשְׁמַע־נָא , God would hear his voice, i. e. he would pray to God, his voice would be directed to him. Others, with less probability, take 'hear' in the sense of hear favourably, i. e. accept my prayer, grant my petition. It is then an expression, not of his own determination to persevere in prayer, but of his confidence that his prayer would be speedily answered; Thou wilt, I trust, hear my prayer in the morning, as in the morning I will arrange my prayer to thee; as I pray early, so I confidently hope thou wilt early grant my petition. וְיִשְׁמַע־נָא , not direct, but arrange, set in order, something consisting of various parts; its object here is the words of his prayer. It contains also an allusion to the ritual service. This is the word technically used for several offices of the sanctuary, e. g. arranging the lamps or providing them with wick and oil, setting the shew-bread upon the table, and especially arranging the wood upon the altar of burnt-offering, and arranging the parts of the sacrifice upon it. This last was the first morning duty of the priest; and corresponding to that is the spiritual oblation which the Psalmist here pledges, and which could only be acceptable in connection with the atonement which the morning lamb procured or typified. וַיִּשְׁמַר , not I will look up, as a gesture of prayer, but will watch, as the attitude of expectation. The figure is that of a watchman stationed upon a look-out to desery objects in the distance; thus he would watch, expecting an answer to his prayer. It would be the prayer of faith, not of indifference or criminal unbelief. He has solicited gracious audience, declared his determination to pray, and expressed the hope and expectation of a favourable answer; but has not explicitly stated what his petition is. This is reserved until he comes to the beginning of the second stanza, where it appears that he desired deliverance from the persecutions of wicked enemies; that this was already in his mind appears, however, from the reason immediately assigned why he should be heard.

5. וַיִּשְׁמַר . He argues from God's holiness. I look confidently for an answer, לְפָנֶיךָ , for thou art not a God that hast pleasure in wickedness. He has not yet said what his petition was, he does not say in the verses immediately succeeding that the wicked men whom he describes are his foes; he explains all this more fully in the next stanza. Now he only urges that his prayer is of such a nature, that a God who hates sin and will punish sinners, will surely grant it. וְיִשְׁמַר , verbal adjective with a direct object, see on Gen. 42 : 18, Nah. 3 : 1; the corresponding verb is sometimes followed by וַיִּשְׁמַר , and sometimes by a direct object. וְיִשְׁמַר § 102. 2, in the brief language of poetry this verb takes a suffix, though the relation is indirect, lodge with thee, be found in thy company, share that regard which the according of hospitality, particularly in the east, involved. וְיִשְׁמַר masc. an evil person, or neut. evil; the latter affords a more exact parallel to וְיִשְׁמַר . God would seem to harbour sin if he tolerated it, or did not punish it.

6. וְיִשְׁמַר stand before thee as judge, endure the test of thy tribunal, or be suffered to continue in thy presence. וְיִשְׁמַר , nonentity, emptiness, barren of all that is virtuous and good, and since this negative state implies what is positively bad, iniquity.

7. וְיִשְׁמַר , since Jehovah hates sin, he will punish the sinner with destruction. וְיִשְׁמַר § 254. 9. b. וְיִשְׁמַר , see on Nah. 3 : 1.

8. וְיִשְׁמַר . The connection indicated by Vav will depend upon the sense put upon this verse. According to one view it is adversative: evil shall not dwell with thee, and thou wilt destroy the wicked, but I shall in thy great mercy be permitted to enter thy house, to be thy guest, to be on terms of friendship and familiarity with God. According to another view it is copulative: thou wilt destroy my wicked foes, and I in consequence will enter thy house to praise thee for this deliverance. To enter God's house may be spoken of as a token of familiarity and friendship, or as intimating that new matter of praise and thanksgiving would be afforded by granting him the deliverance for which he prays. לְפָנָי § 189. b. The tabernacle erected by David on Mount Zion, 2 Sam. 6 : 17, is the one particularly intended. The word strictly denotes the sacred edifice as distinguished from the court; the house of God includes the court; hence he speaks of entering God's house, but worshipping toward the palace or temple. The temple or tabernacle proper none but the priests could enter. The same distinction is preserved between ιερόν and ναός in the New Testament. : אֲנִי יְהוָה § 254. 9.

9. Beginning of the second stanza. אֲנִי יְהוָה lead me, the word is prevailingly used of divine guidance. אֲנִי יְהוָה has been understood to describe that course or way in which he prays to be led; thy righteousness, i. e. that righteousness which thou requirest, or which thou givest, comp. δικαιοσύνη Θεοῦ, Rom. 1 : 17. But why pray to be thus led 'on account of his enemies?' Various answers have been returned to this question; as lest without this divine guidance my enemies should seduce or terrify me into sin, or lest I should give them occasion to scoff by my inconsistencies, or to rejoice at the calamities which would befall me in consequence of my transgressions, or lest I should be punished by being delivered into their hands. But the context shows that the prayer is not so much for spiritual steadfastness as for deliverance from hostile machinations. 'Righteousness' is here the attribute of God. Lead me in the exercise of thy righteousness, i. e. protect me from my wicked foes. This appeal to God's righteousness rather than his mercy, looks at first sight like a claim to justification on the ground of his own merits. But it is to be observed, (1) that it is not a justification in the sight of God, which is in question, but in this controversy with his wicked enemies, whose hostility was groundless and sinful. (2) The righteousness of God, when spoken of in relation to his true people, always in the Old Testament includes his mercy. His righteousness is his rectitude in dealing with all according to their characters and relations. With the wicked he stands simply upon a footing of law, and his righteousness demands their punishment as their sins deserve. But the sins of the pious are atoned for, and he has made to them rich promises of grace, so that his rectitude now requires the fulfilment of these promises. It is to this righteousness, of which his covenant faithfulness is an essential part, that the Psalmist here, and the people of God generally under the Old Testament, so confidently make their appeal. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ . Gesenius assumes a root שׁ-מ-ר , and makes this a Kal part. Others make it a Pi. part. with נ omitted from שׁ-מ-ר , to watch, lie in wait, comp. § 93. e. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ § 46, K'thibh הוֹשִׁיעַ , K'ri הוֹשִׁיעַ § 150. 1 (p. 181), as fut. in Prov. 4:25, וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ . That the Hiphil form with ו was not admitted by the Masorites in this verb appears from their removing it in the only other passage in which it occurs, Isa. 45:2 וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ (וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ), K'ri וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ . וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ . The Vulgate transposes the suffixes and reads, 'make my way straight before thee.' Thy way is in this passage not the way which thou prescribest, the path of duty: make this level before me, or easy to walk in. It is rather the way in which thou leadest me; the path of my life, not of duty, but of destiny: make that providential course in which thou leadest me a smooth and easy one, by removing obstructions, sufferings, and trials.

10. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ . The reason of this appeal to God's righteousness against his enemies; for they are wicked and malignant. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ § 258. b. see on Gen. 40:8. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ § 220. 1. c. The mouth, throat, Ps. 115:7, and tongue, are spoken of as organs of speech, and their inward part or heart as the spring of what is outward. The singular suffix is distributive, 'mouth of each,' § 275. G. or collective. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ , the grave is spoken of, not as a pit endangering passers by, but as yawning to receive the dead, destructive and insatiable, Prov. 30:16. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ they make smooth their tongue, use fair and flattering speeches, to cloak their mischievous designs.

11. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ , not in the sense of וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ or וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ destroy; וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ means, to be guilty, Hi. make guilty, cause them to be recognized as such, treat them as such by inflicting deserved punishment. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ , some render, let them fall, or they shall certainly fall from their counsels, as in Lat. spe excidere, fail in their counsels, or their plans be frustrated; but there is no proof that וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ can be used in this sense. Better, let them fall, i. e. perish, וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ in causal sense, in consequence of, by means of. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ , prep. may have its local sense in, or its instrumental sense by.

12. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ § 255. 1. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ rejoice in thee, in their relation to thee and in the blessings consequent upon it. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ . The name of God expresses that which is known of him; it is the sum of his manifested attributes.

13. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ . The reason of their exultation. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ , indef. It may be taken individually or collectively. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ , the large shield, covering the entire person, different from וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ ; § 245. 5. d. as a shield protects, or as with a shield. וְיִשְׁמְרֵנוּ § 274. 2.

PSALM VI.

The idea is still that of the righteous persecuted by wicked enemies. Some suppose that the condition depicted is that of sore and dangerous disease; others, that what is said of bodily suffering, ver. 3, is a figure for inward distress occasioned by foes; the correct view appears to be, that the Psalmist is persecuted by foes, ver. 8, etc., which he regards as an evidence of the divine displeasure and rebuke for sin, ver. 2, and this is the occasion of physical exhaustion and undermined health. This is the first of the seven penitential Psalms, viz., 6, 32, 38, 51, 102, 130, 143. The period in David's life when it was written cannot be determined.

1. הַיָּמִינִי the eighth or octave, a musical term of doubtful meaning; it has been conjectured to mean an instrument of eight strings, or to denote the tone or key of performance, perhaps the bass.

The Psalm consists of two parts:

(1) vs. 2-8, a prayer enforced by the misery of his condition.

(2) vs. 9-11, confidence in the divine protection and deliverance.

2. $\text{אַל־תִּבְרַח־נָפְשִׁי}$, the prayer is not merely for mitigation, comp. Jer. 10 : 24, as though the meaning were, rebuke not with the severity of anger, but with the gentleness of love. He seeks the removal of the chastisement which always proceeds from displeasure against sin. $\text{יְהוָה־עָרַב־נַפְשִׁי}$, the rebuke of God, not uttered in words, but shown by his dealings, the inflictions of his providence.

3. יָצַד־נַפְשִׁי § 141. 3. יָצַד־נַפְשִׁי , 3 pers. Pual pret., I am one who has drooped, § 279. a, or abbreviated from יָצַד־נַפְשִׁי , either a verbal adj. or a Pual part. with נ omitted, § 93. e. The double accent being partly on one word and partly on the other, connects them as if they were joined by Makkeph. יָצַד־נַפְשִׁי are terrified, affected by my terror, lose their strength and elasticity: 'bones' are spoken of as the solid frame on which the body rests.

4. יָצַד־נַפְשִׁי . Both body (יָצַד־נַפְשִׁי) and soul were affected by this terror.

7. I am already weary, and if matters continue so, I will make my bed swim. יָצַד־נַפְשִׁי all night, or every night. In Baer's edition of the Psalms, from which the text is taken, Daghesh-forte is inserted in the initial letter of a word, whenever the preceding word ends in the same letter.

8. הַיָּמִינִי refers to the dimness of the eye produced by physical exhaustion or mental suffering. עָרַב־נַפְשִׁי , grief or indignation at treatment so unjust.

9. Upon the utterance of his prayer the Psalmist receives an inward assurance of divine protection and deliverance. יָצַד־נַפְשִׁי , their plans for his destruction would be abortive, and might as well be abandoned. קִי , for God had heard and would save. קוֹלִי voice of my weeping, i. e. my loud weeping.

11. שָׁמַיִם , they shall be brought to shame by the frustration of their plans. בְּיָדֵי־יְהוָה , by a divine retaliation they shall suffer the very thing which they have inflicted upon him, vs. 3. 4. שָׁבוּ , not in adverbial sense, § 269. a, they shall be ashamed again, nor of an inward change, they shall repent, but, they shall return, retreat, be driven back, their assault repelled, or they obliged to desist from it.

PSALM VII.

This completes the first series of Psalms relating to the hostility of the wicked against the righteous, by an impressive appeal to the future and certain judgment of God.

1. רָגַעְתִּי § 193. 2, is supposed by some to characterize the style of composition. $\text{רָגַעְתִּי} = \text{רָגַעְתִּי}$ to celebrate, hence 'a song,' or רָגַעְתִּי to stagger, hence a song of intoxication or strong excitement, a wild and irregular verse or measure, 'a dithyramb.' Or it may describe the subject; רָגַעְתִּי to err, hence 'error,' either in a physical sense, i. e. relating to David's wanderings, or, in a moral sense, transgression, i. e. relating to sin. לְדָבָר־לְפָנָיִם , not = לְדָבָר־לְפָנָיִם concerning the affair of, i. e. concerning, but concerning the words of. In vs. 4-6 the Psalmist clears himself of a slanderous charge. עֵשֶׂת , perhaps the real name of some adversary of David, otherwise unknown, one of those, it may be, who were perpetually afresh poisoning the mind of Saul towards him. Some have suspected that it is an enigmatical name of Saul himself, who might be called an Ethiopian, from the blackness of his heart. The Psalm may be divided as follows, viz.:

(1) vs. 2-6, supplication and appeal to God.

(2) vs. 7-18, God's judgment on transgressors.

Each part is capable of subdivision: thus the first part, vs. 2. 3, prayer for deliverance from extreme peril.

vs. 4-6, fortified by an asseveration of his innocence of what has been falsely imputed to him.

The second part into three portions of four verses each:

vs. 7-10, prayer for God's judgment.

vs. 11-14, confident assurance of it.

vs. 15-18, its actual infliction.

2. He pleads from his relation to God, and from his having in time past put his trust in him, that he may not be disappointed now. עֲצָרָה denotes enlargement, positive salvation, יִצְרָה is negative, extrication from peril : they are used interchangeably as poetic equivalents.

3. Argument from the extremity of his peril. The plural of the preceding verse is here exchanged for the singular, which may be understood collectively or distributively, or may be an individualization, referring to the most prominent and dangerous of his foes, viz. : Saul, whose hostility alone made others formidable. $\text{רָעָה$ rend as a lion, the most formidable and savage beast of prey, my soul, because the life was the object of attack. $\text{קָרַע$ crushing, breaking bones.

4. vs. 4. 5 are conditional, and the apodosis is contained in ver. 6. He is willing to abjure the divine aid, if he is as guilty as he is charged with being. אִם may refer back to the title, 'the words of Cush,' or to what follows, and is more fully explained in the next verse. $\text{יָדַי$ in my hands, as the instruments of action, if they are soiled by contact with the pollution of crime ; as the hands of a murderer are said to be stained with blood. Others suppose the hands to be regarded as instruments of seizure ; if there be plunder iniquitously taken in my hands as evidence of robbery and injustice.

5. Connect וְעַתָּה with אֲשֶׁר־עָלָה־בִּי , not with אֲשֶׁר־עָלָה־בִּי 'him who treated me ill.' וְעַתָּה , Eng. Ver. makes Vav adversative and the clause parenthetic. More recent interpreters regard Vav as copulative, and render וְעַתָּה to spoil, a sense which nowhere else occurs in the verb, but is justified by its derivative אֲשֶׁר־עָלָה־בִּי spoils. There seems to be an allusion to the opportunities which David had of injuring Saul in the cave at Engedi and wilderness of Ziph, but which he forbore to use ; and where, in exculpating himself to Saul, he referred to false accusations of this description, 1 Sam. 24 : 9, 26 : 19.

6. וְעַתָּה § 60. 2. a. The future has a jussive sense, as is shown by the following וְעַתָּה and וְעַתָּה . If guilty of these charges, he was willing to renounce all claim upon the divine interposition, and to have permission given to the enemy to pursue his soul, i. e. his life, with deadly intent, and not only pursue, but overtake and trample it to the earth. וְעַתָּה , complete, helpless, and contemptuous destruction, as of something vile and worthless. וְעַתָּה honour, personal, official, or both ; to bring this to the dust is to degrade him by the loss of it. Or it may denote the more honourable and exalted part of his nature, and thus be equivalent to 'life' and 'soul : ' and to bring it to the dust will then be to sink him to the grave.

7. Having stated his case, he now appeals to God, the judge of all, for his judgment. He prays that God's judgment on the world may begin, and that this particular portion of it, his own case, may be decided without further delay. הִשָּׁפֵט , see on 3: 8. אֲשׁוּבָה , either, lift up thyself, parallel to the preceding verb, or ascend the seat of judgment. בְּתוֹכָם , prep. in the midst of, and so because of or against. וְאָרָא awake, as if from sleep and previous inattention or neglect. $\text{לִי$ unto me, for my advantage, or a pregnant construction, § 272. 3, awake and turn to me. בְּפָנֶיךָ , not accusative of direction, ‘unto the judgment which thou hast commanded,’ but the object of the verb, thou hast commanded judgment, either justice which God has required to be practised, whence he is appealed to that he would now exercise the same, or rather a judicial process which he has resolved upon and appointed a time for executing.

8. The judgment scene is depicted. וְגֵוְהוּ congregation of nations, i. e. all nations, either as spectators, or themselves to be judged. וְאָרָא , either, after the judgment is complete ascend again triumphantly to heaven, or preparatory to the judgment resume the elevated judgment-seat, here called the high place; resume or return to it, because in suffering iniquity to be unpunished, he appeared for a season to have forsaken it.

9. He pleads from the necessary connection of God’s universal work of judgment with the dispensing of justice in his own case. God is to judge, or judges, is the judge of nations; judge me, do me justice. עָלַי , supply the relative, which is upon me, rests upon me, is possessed by me. Others render, which is over me as a protection and defence, or supply the substantive verb, ‘let it be upon me according to my righteousness.’ This desire to be treated according to his righteousness is not inconsistent with his supplications for divine mercy in the previous Psalm and elsewhere. He was guiltless as regarded man, and especially as regarded these existing charges and his existing foes, but not as regarded God.

10. The object of this judgment for which he prays, is the destruction of sin, rather than of the persons of the wicked, except so far as this is necessary to it, and the establishment and security of the righteous. וְהָרַגוּם , trans. or intrans. and וְהָרַגוּם , subject or object; hence three constructions are possible. (1) may evil (i. e. their sin) destroy the wicked; (2) may he put an end to the evil of the wicked; (3) may the evil of the wicked cease. Since God is addressed both before and after, the last is to be preferred. וְיִבְחַן a righteous God tries, or is a trier of hearts and reins. Or if the language of direct address is preserved in this clause, ‘thou, O righteous God, art a trier, etc.’ or ‘thou art a trier of hearts and reins, a righteous God.’ ‘Hearts and reins’ denote the interior nature and state of men, their inward character as well as their inward acts or exercises. This is an assertion not only of God's omniscience, that he is acquainted with what passes within men, but also of his justice, that he will deal with them accordingly, like a trier of metals who discriminates dross from gold.

11. The petition is followed by a confident expectation founded on the divine justice. יְהוָה , God, who is elsewhere called a shield, i. e. protection or defence, is here represented as sustaining the shield, providing for the defence of the Psalmist. My shield is upon God, rests upon him, is furnished or supported by him. The attribute ascribed to God in the following words is the ground of the confidence just expressed.

12. יְהוָה God judges, does justice to the righteous, or, God is a righteous judge. יְהוָה predicate, and יְהוָה subject, God is angry every day, or the former might qualify יְהוָה , if the prose usage of this word be insisted on, see on Nah. 1 : 2, and יְהוָה be the subject, God is a God who is angry every day.

13. יְהוָה if he, the wicked, shall not return, either inwardly repent or turn back from his assault and persecution. As God is the subject both before and after, some make it so in this clause by converting יְהוָה יְהוָה into an asseveration. In an oath, see on Gen. 42 : 15, יְהוָה has a negative sense, and יְהוָה יְהוָה an opposite or positive sense; surely he will return, sharpen his sword, will again sharpen it, § 269. a.

14. יְהוָה not ardent in pursuit, persecutors, but he will make his arrows to be burning, with allusion to the practice of hurling blazing darts.

15. He conceives mischief or harm to others and brings forth falsehood, that which disappoints his expectations; he ruins himself instead of those against whom he is plotting.

16. Figure from pits dug to entrap animals. יְהוָה he was making or was about to make, fut. relative to the preceding preterite, § 263. 1.

17. Comp. Obad. ver. 15.

18. Praise for God's just judgment on the wicked and his vindication of his servants. יְהוָה when used as a divine name does not receive the article, § 246. 1.

PSALM VIII.

A devout meditation upon God's condescending grace to man as shown in the rank assigned to him in the creation, and the dominion granted to him over the world. The divine goodness to man, which it is the aim of this Psalm to celebrate, is not to be estimated by his present fallen condition, which is the fruit of his own sin, but by the gifts and honours with which he was crowned in his primitive estate. It is man as God made him and designed him to be, who is here described, primeval man, ideal man. This ideal, imperfectly exhibited in man as he now is, finds full realization in Christ, of whom Adam was a type, and to whom the terms of the Psalm are therefore applicable in a more exalted sense than they were to him, Heb. 2:6-9, 1 Cor. 15:27. It shall hereafter be realized in all the people of God, who are to be restored in the image of Christ, and made partakers of his dignity and glory, and thus raised to a condition of which the primitive estate of man was but the image and the type.

1. תִּשְׁבַּח, by some derived from תַּב a wine-press, and thought to denote a style of music connected with the vintage; by others from the city of Gath, whence the instrument or tune so designated may have been borrowed; and by others still from תַּבְּלָה, in the sense of the music of stringed instruments.

The Psalm recounts,

(1) vs. 2-4, the evidences of God's greatness, as preliminary to the consideration of,

(2) vs. 5-10, his wonderful grace to man.

2. יְהוָה § 201. 2, plur. suf., the Psalmist speaks not merely for himself as an individual, but for all the people of God, or for all men. יְהוָה, the name of God, i. e. that which is known of him, the revelation which he has made of himself, see on 1 Sam. 17:45, Ps. 5:11. יְהוָה § 132. 1. This word has greatly embarrassed interpreters. Some make it 3 f. pret. for תַּבְּלָה, as תַּבְּלָה 2 Sam. 22:41 for תַּבְּלָה, which, viz. the earth, has given thy glory above the heavens, i. e. has caused thy praises to reach the skies. Others, as in all the other passages in which this form occurs, imper. with תַּבְּלָה paragogic, which give even thy glory above the heavens, make it still more conspicuous. But the connection seems to demand, not a prayer for enhancing God's glory, but a declaration of its conspicuity and greatness. It seems better, therefore, to regard it as a Kal infin. תַּבְּלָה for תַּבְּלָה or תַּבְּלָה, as תַּבְּלָה Gen. 46:3 for תַּבְּלָה § 148. 2, whose glory is given, put upon the heavens, lit. the giving of whose glory is, etc. The glory of God is displayed in the heavens, and his name is thus made resplendent in all the earth.

3. This glory is so self-evidencing that babes may be trusted to defend it against blaspheming foes. בָּנֵי חַיִל, not babes in the spiritual sense, as opposed to the wise and prudent, Matt. 11:25, but young children; enough is palpable to them to constitute an irrefragable argument of God's greatness and glory. יְהוָה, out of the utterances of these feeble advocates God has founded strength, constructed a power to still the proudest foes. In such a cause a child can confute the most learned and subtle infidel. For 'strength' the LXX substitute 'praise;' this rendering is retained in Matt. 12 : 16 as substantially equivalent to the original, inasmuch as the strength referred to consists in the conscious or unconscious praises of infancy and childhood. The word עַז, however, does not properly mean 'praise,' though Gesenius incorrectly attributes this meaning to it here and in a few other passages.

4. חַיִּים וְעוֹלָם § 183. c, figure from human organs of construction. חַיִּים § 247. וְעוֹלָם § 86. b (2 m. s.).

5. וְיָבִיט, God is said to visit men when he manifests himself to them either in mercy or in judgment; the former is here particularly referred to. The future in this and the following verbs has its habitual sense, § 263. 4, describing what God is constantly doing. The sentence begun in the preceding verse extends through the first clause of ver. 7.

6. וְעַל־מַיִם § 265. a. עַל־מַיִם denotes degree, a little; in the ideal application of this Psalm to Christ it might also have its temporal sense, a little while, Heb. 2 : 7. 9. מַלְאָכָיו, for 'God' the LXX substitute 'angels,' which is retained Heb. 2 : 7, since the main idea is expressed with sufficient accuracy. The Psalmist alludes to the fact that man was made in the image of God.

7. אָדָם, man was constituted the head of the material and animal creation. But as applied to Christ, the ideal man, in whom and by whom our lapsed nature is restored, these words obtain a higher than their original sense, and 'all' may be pressed to the widest possible extent of meaning, and embrace, as the apostle in commenting upon it explains, absolutely all things but God himself, 1 Cor. 15 : 27, Eph. 1 : 22, Heb. 2 : 8.

8. This verse contains two poetic forms, וְעוֹלָם for וְעוֹלָם, or as it is once written, וְעוֹלָם, and וְעוֹלָם for וְעוֹלָם; also one word of rare occurrence, וְעוֹלָם, equivalent in sense to the more usual and prosaic וְעוֹלָם. The enumeration begins with the domestic animals as the most useful and the most completely under human control, proceeds thence to wild beasts, and thence to the inhabitants of the other elements, the birds of the air above, the fish in the waters beneath.

9. וְעוֹלָם cannot agree with וְעוֹלָם, but is a parallel and more comprehensive expression.

10. This verse repeats the sentiment with which the Psalm began, and of which a fresh proof has now been exhibited. God's name rendered glorious by the frame of material nature is still more exalted and ennobled by his condescending grace to man.

PSALM XXII.

The basis of this Psalm is to be sought in the typical experience of the Psalmist, the prophetic significance of which is herein developed. David, though a true servant of God, was exposed to severe suffering from the persecution of wicked men, was finally delivered, and in consequence of this deliverance grateful homage was paid to God by him and by others to whom this act of grace was made known. This was not an anomalous experience, but a law of the kingdom of God, destined to be verified not only in other instances like his own, but on a vastly greater scale in One who should be the righteous sufferer par excellence, and whose sufferings, coupled with his final extrication out of them, should result in the offering of grateful praise to God from all mankind in every age. The extremity of the sufferings described, and especially the consequences to follow upon their termination, are such as David could not, by the most strained exaggeration, have imputed to his own case. It is evident that he is speaking in the name of the Messiah, considered as the ideal of righteous sufferers. The same thing appears from the adoption of the first words of this Psalm by our Lord upon the cross, and the application of its language to him in repeated instances in the New Testament.

1. $\text{הַיְחַדְּלֵנוּ הַיְחַדְּלֵנוּ}$. Some suppose the hind of the dawn to be the name of a tune or of a song whose melody was to be used in singing this Psalm; others think it to be an enigmatical description of the subject, 'the hind' perhaps a figure for persecuted innocence, with the 'dawn' of a happier morning after a night of suffering and sorrow; or, 'the hind of the dawn' may be a fanciful description of the breaking day, the first branching beams as they struggle into view being compared to antlers.

vs. 2-11, prayer for deliverance enforced by the speaker's relation to God.

vs. 12-22, by the greatness of the peril.

vs. 23-32, praise for deliverance and its blessed results.

2. לָמָּה , see on Nah. 1 : 2. That God was his God was itself a plea why he should be heard. לָמָּה § 231. 4. a. לָמָּה , for which $\sigma\alpha\beta\alpha\chi\delta\alpha\upsilon\iota$, לָמָּה Matt. 27 : 46 is the Chaldee equivalent. לָמָּה may agree directly with the subject of the preceding verb, or the interrogation may be repeated, 'why art thou far, etc.' לָמָּה , coördinate with the preceding noun and governed by the same preposition, לָמָּה ; though others read, the words of my roaring are far § 275. 1 from my salvation, i. e. far from effecting it; and others still, 'my God, etc. etc.' are the words of my roaring.

4. שׁוֹרֵף . The God whom the sufferer addresses is holy, that is according to the proper sense of the original expression, see on Isa. 40 : 25, 41 : 14, infinitely exalted and perfectly pure. He might, therefore, be expected to possess both the ability and the disposition to save his oppressed servant. בְּשִׁוּבִי inhabiting, i. e. either dwelling among so as to be surrounded by, or sitting enthroned upon the praises of Israel. These praises imply attributes, to which he makes his urgent appeal.

5. Argument from God's past covenant faithfulness as shown to those who were Messiah's fathers according to the flesh.

7. רַחֲמָיִם , despicable and helpless, liable to be crushed. Comp. Isa. 41 : 14, 49 : 7, 53 : 3.

8. וַיִּצְרֹף , these gestures of derision are expressly mentioned in the narrative of the crucifixion, Mat. 27 : 39, Mark 15 : 29.

9. לָךְ , not the infin. for the pret. he rolled, § 268. 1, as it is rendered by the LXX, but the imper. roll, devolve thy cause upon Jehovah, commit it to him, comp. Ps. 37 : 5, Prov. 16 : 3. A taunting and ironical suggestion made to the sufferer by the unfeeling beholders before described, who then proceed to speak of him in the third person, § 279. The evangelist records the utterance at the cross of these identical expressions and others like them, Mat. 27 : 43. וַיִּצְרֹף , the subject is Jehovah, not the sufferer, since this verb is used to describe the feelings of God toward men, but never those of men toward God.

10. יָצָא . The taunt was just. They may well say, God has delighted in me, for thy kind care was bestowed upon me from my birth. וַיִּצְרֹף § 157. 1, thou art my breaking forth, i. e. the one who brought me forth. וַיִּצְרֹף , giving me ground for trust, before I was capable of its conscious exercise, by thy gracious dealings with me.

11. וַיִּצְרֹף , this section of the Psalm closes, as it began, with the argument which has thus far been persistently pressed.

12. The second argument on which his petition is based, the proximity of the danger, and his destitution of any other source of help. The second וַיִּצְרֹף is coördinate with the first, and both are dependent on וַיִּצְרֹף .

13-16. His enemies, who have him completely in their power, are compared to bulls reared on the rich but solitary pastures of Bashan, and to lions. The weakness verging on dissolution, to which they have reduced him, is set forth under the emblems of water, and melted wax, and dislocated bones. The vigour and moisture of his frame is dried out, it is dry as a potsherd, and his parched tongue cleaves to his jaws. It has been suggested that the physical effects of crucifixion are here precisely described, the violent wrenching of the body, the extreme debility and exhaustion, and the raging thirst, John 19 : 28. וַיִּצְרֹף , what was accomplished by his murderous enemies was nevertheless, under another aspect, the act of God. The persecution has reached its last stage; thou wilt, if this murderous treatment is allowed to proceed further, place me to the dust of death, i. e. the grave, bring me down to it and place me there.

17. קָרַי , the proof that he is, as he has just declared, at the very point of death. הִקְרַיָּנִי § 275. 2 or § 277. כְּאֵרֶיִךְ like a lion they have encircled or beset me as to my hands and my feet, § 271. 4, or as we might say, 'hand and foot,' so that I can neither resist nor flee. Dr. Alexander suggests as a point of comparison, "the infliction of sharp wounds in those parts of the body, an idea common to the habits of the lion and the usages of crucifixion." The explanation of קָרַי as a plur. part. from קָרַר , which, though it does not occur elsewhere, might easily mean to pierce, see Gesenius Lexicon, involves the double anomaly of the insertion of א § 156. 3, and the omission of ם from the plural ending, § 199. b. An inconsiderable number of manuscripts read קָרְרַי or קָרְרַיִם they pierced. They appear to be confirmed by the LXX, Aquila, the Syriac Peshito, and Jerome, who render this word as a verb, though with some variety in the signification which they assign to it. The Masora (according to Jacob ben Chayim, the learned editor of the Venetian Rabbinical Bible, 1525) remarks that קָרַיִם occurs twice in different senses, viz.: in Isa. 38 : 13, where it undoubtedly means as a lion, and Ps. 22 : 17, where the K'ri has קָרַיִם , and the K'thibh קָרַיִם . De Rossi (Variae Lectiones, vol. iv.), however, confesses that he could find no such remark in any of the numerous copies which he possessed of the Masora. On the whole, the reading with ר , though adopted into the text, or at least put on a par with the received reading by several able critics, seems to have the overwhelming preponderance of critical authorities against it.

18. הִקְרַיָּנִי , not his bones but his foes. $\text{וְהִקְרַיָּנִי בְּרֵאשִׁיתִי}$, see on Gen. 44 : 34, gaze at me, feast themselves with the spectacle of my misery.

19. וְהִקְרַיָּנִי , in the sense of the unfinished present, § 263. 2, are dividing, or proximate future, are about to divide, on the point of dividing. They are so sure of the death of their victim as to be already apportioning his garments amongst themselves. The exactness of its fulfilment is testified by all four of the evangelists, Mat. 27 : 35, Mark 15 : 24, Luke 23 : 34, John 19 : 23. 24. $\text{וְעַל-כֵּן בִּישְׁתֵּי}$, for Daghesh-forte conjunctive, see on 6 : 7.

20. $\text{וְעַל-כֵּן בִּישְׁתֵּי}$ § 243. 1, the pronoun expressed on account of the emphasis of the opposition. They are acting thus, and therefore do not thou refuse or delay thine aid.

21. כִּלְבָּנֵי מוֹת , poetic individualization of deadly hostile weapons. נַפְשִׁי , not merely me but my soul, i. e. my life, see on 3:2. מִיַּדְּךָ from the hand, i. e. from the power of, see on Gen. 37:21. In this derived sense of the phrase it is here joined with 'dog,' as in 1 Sam. 17:37 with 'lion' and 'bear.' Others think it to be an indication that under the figure of 'dogs' men are intended. יְהוָה יְחַיֵּנִי , shown by the parallel expression נַפְשִׁי to be an epithet of his life; my only one, either as possessing singular value, my darling, my most highly prized, or more strictly the only life he possessed or could have; or it may be my lonely one, my life deserted as it seems to be by God as well as men.

22. מִבְּחֹרְנוֹתַי for מִבְּחֹרְנוֹתַי , by § 53. 3; and from the horns of the buffaloes thou hast answered me, i. e. answered my prayer proceeding from between their horns, or answered by delivering me from their horns, § 272. 3. Others, contrary to the accents, put a full stop after 'buffaloes,' connecting all that precedes with יְהוָה יְחַיֵּנִי . וְנִצְּרָתִי , the deliverance prayed for is granted. This sudden transition prepares the way for the third and last division of the Psalm. The Psalmist sets forth the severity of Messiah's sufferings, but makes no explicit mention of his death. The vicarious nature of these sufferings is not declared, nor the direct connection which they have with the salvation of the world; while stress is chiefly laid upon the results effected by his exaltation from this extremity of woe. The view presented is of course a partial one, being limited by the character of the type, which it is the province of the Psalm to unfold. In the respects referred to it is supplemented by Isa. 53.

23. $\text{אֲדַבֵּר שֵׁם יְהוָה}$ declare thy name, i. e. recount the manifestations which God has made of his glorious perfections, see on 5:11. It is here said with special reference to the exhibition of his power and grace just made. Quoted as the language of Messiah, Heb. 2:12.

25. וְיָרֵא § 92. c.

26. מִמֶּנִּי from with thee, not merely respecting thee, but derived from thee. וְיָרֵא , change of person, § 279.

27. וְיָרֵא , partake of the sacrificial or eucharistic festival implied or referred to in the last clause of the preceding verse, symbolizing communion with God and all spiritual blessings. וְיָרֵא , by some supposed to be the customary formula of benediction pronounced by the offerer of the sacrifice upon those who partook with him of the festival; which might account for the change of person.

28. $\text{זְכֹר יְהוָה יְהוָה}$ remember the evidence now afforded of Jehovah's grace to his suffering servant, or remember God himself, whom the heathen have forgotten, 9:18. וְיָרֵא , see on 2:8. וְיָרֵא , the blessing thus wrought shall be co-extensive with that which it was promised Abraham should be effected through his seed, Gen. 12 : 3.

29. All nations shall thus worship Jehovah, for they are rightfully his. Comp. Obad. ver. 21. לְעַמֵּי הָאָרֶץ , the pronoun is often omitted even before participles, when the subject can be readily supplied from the context, § 243. 1.

30. לְעַמֵּי הָאָרֶץ , the figure of the sacrificial festival is continued. This salvation shall not only extend to all nations, but to all classes; the fat ones of the earth, they who have a prosperous abundance, as well as those who are perishing in abject destitution, going down to the dust, the grave, and he who, § 285. 3, has not kept his soul alive, though dying or actually dead, he shall partake of this soul-reviving food, and shall live.

31. These benefits shall further be shared by every age. לְדוֹר וָדוֹר seed, the descendants of those just spoken of, or posterity in general. $\text{וְיִסְתַּדְּרֶנָּה לְפָנֶיךָ יְיָ אֱלֹהֵינוּ$ it shall be related of the Lord to the next generation; the LXX connect the following $\text{וְיִסְתַּדְּרֶנָּה}$ with this verse, $\gamma\epsilon\upsilon\epsilon\acute{\alpha}\ \eta\ \epsilon\rho\chi\omicron\mu\acute{\epsilon}\nu\eta$, but this is unnecessary. This rendering gives to the verb the same sense as in ver. 23, and is to be preferred to it, posterity, shall be reckoned (a figure from the census or enrollment, as Ps. 87 : 6) unto or by the Lord to the generation, comp. Ps. 24 : 6, i. e. to the number of his true people.

32. $\text{וְיִסְתַּדְּרֶנָּה}$, the participle denotes a time contemporaneous with the action of the preceding verb, § 266. 3, a people not now in existence, but who shall then be born.

PSALM XLV.

Messiah is here presented as the ideal bridegroom. The typical basis was probably afforded by the marriage of Solomon to a foreign princess, perhaps, as many have conjectured, to the daughter of Pharaoh, king of Egypt. It cannot, however, be an ode composed in honour of that marriage. This is forbidden by its position in the book of Psalms, and its reception into the canon. A secular poem could find no place there, and would be entirely without analogy. The royal bridegroom is a divine person, ver. 7, to whom a universal reign, ver. 17, and endless homage, ver. 18, are promised. Tyre, which was never subject to any king of Israel, makes her submission to him, ver. 13. In addition to one who is designated the queen, other virgins and kings' daughters, her fellows, are upon the same occasion wedded to the king, vs. 9. 14. 15, which is contrary to the usages of real life, though significant as an allegory. Martial qualities are imputed to the king, vs. 3-5, and a line of royal ancestors, ver. 16 ; neither of which could be attributed to Solomon. Hence this Psalm has, from the earliest times, been regarded as a mystic epithalamium, representing under a figure frequently employed in both the Old and the New Testaments the union of the Lord and his people, of Christ and his church. Its admission into the canon, it is now generally confessed, proves that it was so understood at the time the canon was formed. The Targum so expounds it. The application of it to Christ, Heb. 1 : 8. 9, both implies that this view was then prevalent, and sets the seal of inspired authority upon it. Its messianic character has been almost universally recognized by Christian interpreters, and though denied by the unbelief of modern times in its repugnance to admit predictions of Christ, no other satisfactory solution has been or can be proposed.

1. $\text{עֲשֵׂה לִי שִׁיר} - \text{לְזֶמֶר}$ upon lilies, which some explain to mean, lily-shaped instruments ; others, a tune bearing that name, or associated with a song so called ; others, an enigmatical description of the subject, 'lilies' being a figure for beautiful women, Sol. Song, 2 : 2. $\text{הַבָּנִים} - \text{לְזֶמֶר}$ belonging to the sons of Korah, a Levitical family, employed with others by the appointment of David 'in the service of song in the house of the Lord,' 1 Chron. 6 : 16. 22 (Eng. Ver. vs. 31. 37), 2 Chron. 20 : 19. It belonged to them, probably, in the sense of being committed to them for musical performance, though others think that it was composed by them. לְמִשְׁכְּלֵי , an instructive or didactic Psalm ; this title would only be appropriate upon the allegorical interpretation, and may have been prefixed with the view of suggesting at the outset that this is not a mere marriage ode, and of leading the reader to seek for a deeper meaning. נְשֵׂי יְדִיָּוִת lovely women, though some give to the fem. plur. a neuter sense, lovely things, or an abstract, § 201. 1. a, love.

After an introduction, ver. 2, declaring the Psalmist's interest in his exalted theme, follow,

- (1) vs. 3-10, the praises of the king.
- (2) vs. 11-16, the queen and the wedding festivities.
- (3) vs. 17. 18, conclusion.

In (1) and (3) the king is addressed ; in (2) the queen.

2. רַב־מַלְכִי is governed by אֲנִי , not by אֲנִי , which is forbidden by the accents. אֲנִי may govern אֲנִי , or it may stand absolutely, I am saying : my works are or let them be for the king, or respecting the king. לְשׁוֹנִי § 247. עַל my tongue is, or may it be the pen, etc., i. e. rapidly record the language of my thoughts.

3. $\text{תְּהִי} - \text{לִי}$ might appear to be formed by the reduplication of the first two radicals, and so it is in fact frequently explained. This would, however, be entirely anomalous and without analogy. On the other hand, there are instances both in verbs, § 92. a, and nouns, § 188, of the reduplication of the last two radicals, e. g. רָבַרְבַּר, קָבַקְבַּב. A like formation from קָרַר = יָרַר § 168, would yield יָרַרְיָר, comp. the related adjective יָרַרְיָר. The first Yodh then receives Kamets Hhatuph as the vowel of the passive reduplicated species, § 93. a, and the second Yodh a pretonic Kamets, § 64. 2, lest in its weakness its sound might be entirely lost. The ascription of superhuman beauty to an earthly monarch would be gross flattery. קָרַרְיָר § 199. d, grace, which has the same two-fold sense in Hebrew as in English of favour and beauty, is predicated of the lips not as a feature of the face but as an organ of speech. The reference is to ‘the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth,’ Luke 4 : 22. קָרַרְיָר cannot mean because, propterea quod, but must mean therefore. This is by some attenuated to the declaration that his more than human beauty and his grace of speech indicate that God has blessed him, and that forever; a slender basis, it must be confessed, for so grand a conclusion, if external form and the charms of eloquence are intended. But even thus the everlasting blessing implies the unending life of its recipient; he must consequently be more than mortal man. If, however, the particle be allowed its proper force, ‘therefore’ denotes not an index merely, but the ground. And as physical beauty and persuasive speech can be no ground for the bestowment of the divine blessing, this is an evidence of the allegorical character of the description. They must represent spiritual qualities, the beauty of holiness and words of heavenly grace and truth.

4. The conquests by which his empire is extended, are set forth not in a bald, prosaic description, but more poetically, by summoning him to do what he actually will perform. He is bidden to gird his sword upon his thigh, i. e. to prepare for martial deeds, and at the same time to gird on, as though constituting the garment with which he is invested, his glory and his majesty, terms which are repeatedly combined elsewhere to denote the divine dignity, Ps. 96 : 6, as well as the splendour of a divinely bestowed royalty, Ps. 21 : 6.

5. קָרַרְיָר § 274. 2. e, in the royal dignity thus securely girt about him he should press on to valiant deeds and victories. קָרַרְיָר, either pass on, press through, or prosper; if the latter, it will qualify the following verb, § 269. a. קָרַרְיָר, either in the military chariot or on the war horse, Hab. 3 : 8, Rev. 19 : 11. קָרַרְיָר § 205. b, for the sake of truth and meekness and righteousness, i. e. in vindication of those who possess these qualities or represent these principles, or else on account of his own possession of these attributes. קָרַרְיָר, the right hand is personified and

6. $\text{בְּיָמֶיךָ} \text{דֶּבְרָה}$ depends on $\text{בְּיָמֶיךָ} \text{שָׁמַעְתָּ}$, the intervening words forming a parenthesis. יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ , the same who is addressed, but here reverentially spoken of in the third person, see on Gen. 41:13.

7. $\text{יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ} \S 221. 3. a.$ The natural and obvious rendering of these words, found in all the ancient versions, and sanctioned by the authority of the New Test., Heb. 1:8, is, thy throne, O God, is forever and ever. As the divine nature of Messiah is either taught or implied in other passages both of the Psalms and of the prophets, it can create no difficulty that he is here addressed as God. At any rate, this evident sense of the words cannot be set aside by such forced and rare, if not impossible constructions as, thy throne of God, i. e. divinely bestowed or established, § 256. b. or thy throne is the throne of God.

8. יָרִיבֶנְךָ , an allusion to the practice of anointing the body, particularly on festive occasions. To anoint with the oil of gladness is to make superlatively glad. בְּיָמֶיךָ might be a vocative, as in ver. 7, but it seems better to make it the subject of the preceding verb. $\text{יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ} \text{יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ}$ thy fellows in regal dignity, i. e. other kings. The peculiar joy granted to him above others is in part, at least, that which belongs to the imposing nuptials about to be described.

9. $\text{רָאֵה} \text{all thy garments are myrrh, etc.,}$ so filled with these perfumes that they appear to consist of them. בְּיָמֶיךָ , palaces of ivory, the rooms of which were wainscoted or adorned with ivory, comp. 1 Kin. 22:39, Am. 3:15. $\text{רָאֵה} \S 199. b.$ is by some thought to be an abbreviated plural for $\text{בְּיָמֶיךָ} \text{stringed instruments have gladdened thee;}$ but as the existence of such a form of the plural is, to say the least, extremely doubtful, it is better to regard it as a prolonged form of the prep. רָאֵה emphatically repeated after the noun, comp. Isa. 59:18, from ivory palaces, from them, I say. The subject of the following verb will then be indefinite, § 243. 2. All kinds of delights were provided in these sumptuous palaces for this festive occasion.

10. The queen is in the allegory the church or chosen people; the kings' daughters are representatives of their several nations. $\text{יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ} \S 14. a.$ § 24. b. $\text{רָאֵה} \text{not merely stands but is placed}$ at thy right hand, this being the post of honour.

11. The Psalmist has thus far been occupied with the king, his character and greatness, and his part in these grand festivities. He now turns to the queen, and reverting to the time immediately preceding the marriage which is already presupposed, ver. 10, finds her still in her father's house, awaiting the nuptial procession, and directs to her some preliminary counsels, vs. 10–13. הַבַּ, a familiar form of address adopted by seniors, Ruth 2 : 8, or by teachers and advisers, Mat. 9 : 22.

12. וַיִּשְׁתַּחֲוֶה and let the king desire, equivalent to, so that he may desire. וַיִּשְׁתַּחֲוֶה § 201. 2, comp. Gen. 39 : 2. וַיִּשְׁתַּחֲוֶה § 176. 1, denotes prostration, either in token of respect or of religious worship, and is hence particularly appropriate in describing the homage to be paid to this divine bridegroom.

13. בַּת-צִיּוֹן, not a vocative, O daughter of Tyre, as some have rendered it, on the hypothesis that the Psalm celebrates the marriage of Solomon with a Tyrian princess, or still more extravagant and incredible, that of Ahab with Jezebel, who was of the royal house of Zidon, 1 Kin. 16 : 31. Daughter of Tyre, like daughter of Zion, daughter of Babylon, daughter of Egypt, is a personification of its inhabitants, and is here the subject of the following verb which agrees with it as a collective in the plural, § 275. 2 ; the same verb is to be supplied to וְצִיּוֹן. Tyre is singled out on account of its wealth and commercial prosperity, with allusion to which ‘the rich of the people,’ i. e. the richest § 254. 2. a of every nation, וְצִיּוֹן, in the same wide, indefinite sense as Isa. 42 : 6.

14. בְּבֵית־אָבִיהָ within, i. e. in her father’s palace, and ready for the procession which is to convey her to the house of the bridegroom.

15. To add to the significance of the allegory the usages of real life are here departed from, and the virgin companions of the bride, identical with the kings’ daughters, ver. 10, are themselves also conducted to the king precisely as the bride was. They too are wedded to him, signifying that Gentile nations shall be with Israel, and like Israel espoused to Messiah, and share the blessings of his love and favour. וְצִיּוֹן, for sense of prep. see on Gen. 2 : 18. וְצִיּוֹן § 65. a, suf. is masc. referring to the king.

17. His sons shall replace or eclipse his ancestors, be kings as they had been, and more illustrious, inasmuch as he would partition his wide empire among them, comp. 2 Sam. 8 : 18, 1 Kin. 4 : 7, 2 Chron. 11 : 28. וְצִיּוֹן, not in all the land, but in all the earth, as appears from the subjugation, ver. 6, and homage, ver. 18, of the nations, and the submission of Tyre, ver. 13.

18. The church, in whose name the Psalmist speaks, shall render everlasting praise to the king, in which the nations shall join. וְצִיּוֹן therefore, stimulated by the praise of the church, or referring back to the previous contents of the Psalm, which are also the ground of the pledge given in the preceding clause.

PSALM LXXII.

Messiah as the ideal Solomon. The reign of the former is depicted in features drawn from the latter, but freed from all imperfection and limitation, extended over all the earth and reaching through all time. Its universality and unending duration absolutely preclude any other subject. It could not, by the most strained exaggeration, be applied to Solomon himself, either in the way of description or of hopes indulged and supplications offered on his behalf. He neither ruled the whole world, nor cherished any expectation of doing so. This kingdom is described in its equity, vs. 1-4, perpetuity and everlasting consequences, vs. 5-7, universality, vs. 8-11, protection of the needy and defenceless, vs. 12-15, prosperity and renown, vs. 16. 17. The Psalm is concluded or followed by a doxology, vs. 18. 19, and a subscription, ver. 20.

1. מִלְּבָרָה, prep. as in וְיָרֵם 3 : 1, by Solomon, lit. 'belonging to Solomon' as its author. אֲשֶׁר־עָשָׂה, not thy rights or prerogatives, but thy judgments, judicial decisions, and this not merely as precedents for his guidance, but make thy infallible decisions his, give to his administration the perfection of thine. יְיָ is in form a prayer; but as the Psalmist asks for that which he knows will certainly be granted, it is equivalent to a prediction with the added force of an earnest desire for its accomplishment. מֶלֶךְ־בְּרִיָּה § 247, the king's son, is the same as the king of the first clause, who is thus declared to be of royal descent.

2. וְיָרֵם, the form of petition is exchanged for that of confident assertion. אֲשֶׁר־עָשָׂה thy afflicted ones, either equivalent to thy people, who are characteristically sufferers, or distinguishing those amongst them who are in a peculiarly suffering condition, inasmuch as God is the especial patron of such, and under a less beneficent and impartial government they would be exposed to injustice and oppression. :עָשָׂה־בְּיָדְךָ in the exercise of justice.

3. This equal government shall be productive of peace, which is represented as springing up from the soil, borne by the mountains and hills, which fitly represent the country as its prominent features and constituting so considerable a portion of the whole. The fertility of the hills of ancient Palestine, which were terraced and cultivated to their summits, adds to the beauty and appositeness of the figure. יָשׁוּב: belongs to both clauses of the verse, and is qualified by :הָרֵם־בְּיָדְךָ § 22. a (5), which shows the mode of the production; this harvest of peace, in its wide sense of welfare and prosperity as well as freedom from strife and war, is brought forth by righteousness.

4. לִשְׁפֹּט : judge, do justice to. $\text{בְּנֵי אֲנָשִׁים עֲנִיִּים}$ sons of the needy, not merely poor, but born in poverty, and therefore without rich and influential friends.

5. יְיָ אֱלֹהֵינוּ , suf. refers to God, who is addressed ver. 1, while the king is spoken of throughout in the third person. The unending prevalence of piety shall be the result of this righteous reign, of course implying the perpetuity of the reign itself. $\text{כְּגֵזֶרֶת שֶׁל שֶׁמֶשׁ}$ with the sun, as long as it exists, comp. Dan. 3 : 33. $\text{בְּיָמֵי הַיָּרֵחַ}$ before the moon, as long as it is present and shines upon them. $\text{דָּוָר דְּרָגָלִים}$, an idiomatic phrase, which occurs likewise 102 : 25, Is. 51 : 8, denoting perpetual duration, whether it is to be explained as an emphatic repetition, like $\text{דָּוָר דְּרָגָלִים}$ Ex. 3 : 15, Prov. 27 : 24, or the more usual $\text{דָּוָר דְּרָגָלִים}$ § 280. 2 and a, generation upon generations, or as in the construct relation, generation of generations, a superlative combination, § 254. 2. a, like king of kings, servant of servants, a period embracing all generations within itself, or beside which ordinary generations are insignificant.

6. Figure denoting beneficent influence.

8. The extent of his dominion. It is the kingdom of Solomon expanded to the dimensions of the earth itself. The language here used takes its shape from the bounds assigned to the promised land, Ex. 23 : 31, omitting its limitations. 'From the Red sea even unto the sea of the Philistines' becomes 'from sea to sea,' i. e. from ocean to ocean, from side to side of the sea-surrounded continents. 'From the desert unto the river' becomes 'from the river unto the ends of the earth,' i. e. from the Euphrates in both directions to the utmost limits of the world. $\text{וְיָרֵד עַד הַיָּם הַיְבֵשֶׁת}$ § 172. 4, let him have dominion, or may he have dominion, either an authoritative proclamation or a return to the form of petition with which the Psalm began, see on ver. 1.

9. To this universal submission there shall be no exception. Even $\text{בְּנֵי אֲנָשִׁים עֲנִיִּים}$, rude and barbarous tribes, shall own his sway. $\text{כְּגֵזֶרֶת שֶׁל שֶׁמֶשׁ}$, figure of complete prostration, suggesting too, perhaps, that in them is realized the doom of the serpent and his seed, Gen. 3 : 14.

10. He shall receive tribute from the most distant and wealthy monarchs. $\text{וְיָרֵד עַד הַיָּם הַיְבֵשֶׁת}$, see on Isa. 40 : 15. $\text{וְיָרֵד עַד הַיָּם הַיְבֵשֶׁת}$, the same phrase is used of the payment of tribute, 2 Kin. 17 : 3 ; the same verb with $\text{וְיָרֵד עַד הַיָּם הַיְבֵשֶׁת}$, which here stands in the parallel clause, in Ezek. 27 : 15. Some have thought that the verb suggests the notion of the repeated payments exacted from vassals, who are required to return with it again and again ; more probably it implies a return or compensation for benefits received. $\text{וְיָרֵד עַד הַיָּם הַיְבֵשֶׁת}$ 1 Kin. 10 : 1.

11. $\text{וְיָרֵד עַד הַיָּם הַיְבֵשֶׁת}$, see on 45 : 12.

12. $\text{וְיָרֵד עַד הַיָּם הַיְבֵשֶׁת}$. The homage thus yielded to him by every nation, is due to his character as a ruler. They shall serve him because, etc. וַיִּשְׁתַּחֲוֶינָהּ § 285. 3.

14. וַיִּקְרָא § 147. 4, their blood shall be precious, he sets a high value upon their life and will not suffer it to be destroyed, comp. 116 : 15, 1 Sam. 26 : 21, 2 Kin. 1 : 13. 14.

15. וַיִּחַי, the subject of this and of the following verbs is the ransomed poor of the preceding verses taken distributively, § 275. 6 ; and let him live and he will give to him, his Redeemer and King, of the gold of Sheba in acknowledgment of the favour shown him, and in token of subjection to his sway, and he shall pray for him for the increase of his glory and the advancement of his cause and kingdom. The jussive form has here a conditional force, as surely as he lives he will do this. Others make Messiah the subject of some or all the verbs in this verse.

16. Its prosperity set forth under the figure of the unexampled multiplication of the products of the earth. Let there be a handful of grain in the earth or land, on the top of mountains even, in spots least favourable for its cultivation and growth, and it shall produce a harvest that shall wave and rustle in the breeze like the cedars of Lebanon. וַיִּשְׁבַּח, the jussive, as in ver. 15, is conditional. וְהָרְעַב, some render abundance. A like rapid increase of its inhabitants. וְהָיָה הַיָּרֵךְ the city, the abode of men, comp. Num. 24 : 19.

17. וַיִּחַי, apoc. fut. see on ver. 8. וַיִּשְׁבַּח, see on ver. 5. וְיִרְצֶה K'ri, וְיִרְצֶה K'thibh. וְיִרְצֶה § 35. 1, bless themselves by him, the richest blessings shall be his, so that men can desire nothing higher for themselves or others than to be like him, Gen. 48 : 20, or be blessed in him, i. e. in virtue of their union to him or connection with him.

18. According to the prevalent opinion this doxology, however appropriate after so enraptured a prospect of the glorious future, is not a part of the Psalm itself, but marks the close of the second division or book of Psalms, each of which ends in like manner, 41 : 14, 89 : 53, 106 : 48 ; Ps. 150, the conclusion of the whole, is itself an extended doxology.

19. וְיִשְׁבַּח וְיִרְצֶה וְיִשְׁבַּח § 271. a, the sentence is taken from Num. 14 : 21.

20. וְיִשְׁבַּח § 93. a. Appended to this Psalm these words might mean, 'This sums up all that my father David desired and prayed for.' But such a subscription sounds strangely at the end of a Psalm written by another than David himself ; and particularly as it follows instead of preceding the doxology, it may more naturally be thought to refer in like manner to the books or divisions of the Psalter. The Psalms (תְּפִלִּימוֹת prayers, hence psalms which consist largely of supplications, comp. 17 : 1, 86 : 1, 102 : 1, Hab. 3 : 1) of David the son of Jesse are ended. The Psalms of the two preceding books, Ps. 1-41, 42-72, are with few exceptions those of David; the three books that follow, Ps. 73-89, 90-106, 107-150, contain few that are ascribed to him. In a general sense, therefore, this is the point of transition from the Psalms of David to those of other inspired singers. Some have doubtfully conjectured that this marks the end of an original collection of the Psalms, to which the name of 'the Psalms of David' was given, because they were mainly written by him, just as the entire book in its present compass is frequently so denominated for the same reason; and that the remaining portion of the collection was incorporated with it at a subsequent period. The book of Proverbs affords an instance of such an enlargement, see Prov. 25 : 1, as this hypothesis supposes in the Psalter.

PSALM CX.

Messiah, the ideal Melchizedek, at once king and priest by express divine appointment; his sway is resistless and his priesthood perpetual. That the subject can be no other than the Messiah is evident, since by the established regulations of the Jewish economy the regal and sacerdotal offices were preserved distinct, the one being hereditary in the family of David, and the other in that of Aaron. Saul lost the kingdom for presuming to offer sacrifice, 1 Sam. 13 : 9 ff, and Uzziah was smitten with leprosy for venturing into the temple to burn incense, 2 Chron. 26 : 16 ff. Only he, in whom all the types centre, could be a priest upon his throne, Zech. 6 : 13. The messianic character of this Psalm is abundantly declared in the New Testament. Our Lord, in argument with the Pharisees, Mat. 22 : 43. 44, Mark 12 : 36, Luke 20 : 42. 43, sanctions this exposition of it, as well as its composition by David, and implies that these were universally acknowledged. Ver. 1 is quoted of Christ, Acts 2 : 34. 35, 1 Cor. 15 : 25, Heb. 1 : 13, 10 : 12. 13, and is the basis of all those passages which speak of his sitting at the right hand of God, Mat. 26 : 64, Mark 16 : 19, Acts 7 : 55, Rom. 8 : 34, Eph. 1 : 20, Col. 3 : 1, Heb. 1 : 3, 8 : 1, 12 : 2, 1 Pet. 3 : 22. Ver. 4 is quoted of him Heb. 5 : 6, 7 : 17. 21, and is explained at large in ch. 7 of this Epistle.

1. יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ , David's calling Christ his Lord implies the mysterious constitution of his person, Mat. 22 : 45. יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ , session at the right hand of God is equivalent to sitting with him on his throne, Rev. 3 : 21, and implies association with God in supreme dominion. יְהוָה אֱלֹהֵינוּ . From this passage taken singly it might be doubtful whether this particle is to be understood exclusively or inclusively, as Gen. 28 : 15, Ps. 112 : 8, that is to say, whether the session at God's right hand, which is to continue until the subjugation of all foes, shall then cease, or shall be perpetual, being thenceforward freed even from the semblance of opposition. From the exposition of the apostle, 1 Cor. 15 : 24-28, however, we learn that while the Messiah is to have an everlasting kingdom, as the prophets unanimously testify, his session at the right hand of God is subject to the limitation here affixed to it. The delegation of universal authority to the Messiah is to last until the purposes of his administration are complete, but no longer. After his people are all redeemed, and his foes all subdued, he shall, in his capacity as Messiah, have no further occasion to retain the control of the universe, but shall deliver it up unto his Father. Thenceforward he shall hold simply his headship over his own people, and God shall be all in all as before the mediatorial reign began. עָלָה , figure of complete subjugation, comp. 1 Kin. 5 : 17 (Eng. Ver. 3), Josh. 10 : 24.

2. עֵצֶךָ the rod, as an instrument of chastisement, or as others suppose, in the sense of עֵצֶךָ 'sceptre,' though עֵצֶךָ has this meaning nowhere else, of thy strength, not thy strong rod, but the rod or sceptre of thy strength, the symbol of it, or that by which thy strength is displayed. $\text{שִׁלְחָהּ$ send forth on its errand of judgment from Zion the centre and seat of the theocracy; others, stretch forth, as 1 Sam. 14 : 27. אֲמַרְךָ , the command implies that there is nothing to prevent his doing as he is enjoined.

3. The instruments of his victories. עֲבֹדָהּ thy people are free-will offerings, voluntarily offer themselves to the service of their king in his conflict with his foes, comp. the use of the cognate verb, Judg. 5 : 2. 9. יְמֵי־חַיְלָהּ day of thy power, when it is exerted, or of thy host, the marshalling of thy forces. $\text{שִׂמְרֵת־קִדְמוֹתֶיךָ}$ in ornaments of holiness, adorned with sacred vestments; not equipped as ordinary warriors, but in sacerdotal robes, since they are a kingdom of priests, Ex. 19 : 6, and it is not by carnal weapons that they prevail, comp. 2 Chron. 20 : 21. 22, where $\text{שִׂמְרֵת־קִדְמוֹתֶיךָ}$ has the same sense as the phrase here used (שִׂ as in שִׂמְרֵתֶיךָ Ps. 45 : 15). מִבֶּטֶן־בֹּקֶר from the womb of morning, from which the dew is poetically represented as born; others take the prep. in its comparative sense, § 260, more than the womb. בֶּטֶן־נְעֻרֶיךָ , in the only other passage in which this word occurs, Eccles. 11 : 9. 10, it denotes the early period of life; taken in this sense here, the dew of thy youth would mean, thy fresh and vigorous youth, which is perpetually renewed, like dew from the womb of morning. But it agrees better with the connection to understand 'youth' as a collective for young men, and thus as equivalent to 'thy people' in the first clause. These are as numerous and universally diffused as the drops of dew, 2 Sam. 17:12, with allusion likewise, perhaps, to their sudden and noiseless appearance, and the mysterious agency by which they are produced, Mic. 5:6 (7).

4. שׁוּבָה , the solemnity of such an oath implies not only its inviolable truth, but the superlative importance of the subject. עִנְיֹן אֶל־יְהוָה , it is an oath that he never will recall. יְהוָה § 218, after the manner, character, or order, not of Aaron, who was purely a priest, but of Melchizedek, § 195. 3, § 218. a, who was both priest and king, Gen. 14:18.

5, 6. יְהוָה § 199. c, a form used only of God as the supreme Lord. The Lord at thy right hand is not Messiah here designated by a divine title, but Jehovah, since Messiah is throughout the person addressed. That Jehovah is here spoken of as at the right hand of the Messiah, whereas the converse is the case in ver. 1, only shows that both expressions are figurative. He is at his right hand to aid and support him, 16:8, 109:31. יְהוָה , the alternation of tenses here and in the next verse shows that the ideal position of the Psalmist is in the midst of what he is describing, § 263. 5. a. He has already smitten kings; but not content with this he is going on still to judge הַגּוֹיִם the nations; and now, as this majestic and fearful process has been proceeding even while the Psalmist speaks, he has filled the arena of the conflict, or מִלְחָמָה intrans. it is full of corpses, § 271, he has smitten the head over much land, either collectively, as in the Eng. Ver., or some one of the more prominent and powerful of his foes, possibly the head and leader of the entire rebellious opposition, elsewhere denominated 'the prince of this world,' John 12:31, a passage which might on this view be regarded as parallel to the one now under examination; הַרְחֵב אֶרֶץ might then be rendered the wide earth, as הַרְחֵב הַיָּם , Gen. 7:11, 'the great deep.' This blow, upon this latter understanding of it, would end the strife.

7. The refreshing draughts partaken of during or after the conflict with their reviving effect, comp. Judg. 15:18. 19. He shall not be so fatigued that he cannot prosecute the contest with vigour, nor so exhausted at its close that he cannot enjoy the fruits of victory. Others think that 'drinking of the brook in the way' denotes the unrelaxing ardour of the pursuit. He turns not aside to rest or to refresh himself, only partakes hastily of what he finds in his way, and presses without ceasing on. The subject in this verse is the Messiah, who by a change of person is here spoken of.

PROVERBS. CHAPTER VIII.

vs. 1-5. The publicity and universality of Wisdom's call.

vs. 6-21. The excellence and value of her instructions.

vs. 22-31. Her association with God himself in the production of his works.

vs. 32-36. Appeal to men to secure their own welfare by embracing her.

1. אָרְרִי § 263. 2, action already begun but to be continued in the future, is she not crying?

2. Wisdom occupies the most conspicuous positions, near the great thoroughfares, addressing the multitudes of passers by. בְּדַרְבַּי § 238. 1. a, see on Ps. 1:3, Gen. 41:1; we speak in the same sense of houses being on the street. בְּדַרְבַּי place of paths, where they meet or cross; others, within the paths, not only on eminences by the roadside, but in the very road itself.

3. בְּדַרְבַּי § 97. 1, § 136. 1.

4. בְּדַרְבַּי § 207. 2. e.

5. בְּדַרְבַּי § 208. 3. d. בְּדַרְבַּי may denote the intellectual faculty, cause your heart to understand, or better, as parallel to בְּדַרְבַּי , intelligence, that which is rational and sensible, which men are exhorted to perceive or attend to.

10. בְּדַרְבַּי § 264, qualifies the verb understood. 13. בְּדַרְבַּי § 166. 2.

17. בְּדַרְבַּי , K'thibh has the 3 fem. suf., the indirect mode of speaking, for which the K'ri substitutes the first person. See a like instance, Judg. 16:18. בְּדַרְבַּי § 111. 2. b. בְּדַרְבַּי § 105. c. בְּדַרְבַּי , the old rendering, solid, durable, is still preferred by many critics, and is most directly deducible from the signification of the root: others adopt the sense of splendid.

21. בְּדַרְבַּי is by some regarded as a noun meaning substance, wealth, lit. that which is or exists. There is no necessity, however, for departing from its usual sense, there is wherewith to give inheritance to those who love me.

24. בְּדַרְבַּי § 207. 2. b.

25. בְּדַרְבַּי § 263. 1. b.

35. בְּדַרְבַּי , K'thibh plur., inasmuch as the preceding singular is to be taken distributively, § 275. 6; the K'ri substitutes בְּדַרְבַּי .

JOB. CHAPTER III.

2. בְּדַרְבַּי , though nothing had as yet been said by his friends, there was a tacit demand in the circumstances of the case to which he makes reply. So Deut. 26:5, Isa. 14:10, where, as in this place, the Eng.

Ver. gratuitously substitutes 'speak' for 'answer;' comp. a like use of ἀποκρίνομαι in the New Testament, e. g. Mat. 11:25.

Job complains of three things:

(1) vs. 3-10, that he was ever born.

(2) vs. 11-19, that he was not suffered to die as soon as born.

(3) vs. 20-26, that he is still compelled to live in his incessant and intolerable anguish.

3. By a bold personification Job conceives of the day of his birth and the night of his conception as actual beings, which have inflicted a wanton and irreparable injury upon him, and he wishes them blotted from existence. His wish is not that their anniversaries may have no place in the calendar, or may be regarded as unlucky and inauspicious, but that the identical day and night may be non-existent. If they had never existed, he would not have been born. Job transfers himself in thought to the period before his birth, and the tenses are regulated by this ideal position. עֵינִי, without the article because it is in the construct before a relative clause with the relative omitted, § 255. 2. אֶתְּיָרָה § 35. 1. אֶתְּיָרָה § 285. 3, it is a more natural construction, as well as more poetical, to read 'which said,' than 'in which one said.' : אֶתְּיָרָה, not a man-child, Eng. Ver., but a man, the name proper to the mature state being applied by anticipation to the infant or embryo. The emphasis is not upon the sex, implying greater joy at the birth of a son than a daughter; Job says 'a man' because he is speaking of himself. The two clauses of this verse are then separately expanded, the first in vs. 4. 5, the second in vs. 6-10. The poetic accents begin with ver. 3, and extend through the poetical portion of the book, § 31.

4. אֶתְּיָרָה be darkness, i. e. be no day at all. : אֶתְּיָרָה seek it, to bring it out of this darkness into which he had wished it converted. אֶתְּיָרָה is used throughout the poetry of this book almost to the exclusion of the customary plural. It is found besides in a few other poetical passages, and but rarely in prose. : אֶתְּיָרָה occurs only in this place, though common in Arabic.

5. : אֶתְּיָרָה, not stain, Eng. Ver., but redeem or reclaim, bring back into their possession, as he who had parted with his property through stress of circumstances might redeem it. אֶתְּיָרָה, compounded of יָרָה and אֶתְּיָרָה, § 195. 3; others derive it from אֶתְּיָרָה, supposing that it was prolonged from אֶתְּיָרָה, as אֶתְּיָרָה from אֶתְּיָרָה. אֶתְּיָרָה, in the judgment of many interpreters, not merely a single cloud, as עָנָן, but a mass or body of clouds covering the sky, § 198; though Gesenius thinks the relation of these words to be precisely the reverse, § 198. b. אֶתְּיָרָה, some make = the prefixed prep., as the bitternesses of a day, like whatever can make a day bitter and dreadful. It is better, however, to regard it as a radical, and to derive the word from בָּרַח to be burned, then to be black, § 187. 2. e, hence obscurations. Let it suffer preternatural and alarming eclipse.

6. יָמֵי § 109. 2, § 172. 4, Kal apoc. fut. of יָרָח let it not rejoice among the days of the year, Marg. Eng. Ver., not that it should be a dismal, sorrowful day, but that it should not have the joy of belonging to the days of the year. The days pass along, a merry, joyous band, let it not be one of them. Of course not natural days, as in vs. 3. 4, but civil days, embracing the entire diurnal period, in which sense they include the night. The text of the Eng. Ver. renders it as though it were יָמֵי from יָרָח . $\text{מִסְפַּר־הַיָּמִים}$ number of the months, i. e. of the days and nights included in the months.

8. He wishes everything dire and dreadful to be heaped upon it or employed against it, not only all real evils, but even such as are imaginary and fictitious. He, therefore, invokes the aid of sorcerers, who curse the day, who claim the power of inflicting curses upon it, who are ready to rouse leviathan, who, armed with their incantations, do not fear to disturb the crocodile, as some understand it, while others suppose an allusion to serpent-charmers, and others still to the celestial serpent, whom they instigated to swallow the sun and moon, thus producing eclipses.

9. Let it be black throughout, its twilight darkened and no dawn succeeding it. עֵינֵי־הַדְּלוֹת gaze with pleasure, see on Ps. 22:18, on the eyelids of the dawn, the first tremulous and struggling beams proceeding from the sun, the eye of day.

10. The reason why he uttered these imprecations. מִי־בִטְנִי my womb, that which bare me. וַיִּסְתֵּם , Vav Conv. implies a close connection of this act with the preceding, it did not shut up, etc., and so hide. The negative belongs to both clauses.

11. The ideal position of the speaker is shifted to the time immediately after birth. Hence the futures וַיִּבְרָא , וַיִּבְרָא , and the preterite וַיִּבְרָא .

13. וַיִּפָּקֵד for depends on the implied wish that he had been suffered to perish uncared for. וַיִּפָּקֵד now, i. e. in the case supposed, I would have lain down and would be quiet. Mark the change of tenses in the verbs, all of which are affected by the preceding condition.

14. וַיִּבְנֶה־בָּיִת who built desolations, not tombs or mausoleums, nor, as in Isa. 58:12, rebuilt ancient ruins, thus showing their power and greatness, but built stately edifices which are now, or soon will be, in ruins.

15. וַיִּבְנֶה־בָּיִת , not their tombs, which some have imagined to be referred to in this and the preceding verse, but their palaces and treasuries. The reference is not to sums of money buried with the dead, but to the wealth possessed by them when living. :חָדָשׁ § 271. 1, § 273. 1.

16. חָדָשׁ. By a bitter irony on worldly prosperity, kings, princes, and an abortion are all put into the same category; their condition is ultimately the same.

17. חָדָשׁ there, i. e. where kings, counsellors, etc. are, the place or state of the dead. Mark the change of tenses.

18. חָדָשׁ § 122. 1.

19. חָדָשׁ, not predicate, the same, which is not the meaning of the pronoun, but copula, § 258. 2. :חָדָשׁ § 201. 2.

20. חָדָשׁ, indef. § 243. 2, why give, or rather, as the future implies, why continue to give, equivalent to the passive construction, why shall light, i. e. life, comp. ver. 16, be given, not only why has it been and is it given, but why must it be given yet longer. Some supply 'God' as the subject, but this is unnecessary, and gives an uncalled for appearance of open and conscious murmuring to these moanings of uncontrollable anguish.

21. חָדָשׁ, change from participle to future with Vav Conversive, § 282. c.

23. חָדָשׁ, construction resumed from ver. 20. Although he still speaks in general terms, the expressions show that he has his own case particularly in mind: the way is thus prepared for the next verse, in which he speaks directly of himself. חָדָשׁ, pret., not part., as shown by the position of the accent, § 34; whose way is hid, who can discover no method of escape from these dreadful evils. חָדָשׁ, not as 1:10, to secure him from harm, but to shut him up to the endurance of suffering beyond the possibility of extrication.

24. חָדָשׁ, confirmatory; life is continued to those who are in this condition, for such is my case. חָדָשׁ before, sooner than; perpetually repeated, with greater frequency than his regular food. חָדָשׁ, fut. in its frequentative sense, § 263. 4, so חָדָשׁ § 265. a.

25. The meaning is not that he had apprehensions in his former prosperity, which have now been fulfilled; but all that is dreadful in his esteem has been already, or is likely soon to be (חָדָשׁ fut.) realized in his experience. He endures all that he has ever conceived that is frightful. חָדָשׁ § 172. 3, § 271. 2. חָדָשׁ § 82. 1. a (3).

26. His sufferings are without intermission. There are no intervals of repose before fresh pains and troubles come. The triple repetition is emphatic. חָדָשׁ § 168. a.

CHAPTER XIX.

This chapter occupies a central position in the discussion, since it belongs to the second of the three series of discourses, and is uttered in reply to the second of the three friends. It is also the acme of Job's inward struggle. His greatest anguish arose from the thought which the tempter perpetually suggested, that God was cruelly pursuing him as an enemy. He here reaches the triumphant assurance, that in spite of all contrary appearances God is his redeemer, and will ultimately manifest himself as such. His bodily anguish remains. The mystery of God's dealings is still unsolved. But his personal relation to God is settled, and this gives him comparative peace. Whatever perplexity still clouds his mind, we hear no more the accents of unrelieved despair such as he has uttered hitherto.

vs. 2-22. Job entreats his friends not to aggravate the misery which God has sent upon him.

vs. 23-29. His confidence in God as his Redeemer.

2. וְיִתְּנֵהוּ § 150. 2 (p. 181), § 172. 1. וְיִתְּנֵהוּ § 105. a and c.

3. וְיִתְּנֵהוּ § 235. 3 (4). וְיִתְּנֵהוּ , definite for a large indefinite number. וְיִתְּנֵהוּ § 263. 2, as their disposition is unchanged, he anticipates a continuance of the same treatment, see on Gen. 44:7. וְיִתְּנֵהוּ , word of doubtful meaning. The Eng. Ver. renders it 'make yourselves strange,' comp. וְיִתְּנֵהוּ . From Arabic analogies some explain it to mean stun, astonish, and others, treat unjustly, injure.

4. Even if he was the guilty man that they suspected or alleged, this did not justify their treatment of him. He was himself the only sufferer by these imaginary misdeeds. He had not harmed them, and they ought not to treat him as if he had done so.

5. The condition may extend through the first clause, 'If ye will, etc., then § 287. 2 prove against me my reproach,' establish the charges with which you reproach me. Or it may extend through the entire verse, and the apodosis be found in that which follows.

6. וְיִתְּנֵהוּ . The mystery which so perplexed Job and misled his friends was, that God appeared to be doing him a serious wrong; the sufferings inflicted upon him seemed like a declaration of his guilt, and was so understood and charged by his friends, when he was in fact innocent. This divine perversion of his case, this inequality in the divine proceedings, must not be urged in proof of his criminality. Others take the verb in the physical sense, bent me down, overthrown me.

7. וְיִתְּנֵהוּ cry at present with every prospect of continuing to do so in the future, § 263. 2. הָרָצַח , governed directly by the verb; this was the cry that he uttered. Comp. in English, to cry murder!

8. The preterite גָּרַר describes what God has already done; the future יַרְשֵׁב what he is going on still further to do. These are not mutually exclusive, but supplementary, and are only poetically distinguished. Both the past, which is predicated of one act, and the future, predicated of the other, belong in fact to both. 15. $\text{תִּתְּנֵנִי בְּיָדָיו}$ § 105. e.

16. וְיִקְרָא , וְיִתְּנֵנִי § 263. 1, futures relative to the preceding pret. וְיִקְרָא , I called, he would not answer, I had to supplicate.

17. רוּחִי my breath, others, my spirit, as excited and querulous. וְיִתְּנֵנִי , pret. § 34, has become strange, offensive; there is no need of assuming a new root, or that the word is used in another than its proper Hebrew sense. וְיִתְּנֵנִי might be Kal pret. of יָתַן with Vav Conv. § 100. 2, which some render, I have to supplicate, a sense which the verb has in Hithpael but not in Kal, § 80. 1 (2), others, from an Arabic analogy, I am loathsome, but such a departure from the ordinary Hebrew usage in regard to a word of frequent occurrence is inadmissible, unless in cases of absolute necessity. Gesenius regards it as a plur. noun from הָתַן with a suf. proper to sing. nouns, § 220. 2. a, then assuming a convenient sense and supplying the verb from the preceding clause, my entreaties are strange to, etc. It seems best to regard it as a Kal infin. with the fem. ending וֹת , a few other examples of which occur, § 139. 2; not my supplicating, a sense which the Kal cannot have, but my caressing (lit. being gracious) is strange, repulsive to the sons of my womb, that from which I was born, as 3 : 10, my uterine brothers, not 'sons of my body,' my own children, none of whom were living, 1 : 19, though some have sought to escape this difficulty by assuming that the children of concubines or else grandchildren are intended.

18. וְיִתְּנֵנִי , parag. fut. in a conditional sense, see on Ps. 72 : 15. 16, let me rise up, i. e. whenever I rise, they speak against me, ridiculing my painful and laboured movements; or it may mean, when I rise to leave they slander me behind my back.

19. וְיִתְּנֵנִי , the plur. verb shows that the sing. subject must be understood as a collective.

20. וְיִתְּנֵנִי , not an infin. from עָרַר with the baring of my teeth, i. e. denuded of the gums, which were wasted by disease, but as in the previous part of this same verse a noun, with the skin of my teeth, the insignificant membrane which covers the gums, a proverbial expression for a bare escape, though its origin is obscure and doubtful.

22. וְיִתְּנֵנִי , figure from insatiable beasts of prey.

23. The second part of the chapter consists of an introduction, showing Job's sense of the importance of what he was about to utter, vs. 23. 24 ; his triumphant testimony, vs. 25-27 ; and a deduction from it in the form of a warning to his friends, vs. 28. 29. $\text{וְיִתְּנֶהָ} \text{ } \text{לְיָדְךָ}$ who will give, an idiomatic mode of expressing a wish, O that, see on Ps. 4 : 7. וְיִתְּנֶהָ , the words, which he would have written, not on a fugitive leaf merely, but recorded in a book for permanent preservation, are manifestly those which follow, not what he has said hitherto.

24. Not merely written, but cut in stone, and the letters filled with molten lead, so that they might endure for all time.

25. וְיִתְּנֶהָ , pron. emphatic, § 243. 1 ; Vav connects it with ver. 22, the intervening verses being parenthetical, 'You persecute me relentlessly, as though I were a friendless, heaven-forsaken man, and yet I know, if you do not, that my Avenger lives.' וְיִתְּנֶהָ § 35. 1, not merely my Deliverer, but my Redeemer or Avenger, see on Isa. 41 : 14. It belonged to the Goel, who was the nearest kinsman, to espouse the cause of his suffering or injured relative, to redeem his property if he had been forced to part with it, to avenge his death if he had been unjustly slain. Such a friend and protector Job had in God. וְיִתְּנֶהָ last, not merely after we are dead, nor generally at some future time, but in its absolute sense, at the latest period of time. Possibly this word may here be used as an attribute of God, Isa. 41 : 4, 44 : 6, 48 : 12, and be made the subject of the verb. He who is the Last shall arise from his seeming inaction and indifference, comp. Ps. 3 : 8, or stand, make his appearance. וְיִתְּנֶהָ , not in the sense of the Latin pulvis, or arena, the scene of this contest, but either over the dust, i. e. over my grave, as Ps. 22 : 16. 30, or better, upon the earth, as 41 : 25.

26. וְיִתְּנֶהָ , 3 pl. indef. § 243. 2, pret. relative to the following future, § 262. 1, after my skin or body, which they shall have destroyed, i. e. which shall have been destroyed. כֵּן , adverbially thus, in the manner in which it is now perishing ; others regard the fem. as standing for the neuter, and refer it to וְיִתְּנֶהָ my skin, viz. this which you here behold, or to the declaration which he had just made, this shall take place, viz., the appearance of my Redeemer. וְיִתְּנֶהָ and out of my flesh, disembodied ; others render, from my flesh, which, as his present body has already been spoken of as destroyed, must then denote his resurrection body. The terms of this and of the preceding verse show that Job could not have meant that God would appear on his behalf in the present life, and restore him again after his great emaciation. That he refers not to recovery from disease, but to a divine vindication in the future state, further appears from (1) the solemnity with which these words are introduced. The idea of graving upon the rock to endure forever a statement which was to have an open and manifest fulfilment in a few days at the furthest, is grandiloquent, if not absurd. (2) The condition of Job, who is on the verge of the grave, 17 : 1. 11–16, and always repels the idea of any earthly expectation whenever it is presented to him. (3) The position maintained by Job in opposition to his friends. They assert that men are rewarded in this life according to their characters. Job denies it. If now the confidence which he here expresses is that of an earthly reward, he comes over to their ground. (4) This is the oldest, as it has always been the most prevalent interpretation.

27. אֲנִי לְפָנָי § 243. 1, I, the very person whom you think abandoned of God. לְפָנָי for me, on my side. אֲנִי, pret. relative to preceding future, shall have beheld. אֲנִי, some make the subject, I, and not a stranger in my stead, shall behold him; but better as the object, behold him and not estranged, not inimical to me. אֲנִי מִיָּדָי my reins are consumed with eager longing for this glorious anticipation, comp. Ps. 119 : 123, or, according to others, by this wasting disease, comp. Ps. 73 : 26.

28. Conditional sentence, the apodosis being found in the next verse. When ye say, How shall we persecute him, what new assaults shall we make upon him, and the root of the matter, the cause of all my sufferings, is found in me, in sins of which you allege that I am guilty,—when you treat me in this hard-hearted and unjust manner, then you may well be afraid of the avenging sword of my great Redeemer.

29. אֲרִיבָהוּ wrath, the divine wrath awaits transgressions of the sword, such transgressions as call for the sword of God's vengeance. Others, wrath, such as you display in your harsh treatment of me, is transgressions of the sword. אֲרִיבָהוּ K'ri, אֲרִיבָהוּ K'thibh, with the abbreviated relative, § 74; others, with less probability, think it to be a modified form of the word אֲרִיבָהוּ the Almighty.

SONG OF SOLOMON. CHAPTER I.

1. אֲנִי הָאֲשֵׁרִים § 254. 2. a. Marg. see on אֲנִי הָאֲשֵׁרִים Gen. 1 : 1.

3. אֲנִי הָאֲשֵׁרִים in respect to odour thy ointments are good; thy name is ointment, etc.

4. אֲנִי הָאֲשֵׁרִים, abstr. for concrete, the upright; others take it adverbially, they love thee uprightly, sincerely.

6. אֲנִי הָאֲשֵׁרִים, the abbreviated relative, § 74, here used as a conjunction, § 239. 1. אֲנִי הָאֲשֵׁרִים § 188.

7. אֲנִי הָאֲשֵׁרִים § 209. 1. a. 8. אֲנִי הָאֲשֵׁרִים § 245. 2, § 260. 2 (2).

9. אֲנִי הָאֲשֵׁרִים § 218, the fem. has a collective sense, § 198.

15. אֲנִי הָאֲשֵׁרִים thy eyes are doves. 17. Marg. see on Judg. 13 : 18.

CHAPTER II.

1. הַשָּׂרֵף § 246. 1. a.
4. Marg. see on Gen. 44 : 10
5. הוֹלֵךְ, const. of source, § 254. 7.
7. אֵין in an oath has a negative sense, see on Gen. 42 : 15.
12. הַזְּמִיר, the majority of modern interpreters render singing, i. e. of birds : Gesenius follows the LXX and Vulgate in giving it the sense of pruning.
13. הַשָּׂרֵף § 195. 1, are blossoms, i. e. in blossom. קְרִי, K'ri, קְרִיב, K'thibh, § 220. 1. b (2 per.).
14. Marg. see on Judg. 13 : 17.
